FEARS CALIFORNIA MAY BRING ABOUT CRISIS WITH JAPAN

Viscount Kaneko Says Limit of Endurance Has Nearly Been Reached.

CONDEMNS PROPOSED LAW

SCOUTS THE COAST FEARS

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKYO, June 18.—"The action of some people in California threatens to strain the relations between Japan and the United States to a critical point. Japan has borne patiently a long series of attacks on the legal rights of the 60,000 Japanese in that State, but the limit of endurance has been very nearly reached. I have not the slightest fear of facing the danger of a breach of diplomatic relations between the two countries, but I do fear that if the proposed legislation to be submitted to popular referendum in California next November goes through there will be implanted in the Japanese mind a rankling sense of wrong inflicted by America that time will not efface."

So spoke Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, member of the Privy Council of the Empire, in an interview here yesterday.

Continuing, he said:

"I make this statement to you because I know that the great journal, second to none in the world, which you represent has been always fair to our people, and that we can trust to its powerful support if our cause be founded on truth and right and justice.

"We have been told that the attitude toward Japan of the people of the United States is by no means that which the politicians of the State of California find it to be to their advantage to take. I know that, but I also know that the Government of the United States could not, if it would, interfere with the process of whittling away the rights granted to Japanese years ago by the laws of California, and which are now near the vanishing point. You cannot get away from the fact that the existence of good or bad feeling between Japan and the great American Republic depends on the action of the people of California.

Discusses Coast Objections.

"The representative business men of that State have, through the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, recognized the tremendous significance of that fact, and have appointed a permanent committee on American-Japanese Relations to confer with a corresponding committee here in regard to points of accute difference that exist between our people and theirs. Their committee came over here a year ago, but never really got to the root of the whole trouble.

"Another delegation, composed of ten able and high-minded men, came from San Francisco to Tokyo this Spring, and we had a long series of consultations with them. You know how cautious our people are of giving offense by bluntness or directness of speech, and I saw that our conferences were likely to end in the adoption of some barren formulas, as others had done, so I left the position of Chairman, which I occupied, and made a speech from the floor, in which I outlined what I believe to be the chief objections that Californians have to the presence among them of our people—the impossibility of assimilation, the tendency to form isolated communities, the lack of conformity with the observances of the Christian religion.

"I admitted the force of these objections from the American point of view, but I insisted that they did not essentially differ from similar objections entertained by the Eastern States to certain other kinds of foreign immigration. In the East, however, such objections did not take the form of confiscatory legislation, and they have long ceased to be the chief part of the stock in trade of the professional politician.

Calls California's Fear 'Imaginary.'

"To sum up the whole matter, our protest against the California policy is based on the fact that it is frankly one of anti-Japanese discrimination—one to which no other class of aliens are subjected, and which no other Government on earth adopts today toward the stranger within its gates. Do you think it possible for any patriotic Japanese to read without a thrill of resentment a statement embodied in the act to be submitted for popular approval in the Fall election in California, declaring that the Japanese 'constitute an imminent and pressing menace to the peace of the State and the welfare of its citizens'? That I can only characterise as an imaginary fear, and yet it is proposed to perpetuate it in a solemn act of legislation.

"The course of what I must call the legislative discrimination against our people has been progressive. First, the original amount of land they were allowed to hold under the laws of the State was, step by step, contracted. Then they were deprived of their rights altogether, and were restricted to leaseholds of shorter and shorter

BERLIN, July 11.—The Bavarian and Württemberg Governments have thrown down what amounts to a challenge to both Spa and Berlin, having informed the latter by telegram that under no conditions will they permit the disarmament and demobilization either of the civil guard or military police.

SPA, July 11 (By telephone to Paris and thence by cable)—The following statement was issued tonight by the Allied Supreme Council:

"Poland has asked Allied intervention, saying that unless she gets assistance her situation will become very serious.

"The Allies have therefore sent to Moscow a proposal to the Soviet for an armistice between Poland and Russia subject to the condition that the Polish troops retire behind Poland's legitimate boundaries, the armistice to be followed by a meeting of all border States to fix boundaries.

"Should the Soviets refuse an armistice and attack the Poles within their proper boundaries the Allies will give Poland full assistance."

The following statement was issued on behalf of the British Government:

"There is no foundation for the rumor that Great Britain intends to make separate peace with Russia."

In an interview today Polish Premier Ladislas Grabski said the Allies advised the Poles to accept their suggestion and ask the Reds for an armistice with a view to peace. The Premier said that in the beginning of offensive action against the Reds the Poles were acting on behalf of all the Allies, but it was now impossible for them to continue unaided, and if the Allies wanted them to make peace they had no choice but to agree.

Every one in Poland wanted peace, but peace would mean they would be unable to continue helping small nations against the Bolsheviki. He hoped the Allies would take care of the latter—for instance Ukraine, which Poland was now compelled to abandon.

Asked about General Petlura, the Ukrainian President, Premier Grabski said he had a civil Government in the Ukraine and a military force to support it.

The Polish Premier's tone was subdued. He seemed to realize that Poland had come to the end of her ambitious dreams of military expansion and conquest through the action of the Allies in withholding support.

The Allied Supreme Council considered Danzig this morning. The subject was raised by the Poles, who said they were not getting proper use of the port. They advanced some criticism of the present administration, which is dominated by the British. After hearing the Polish case the Allies decided to appoint a commission to consist of members of the free city of Danzig and Poles with a chairman to be appointed by the League of Nations.

The Germans are expected to reopen the question of Danzig with a view to obtaining concessions in the use of the port. It is likely the Allies will turn the matter over to the League of Nations.

Admits Military Situation Is Serious.

SPA, July 11 (Associated Press).—"This is a decisive moment for Poland," said Ladislas Grabski, the Polish Premier, to fifty correspondents of all countries, who called upon him today by invitation. "Our army is engaging the mobilized forces of Russia, with a population six times our own, an army equipped with all the most perfected instruments of war, supplied by the Allies to the armies of Denikin, Kolchak and Yudenitch—armored automobiles, tanks, machine guns and heavy artillery.

"The Bolshevist army has much more to fight with than the Polish army, and of superior quality, besides masses of cavalry. The Bolshevist offensive has created for us a serious situation, but not a desperate one."

The Premier read the official communiqué of July 9, indicating that the Polish troops were retiring slowly and counter-attacking on their principal line between Molodechno and Borisov and that attempts of the Red army to force the Beresina near Bobruisk had been repelled.

The Premier alluded to the unity of all parties and classes in Poland, to the universal volunteering for the new armies in formation and to the confidence of the people in being able to hold out. He declared that the harvests were good.

"But," he added, "besides confidence in ourselves we call and rely on the aid of our allies, military where possible, and the moral and diplomatic support of all."

Premier Grabski answered all questions freely. The substance of the Polish note to the allied Governments, he said,

GERMANS PRODUCE PLAN FOR DEALING WITH REPARATIONS

Consider Nation Has Already Paid More Than 20 Billions Called For by May Next.

MUST HAVE MATERIAL AID

Propose Annual Indemnity Installments Spread Over Period of Thirty Years.

WILL REBUILD RUINED AREA

Willing to Operate Through an International Syndicate Composed of All Nations.

SPA, July 11 (by telephone to Paris and thence by cable).—After declining at first to submit it because the allied coal demands made it useless, the German delegates tonight handed their reparations plan over for allied perusal.

The proposals in the plan make no definite offer but present a complicated system of payments in kind through organization of German industries and the establishment of an international syndicate for the rebuilding of devastated France. The cost would be paid eventually by Germany.

The Germans ask that the Allies fix the total of indemnity to be paid in annuities extending over not more than thirty years, this total to be subject to acceptance by Germany. Goods delivered or reparation made would be credited against this total at world market prices at the time of delivery.

The whole bulky document is very indefinite and general, going so far as to call for "conferences of trade and labor organizations of the interested countries." This does not constitute the final offer the Allies wished and expected. The allied statesmen had fixed at Boulogne a total of £6,000,000,000 to be paid in thirty-two years with interest, and they regarded any such scheme as Germany has put forward as something to be considered subsequent to the fixing of the total, whereas the Germans wish to discuss with the Allies aid to German industries and a system for handling the exchange of goods and after that is settled the figure of the sum total.

The German proposal calls for study and intricate calculations. This would give the German Government the delay it really wishes before the total is announced to the German people.

Hitch Over Coal Total.

At the conference this morning the Germans declared that because the allied coal demands were twice what they had expected, the German reparations plan could not be carried out. Germany could not meet the coal deliveries and produce enough to pay the reparations.

Premier Millerand replied that France would not consent to any such reduction of coal as the Germans asked. The latter replied that they felt no longer bound by the figure formerly fixed. It is expected that the matter will be settled tomorrow morning.

The Allies set the figure both of coal and reparations at twice what the Germans say they can pay. They demand 29,000,000 tons of coal annually and the Germans offer 13,000,000 and ask £6,000,000,000, while the Germans offer £3,000,000,000. And this figure is based on reduction of coal deliveries and the retention of Upper Silesia. The fact that the Silesian plebiscite cannot yet be held is used as an obstacle to the fixing of the reparations total.

At the opening of the session the committee of allied and German experts named to settle the coal question reported that while it was agreed that the Allies had priority and could set up a committee in Berlin to control the German coal operations, it was impossible to agree about the amount. The experts advised investigation of the possibilities of improving food and health conditions of the German miners with a view to increasing the production.

Dr. Simons said that while the German reparations plan hung on coal, it was based on so much coal being allotted to German industry. With less coal they could pay less. The allied figures being double the German totals meant that one-third of German coal would have to be turned over. This involved reduction of the supply to industry from 60 to 40 per cent. Therefore the Germans could not submit their plan.

M. Millerand replied that if it was true German industry lacked coal, French industry lacked it even more, and the reason was that the Germans wantonly destroyed French coal mines in order to bring about that very state of things. No modification of Article 233 of the treaty relative to coal could be permitted. The treaty must be fulfilled subject to such modifications as the Allies might be willing to permit.

He expressed pained surprise at the Germans withholding the reparations plan they said they would submit today. He suggested it would be best for all concerned that the Allies see the German plan before giving a final decision.

Dr. Simons asked for an adjournment to consult his colleagues. The session resumed, he said that in view of what M. Millerand had said, the Germans had decided to submit the plan and he

Prince Henry of Prussia Kicked, Beaten and Held Prisoner by Riotous Laborers

BERLIN, July 11.—An almost incredible story of the ill-treatment of the former German Emperor's brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, by a riotous gang of field laborers is told by the Ost-Preussische Zeitung, which asserts that it had the information direct from Prince Henry's family circle.

According to the informant, some time ago a gang of sixty men, led by a private in a Hussar's uniform and wearing a big red rosette, invaded the Hemmelmark estate, Prince Henry's Slesvig-Holstein country seat, on the pretext of searching for hidden arms. The invaders turned the place inside out but found no arms.

Then the leader said to the Prince, "Come, Henry," whereupon Prince Henry was made to run the gauntlet, suffering innumerable kicks and blows. Afterward he was locked up in a jail at Berokensferde, where he was tortured nightly. He was awakened every ten minutes with "Get up, Henry; turn on the light; lie down, Henry," amid jeers and insults from his captors.

Many other Slesvig-Holstein land owners have been the victims of assault and ill-treatment by armed gangs.

GAVE AID IN GREAT WAR

Her English Home Turned Into a Hospital — French Had Blamed Her for 1870.

MADRID, July 11.—The former Empress Eugenie of France died here this morning. Death occurred shortly before 8 o'clock from acute intestinal inflammation. She passed away quietly in the presence only of her lady-in-waiting. Her nephew, the Duke of Alba, at whose residence she died, was in France, and the other members of the family were absent.

Empress Eugenie had long suffered from ophthalmia and had been operated on for cataract. Full imperial honors will be accorded at her funeral.

Preparations are under way for the opening of Empress Eugénie's will. The only member of the family now in Madrid is a niece. The death of the Empress is not yet known generally in Madrid, owing to the Spanish Sunday rest law.

LONDON, July 12.—A dispatch to the London Times from Madrid says that although lately Empress Eugenie had been in feeble health, due to her extreme age, her death was quite unexpected. She went daily into the garden of the residence of the Duke of Alba. Saturday afternoon she was stricken with an intestinal disorder and took to bed. The Empress had intended to proceed to London next week and had arranged for transportation.

It was the strange fate of Eugenie Marie de Montijo, briefly obscure only in girlhood days spent in Spain, France and England, to become known in budding womanhood as one of the greatest beauties of her time, and later, as consort of Napoleon III. and Empress of France, personally influential in European events and destinies of three generations. To mention one simple but most obvious detail of that influence, the grandmothers of all the civilized world today were gowned in the 60s in the fashions of Paris, dictated by the dress of Eugenie. Her recent return, when 94 years old and nearly blind, from the country of her maternal ancestors to the fatherland of her birth was greeted even in war-stricken Europe and so reported to the four corners of the earth as if it had yet been the triumphal progress of an Empress.

Acted as French Regent.

Born in Granada, Andalusia, Spain, May 5, 1826, she was the second daughter of Count Manuel Fernandez de Montijo, Duke of Peneranda and Maria Manuela Kirkpatrick of Closeburn, Dumfriesshire, Scotland. Her maternal grandfather was William Kirkpatrick, United States Consul at Malaga, who was a native of Scotland, but a naturalized American.

Eugenie, as she came to be universally called, was educated in Spain, France and England, and traveled extensively with her mother on the European Continent. She met her husband, Emperor Napoleon III., first in 1851 and was married to him at Notre Dame in Paris, on Jan. 30, 1853. Prince Napoleon, her only son, who was the Prince Imperial, born March 16, 1856, followed his mother to England in exile and died as a youth, fighting in Africa with the British Army.

The Empress Eugenie had great influence over her husband, and on several occasions she acted as regent during the absence of the Emperor, when he was traveling or was with his army in the field, as he was in 1859, in 1865 and finally in 1870-71, during the Franco-Prussian war.

At the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, there were many persons who accused Eugenie of having been responsible for the commencement of hostilities. Later her enemies, who were numerous, declared that she was the cause of all the calamities which befell her. From the public generally, however, the one-time Empress received respectful sympathy, and even after her beauty had faded in old age, she was reverently saluted by those who saw her seated in the parks of Paris, enjoying the warm sunshine and talking with the children playing near by.

Lame, bent and white-haired, the former Empress often was called "Europe's Queen of Sorrow." She was quoted always as praying that death might end her long term of sadness and again bring her to her husband and son. In the Tuileries Gardens, in Paris, the stern-visaged gendarmes looked the other way "when Eugenie was plucking flowers."

Nearly Blind, Begged to See Spain.

In England some time ago Eugenie lost the sight of one of her eyes, and was fearful of becoming totally blind. With the desire again to visit her native Spain, she begged that she might be

DIES IN NIAGARA, RIDING IN BARREL

FAILS AT THE WATER CURTAIN

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 11.—Charles Stephens, of Bristol, England, was killed this morning by going over the Horseshoe Falls of Niagara in a barrel in an effort to emulate the feats of Anne Edson Taylor and "Bobby" Leach.

Stephens came to the Canadian side of the river a few days ago and began to study the falls and river with a view to determining the possibilities of making a successful trip. He expressed the view that the barrel he had brought with him would carry him safely through the upper rapids and over the horseshoe.

This morning, about 8 o'clock, he and his party gathered on the Canadian side of the river on the mainland, about midway up the shore opposite Navy Island. He crept into the barrel, which was equipped with apparatus said to have been designed by Prof. Hill, of England, so as to give him an air supply of about eight hours.

The harness was put over his head and he adjusted the mouthpiece before friends bade him farewell. His manner was confident, and he showed little fear. A motor launch towed him and his barrel to midstream and then down stream as far as it was safe for the craft to go. There the final fastenings were made over the manhole, and a rap on the outside of the barrel was the signal that told Stephens that he was adrift on the bosom of the Niagara River, only a few hundred feet from the precipice over which only two persons had gone and lived to tell of it.

Borne Swiftly to Brink.

Between the point where the boat abandoned Stephens and the brink, there are foaming rapids and also several reefs, over which rushes the torrent that comes down from Lake Erie. Through the rapids and over the reefs the barrel plunged swiftly, rolling two or three times quite differently than did the barrels in which Mrs. Taylor and "Bobby" Leach made their voyages.

To those who understood the river and had witnessed other trips, this was significant, and there were those by the riverside who felt that Stephens would not survive the trip.

On toward the brink the current carried the barrel. Persons on the shore watched intently the approach of the craft with its human freight toward the jumping off place of the waters. Twenty-six minutes elapsed and during this period the watchers stared in fascination at the moving barrel.

It passed through the rapids, and floated quietly through the more quiet water to the horseshoe. A second more and it dropped out of sight.

Along the lower river, anxious friends on both banks watched for the barrel to emerge intact from the foot of the falls, as had the Taylor and Leach barrels years ago. They watched in vain, for presently the surging currents of the boiling waters at the base of the waterfall delivered the barrel in pieces to the bosom of the lower river. Stephens's body did not appear. Later boatmen further down stream picked up parts of the barrel to be kept as souvenirs of the tragedy.

Stephens's friends on the river banks were loath to believe that he had failed in his undertaking. They sought out every eddy on both sides of the stream, hoping against hope that the barrel boat might be found, or that the Englishman might have been hurled to a safe point by the waters in the lower river. Only tonight, as darkness fell, did they abandon hope of seeing Stephens alive.

Say Barrel Broke on Rocks.

Anne Edson Taylor and "Bobby" Leach, both of whom saw the attempted feat, do not think it strange that Stephens gave up his life in the river today, for both of them had long studied the falls and river before they made their hazardous trips. The conclusion of all is that Stephens's barrel dropped behind the falling sheet of water instead of being cast out in front of it as were the other barrels which had safely shot the falls, and was smashed on the rocks at the base of the cliff.

When Mrs. Taylor made her voyage her barrel kept on the outside edge of the curtain of water and was visible all the time, striking the water on the lower river in full view of the crowds, then drifting over to an eddy on the Canadian side, where she was rescued. Leach also was taken from his barrel on the Canadian side. Both of the successful voyagers were badly bruised.

Watchers will be placed at all vantage points on the lower river in an effort to find the body of Stephens.

"A cool commercial proposition," said C. G. Stephens concerning the Niagara Falls exploit that cost him his life, when

COMMITTEE OF 48 AND LABOR PARTY MOVE TO UNITE

HEARST GROUP IN PARLEY

La Follette Favored by All Three Parties as Candidate for President.

LABOR CONVENTION OPENS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Amalgamation of the Committee of Forty-eight and the Labor Party appeared almost certain late tonight, when at the close of a conference between committees of the two groups a signed statement was issued by J. A. N. Hopkins, Executive Chairman for the committee, and Toscan Bennett for the Labor men, saying the two committees had agreed unanimously on getting together.

The statement said that three resolutions had been adopted unanimously. The first recommended amalgamation, the second advised the appointment of sub-committees of five of the Political Procudure Committee of the Forty-eighters and the Conference Committee of the Labor men to agree on the machinery of getting together, and the third called for sub-committees of five from the Platform Committees of both to agree on a platform.

The agreement between the two committees, which, according to all appearances, will be ratified by both conventions, resulted from the appointment of ten Westerners of either radical affiliations or radical inclinations to the Conference Committee of the Forty-eighters after the committee as originally appointed by the Executive Committee, composed of comparatively conservative Easterners like Hopkins and Allen McCurdy, had been unable to agree with the Labor men.

From all appearances, the Labor men will get their way in the party name, which they insist shall bear a labor tag; in an Irish independence plank and in a platform declaration for nationalization of industry, to which the organizers of the Forty-eight movement are definitely opposed.

The amalgamation proposal, if it is ratified by the two conventions, almost undoubtedly will mean the nomination of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin as the Presidential candidate, provided he can be induced to accept. He is known to be unwilling to run unless he can be assured of a united party composed of strong elements and a platform that suits him. Both conventions are convinced now that they will be able to produce the goods he has demanded and their hopes are running high tonight that he will consent to be the standard bearer.

Hearst Move for Union.

Indications that the more conservative group had lost control of the Committee of Forty-eight and that the more radical Westerners would dominate its convention from now on led to a renewal of overtures for amalgamation by emmissaries of William Randolph Hearst who are promoting the American Constitutional Party. While these agents were working among the delegates tonight Philip Francis, chief editorial writer of The New York American, conferred with some of the Forty-eighters in the Hotel Morrison.

Asked if he thought there was a renewed prospect of amalgamation, Mr. Francis said there was no doubt that the Constitutional Party would give every possible support to the new party being formed here, provided its offers acceptable candidates and an acceptable platform.

He declared the view of the Hearst party was that Senator La Follette and Frank P. Walsh would make a strong ticket. This ticket probably would be acceptable to the proposed amalgamated Forty-eight-Labor convention, and it may be that, despite the repudiation of the Hearst party in a formal statement by Mr. Hopkins on Friday, an invitation to the Constitutional group to come into the third party will be issued, now that the Hopkins right wing seems to have lost control of the Forty-eighters.

Discussing the platform, Mr. Francis said the Hearst men would stick for two planks, one a strong declaration for Irish independence and the other plank declaring for American freedom from entangling foreign alliances, as opposed to a League of Nations of any sort.

The temper of both the majority of the Forty-eighters and the labor men as manifested today is such that the inclusion of the planks described by Mr. Francis, at least in substance, is regarded as highly probable.

De Valera to Speak Today.

Eamonn de Valera, President of the unrecognized "Irish Republic," will address the Forty-eight convention tomorrow morning.

As evidence of the new spirit that has come over the Forty-eight men, Amos Pinchot did not go to Detroit last night to extend an invitation to Henry Ford to head the third party. It was announced that he would go, but at the last moment it was decided to wait until all hope of La Follette was abandoned. Even this morning an official of the convention asserted that not Pinchot but another emissary was

Ends 45 Years in Marine Corps, 65 Years in Federal Service

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Announcement was made by the Navy Department that Henry J. Wylie, who has served continuously in the Quartermaster's Department of the United States Marine Corps for the last forty-five years, will retire from the service on Aug. 20, with a Federal annuity.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Wylie, who is now nearly eighty-two years old, has actually served the United States Government for a period of more than sixty-five years, forty-five of which was in the Marine Corps. During this service Mr. Wylie administered the oath of office to the following Commandants of the corps: Maj. Gens. Heywood, Elliott, Riddle, Barnett and Lejeune.

When seventeen years of age Mr. Wylie entered the service of the Government in the Post Office at Pittsfield, Mass., in June, 1855. In 1857 he was promoted to chief clerk of the Post Office in Pittsfield, but resigned in 1861 and enlisted in the 49th Massachusetts Infantry.

HARDING UNSHAKEN ON PORCH CAMPAIGN

HAS RECEPTION AT CHURCH

MARION, Ohio, July 11.—Following a conference held by Senator Warren G. Harding, Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Harry M. Daugherty, Mr. Harding's preconvention manager and one of the Republican National Executive Committee, at the Harding headquarters this afternoon, formal announcement was made that the Harding front porch campaign would be continued indefinitely.

Chairman Hays held two conferences with Senator Harding in the course of the day, one about noon, just after church, and a two-hour session in the afternoon, in which Mr. Daugherty participated. Mr. Daugherty arrived here in the forenoon and he was talking with newspaper correspondents on the porch of the campaign headquarters when the Senator and Mr. Hays returned from a short ride after church. As the Republican nominee and Chairman Hays entered the headquarters the Senator turned and asked his manager whether he was coming inside, but Daugherty shook his head and continued his conversation.

Before the end of the afternoon conference Senator Harding left Hays and Daugherty together and stood with Mrs. Harding in front of their home talking with neighbors. Word came from the conference room that Mr. Hays was preparing a statement for the press.

Senator Harding, Chairman Hays and Mr. Daugherty were in the conference room when the correspondents filed in, and Mr. Hays said that he had an announcement to make but preferred to give it out in typewritten form. Senator Harding and Mr. Hays were standing while Mr. Daugherty was seated in a chair tipped against the wall.

Tells of Nominee's Popularity.

While Mr. Hays was outlining the organization of Republican headquarters in Chicago, a stenographer handed him copies of his statement. Mr. Hays cleared his throat and then read the following:

"I have been delighted to spend Sunday with Senator and Mrs. Harding and hear the splendid sermon this morning by the Rev. McAfee, their pastor. It has given me the very greatest pleasure and deepest satisfaction to see the cordiality of greeting and sincerest home appreciation of them by the congregation with whom they have worshipped for so many years. It means very much, indeed.

"It has been inevitable, of course, that we have discussed some phases of the political situation during our visit. I can only say that every day more and more I congratulate the party and the country on Senator Harding's nomination."

Copies of the statement were handed to the correspondents while Mr. Hays declined to elaborate for publication upon what he had read.

Questioned as to whether he had discussed with Senator Harding the front porch campaign, Mr. Hays said that no prophecies could be made, as none could tell what "the emergencies of the campaign" might require, but that there would be no present changes. The Republican national headquarters had received more than five hundred requests from all parts of the country to hear the Presidential nominee, Mr. Hays said.

"There have been no alterations in our affections or our judgment," Senator Harding added.

"You have expressed it beautifully, Senator," chimed in Mr. Hays.

Letter Predicts World Catastrophe.

Presidential candidates, national committees and campaign headquarters might just as well stop work now, according to a letter sent by George H.

COX'S WAR RECORD HIS REPLY TO THOSE WHO QUOTE HIS PAPER

'DIRT FARMER' FOR CABINET

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 11.—Governor James M. Cox today pointed to his record as Ohio's War Governor as a sufficient answer to an article published in the Sun and New York Herald this morning in which were embodied quotations from editorials which appeared in his newspaper, the Dayton Daily News, during the two years preceding America's entry into the war. The interpretation put upon these articles by the Sun and Herald was that they showed Gov. Cox "as a friend of Germany with the United States about to enter the war." [The quoted extracts are reproduced below.]

Governor Cox said that all the editorials cited were published before this country entered the war and at a time when feeling regarding the war and the proper policy for this country to pursue was in a state of constant fluctuation, even verging at times on differences with Great Britain over her blockade policy serious enough to necessitate an exchange of diplomatic notes.

Many of the editorials were never seen by the Governor before their publication. The Governor made it clear that he did not seek to evade responsibility for what had appeared on the editorial page of his own newspapers, and added that the editorials had been written by George F. Burba, now an editorial writer on The Columbus Dispatch, of whom he thought highly.

"I think he can tell you, when you get to Columbus, what is the depth and quality of my Americanism," said the Governor.

Charges Used in 1918 Campaign.

All of the material contained in the article in The Sun and New York Herald and much more was published in pamphlet form by the Republican Central Committee of Ohio and used during the 1918 campaign with a view to defeating Governor Cox, who then was a candidate for re-election. The Republican leaders here once urged Colonel Roosevelt to exploit the matter in a speech he made at the dedication of a soldiers' monument in Columbus, but, according to reports here, the Colonel declined with the declaration that he could not do so, "as he had already pronounced Governor Cox one of America's great war Governors."

"As far as any speeches of mine are concerned, there will not be found in them a word or utterance with a bearing on the propriety of this country being in the war or pursuing the struggle to the bitter end with which any red-blooded American can find fault," said the Governor. "Any one who really wants to know my attitude on the war need only consult any of the soldiers Ohio sent to the war or the vote in pro-German sections of Ohio."

The Governor said that the Democratic vote in such counties as Henry, Mercer, Defiance, Tuscarawas, Putnam and Monroe, where there is a heavy German element in the population, fell off to almost the zero point.

"In the western belt of the State, where the chief element of Democratic strength has always been among voters of German descent, they simply went to work and cut the life out of me," he said.

With regard to the speeches referred to in the article, Governor Cox said that a false interpretation may have been placed on certain utterances by him in which he poked fun at Colonel Roosevelt for permitting himself to be "carried muzzled through Cincinnati" in the 1916 campaign. The Republican leaders here were so afraid that the Colonel might offend the German voters who predominate in Cincinnati that they switched his train around the city, the Governor said, and would not even let him come through the station on his way to Louisville, where he was scheduled for a speech.

Nothing to Fear, Says Cox.

"I challenge any man," the Governor added, "to find a word in any speech of mine or to find any gentleman on God's foot-stool with whom I ever discussed the subject who will say that I ever uttered a word that would in any way confirm the idea that I was not opposed to the German military oligarchy from the moment the European War began."

The Governor said that his attitude was a proper subject for inquiry, now that he was a candidate for President, and added that he had turned his own personal files over to The Sun and New York Herald correspondent to facilitate his work in looking up the record.

"I have nothing to fear from any investigation of this matter," he said.

To Appoint a "Dirt Farmer."

The Governor spent the day quietly at his suburban home, where a delegation of Ohio farmers sought him out to offer their congratulations upon his nomination. While they were calling

Governor Cox made what he characterized later as his first campaign pledge.

"I told them that if elected I would appoint as my Secretary of Agriculture a regular 'dirt farmer,'" the Governor told the newspaper correspondents. "This is a homely term by which we mean a farmer who has worked the dirt himself and turned it into gold. I think it is high time that we had a man in that position who has followed the plow, learned the game from experience and is a practical tiller of the soil."

Governor Cox said that he did not see why the rule under which a lawyer invariably is selected for Attorney General and a man who knows something about finance and currency for Secretary of the Treasury should not equally apply in the case of the Department of Agriculture.

"I regard the Department of Agriculture as important as any department in Washington," said the Governor. "I have no criticism to offer on the manner in which it has been and is being administered. I think from 'Tama Jim' Wilson down to Meredith, the men at the head of the Department of Agriculture in Washington have always been capable and conscientious and that Meredith in particular has made a hit with the farmers throughout the country. But if I have my way, a practical working farmer will be at the head of it."

The Governor when told of Senator Harding's decision, if elected, to invite the Vice President to sit in the Cabinet and asked if he felt disposed to do likewise, replied that he did not care to make any comment or indicate what his course would be.

Choice of Campaign Chief Deferred.

The Governor expects to be at his desk in the State House at Columbus at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. He will spend most of his time in the State Capital until the real fight gets under way.

Governor Cox was asked tonight whom he would select to conduct his campaign. The names of Homer S. Cummings, the present Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Edwin H. Moore of Ohio, who was the manager of the Cox pre-convention campaign and leader of the fight for his nomination at the convention, and Congressman Erdell Hull of Tennessee, are most prominently mentioned for the future chairmanship of the committee.

"I have not given the matter a thought as yet," said the Governor. A decision will probably not be reached until the National Committee meets here on July 20 to discuss campaign matters and fix a date for the notification ceremonies.

Insured Roosevelt's Nomination.

Governor Cox picked Assistant Secretary Roosevelt for his running mate and insured the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for second place on the ticket by making certain in advance that he would be accepted by Tammany Hall, the only element in the Democratic National Convention from which serious opposition had been expected.

The story of how Mr. Roosevelt came to be nominated was told today at Trails End, the suburban home of Governor Cox, by the man who placed his name before the convention. The sponsor for Mr. Roosevelt was not a delegate from his own State, but ex-Judge Timothy T. Ansberry, who sat in the convention with the District of Columbia delegation. Mr. Ansberry, who, with his wife, is spending the week-end as the guest of Governor and Mrs. Cox, served with Mr. Cox in the House of Representatives, and later, after Mr. Cox became Governor, was appointed by him to a place on the Ohio Circuit Court bench.

From Mr. Ansberry's account, it would appear that no very serious objection was offered by Charles F. Murphy to the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt, whose entry into political life was marked by his assuming the leadership in a fight against Tammany Hall, in which Tammany was vanquished, over the proposal to elect William F. Sheehan United States Senator. It was found, however, that some Tammany men in the delegation were so bitter against him that a special meeting of the New York delegates had to be called in order to overcome this opposition.

At this meeting Governor Alfred E. Smith, according to Mr. Ansberry, led the fight for Mr. Roosevelt so successfully that New York fell into line. Governor Smith played a considerable part in the negotiations that preceded the meeting and, it appeared, was consulted regarding the matter even before Mr. Murphy was. This circumstance may not be void of significance in view of the general feeling that should Mr. Murphy retire from the leadership, Governor Smith would be his successor. The Tammany spokesmen insisted upon "recognition for the organization" from the next national Administration, a thing that Tammany has not had since Woodrow Wilson took up his residence in the White House.

Smith and Murphy Were Cordial.

Mr. Ansberry, while the convention was in progress, kept in close touch with Governor Cox. When he reached San Francisco he went to Mr. Roosevelt, San Francisco he went to Mr. Roosevelt, New York committed to the candidacy of William G. McAdoo, and sought to win him over for Governor Cox. Mr. Ansberry, as a member of the District of Columbia delegation, was compelled to vote for Attorney General Palmer until the Attorney General released the delegates pledged to his candidacy.

"I asked Secretary Roosevelt if, as a candidate for United States Senator, he did not think that he would be in a better position to win with Governor Cox at the head of the ticket than with McAdoo in that position," Mr. Ansberry said. "Mr. Roosevelt told me that it was not at all certain he would be a candidate for the Senate. That first made me think of him as a possible candidate for Vice President who would add a great deal of strength to the national ticket."

After Governor Cox had been nominated for President, and while the convention was reassembling on Tuesday for the purpose of naming a candidate for Vice President, Mr. Ansberry again talked to Mr. Roosevelt, and on this occasion urged him on party grounds to permit his name to be presented. The subject of opposition from Tammany Hall was brought up at that time by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

"I suggested to him that he go and see 'Al' Smith and Mr. Murphy and it would be all right," Mr. Ansberry continued. "This was in the convention hall. I watched him and felt sure that for some reason he was unwilling to approach either of them on the subject, and so I went to 'Al' Smith myself. I told him his delegation had played the game so fairly with Governor Cox that I felt as his friend that New York leaders should be consulted before I placed Mr. Roosevelt in nomination, although there was no doubt that he could be nominated with or without their consent."

Mr. Ansberry said that Governor Smith told him, in substance:

"I like Roosevelt. He is a fine, upstanding fellow. His name, let alone his record and personality, will help the ticket. I am for him."

Murphy, when approached, said practically the same.

Says Marsh Gave Decision.

The New York delegation held an impromptu and rather informal meeting in a corner of the Auditorium. Some of the leaders from other States, in the meantime, had gotten together directly in front of the rostrum and were discussing Vice Presidential possibilities. The names most frequently mentioned were those of Victor Murdock of Kansas, Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of Agriculture Edwin T. Meredith and, of course, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt. After the New York delegation had met, Murphy came up and joined this group, but stood a little distance off.

"Finally Wilbur W. Marsh of Iowa (Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee) said to me: 'You name the man,'" Mr. Ansberry asserted, continuing his narrative. "I said: 'If I am left to name him it will be Franklin D. Roosevelt.'

"'You go ahead and name your candidate,' Marsh said.

At that moment Murphy, who still stood a little way off, slipped me a wink and I went to the rostrum to arrange for recognition from Senator Robinson, the permanent Chairman."

Mr. Ansberry as he was preparing to speak, suddenly recalled that he did not know the age of Mr. Roosevelt. Fearing that Mr. Roosevelt might not fulfill the constitutional requirement that candidates for President and Vice-President must be at least 35 years old, he went to the floor and asked Mr. Roosevelt how old he was.

"Why do you ask me that?" Mr. Roosevelt inquired after telling him that he was 38.

"I am going to nominate you," Mr. Ansberry replied.

"Do you think I ought to be around when you do it?" asked Mr. Roosevelt.

"If I were you I'd duck out of the hall," said Mr. Ansberry.

Mr. Roosevelt at that time, according to Mr. Ansberry, had no idea that he was to be nominated. After Mr. Ansberry had placed him in nomination on behalf of the District of Columbia, Governor Smith made one of the seconding speeches on behalf of New York, thus returning a courtesy which Mr. Roosevelt had shown the Governor earlier in the convention when the name of New York's Chief Executive was put in nomination for President.

Governor Cox, when asked following the recital by Mr. Ansberry what part he had played in the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt, said that he had been called out of bed at the time the question was up.

"They discussed Mr. Roosevelt with me and I, of course, was delighted," he said. "I understood that it was the desire of the convention that Mr. Roosevelt should be nominated. Ansberry saw Murphy and he offered no objection. The rest you know."

Governor Cox feels that with the support of Tammany no longer in doubt then nomination of Mr. Roosevelt will brighten the prospect of swinging New York to the Democratic column this year. Mr. Roosevelt will make a powerful appeal to an element among the New York Democrats which does not generally flock to the support of candidates upon whom Tammany has placed the stamp of its approval, and, it is held, will insure a solid party vote in New York behind the ticket.

The Governor and his guests spent the afternoon at his boyhood farm near Jacksonburg, about thirty miles away. He expects to meet Franklin D. Roosevelt at Columbus about noon.

The Dayton Daily News on War Topics.

The editorial utterances of Governor Cox's paper, The Dayton Daily News, referred to above, were published yesterday in The Sun and New York Herald and are here reproduced:

Dec. 13, 1916.—The war has wrecked the world and accomplished nothing for either side. Germany has gained nothing and lost much. The Allies have gained nothing and lost much. The crime of all the ages has accomplished nothing save the wrecking of a smiling world. God grant that the next arm lifted to wield a sword so foolishly may be paralyzed and that the brain be stopped from thinking before it conceives of war.

Date not given, but described as five days before the United States entered the war.—The best way to injure our enemy if Germany should become our enemy through a declaration of war, or because of a state of war, is to supply the deficiencies of the Allies. These deficiencies consist of food and clothing and munitions of war. Instead of diverting our resources to raising an army of a couple of million men; instead of sending men abroad for sentimental purposes, we ought to go to work to supply the Allies with everything they need, and they do not need men. We can best serve our own purposes by furnishing other matter than men.

Oct. 16, 1916.—We have not heard of many Americans biting their fingernails at the thought of the submarine activities. All of us feel sorry for a merchant vessel that is sent to the bottom of the sea, whether armed or unarmed. We feel sorry also for the man of war that is sunk immediately after an encounter. We sympathize with the soldiers who are losing their lives in the trenches, with miserable humanity in general. But our skirts are clear as regards the activities of the German U-boats. They have committed no crime against us. They have played the part of combatants and respected our borders. We feel sorry for the men who have lost their lives in the war and for the women and children who have been made to suffer through no fault of their own; but it is not our war; it is the war of Great Britain and Germany, and we are not going to interfere with either side so long as our rights are respected.

November 7, 1915.—Nor is victory by Germany the worst thing that can happen. If the Allies were to win, and their winning meant a great increase of Russian aggressiveness on the one side and of Japanese self-assertiveness upon the other, America might live to be very sorry that Germany had not won.

September 3, 1916.—The United States is to have the second navy in the world, and it will not be so many years till it is actually engaged.

Germany would have remained ahead of us but for the war. Her losses put her back.

As for the navy of Great Britain, it so far outranks all others that no nation can hope to catch up with it.

And here's a thing to remember when the world is talking war. The navy of Germany and of the United States combined would be much more powerful than Great Britain's. In other words, a combination of these two navies would have nothing to fear from the powerful fleets of the mighty Britain, and in war time, as has been demonstrated, nobody can guess what combination will take place.

Undated, but quoted as stated by Governor Cox "both on the stump and editorially" in 1916.—Every indication now is that tens of thousands of these splendid people (Germans), still sympathizing with the Fatherland, still believing in the righteousness of the German cause, still hopeful that Germany will win—there is every evidence that they will vote for President Wilson for re-election as the BEST MEANS OF AIDING GERMANY, as well as because the re-election of President Wilson will be an aid to the United States.

Our German friends are coming to understand that it does not "just happen" that most of the rabid anti-German people in this country are for Hughes. From Theodore Roosevelt down the enemies of Germany are in the Hughes band wagon. So it is evident in this instance, as in all others, Woodrow Wilson has been the real friend of the American citizen who sympathizes with Germany.

In a speech in Cincinnati in October, 1916, Governor Cox said:

Two of the leading sponsors for Justice Hughes are Elihu Root of New York and Theodore Roosevelt of Oyster Bay. In his first speeches Mr. Root declared that the President should have intervened when the Germans went into Belgium.

Theodore Roosevelt said this Government should have seized every ship in American harbors. Both have criticised the President for not doing the things which would have embroiled us in a war with Germany.

The Germans are getting their eyes opened, and about one more speech from Teddy and the German-Americans will join in a triumphal victory for Woodrow Wilson in November.

J. H. LEWIS FOR GOVERNOR.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 11.—James Hamilton Lewis, former United States Senator from Illinois, has under consideration the acceptance of the Democratic organization's support for the nomination for Governor of Illinois.

The proposition was put up to him late Saturday night at the Omaha Union Station by George E. Brennan and Dennis J. Egan. Mr. Lewis took the matter under advisement, and will give his answer to the Chicago leaders on Tuesday or Wednesday.

That he will accept and permit his petition for Governor to be placed in circulation simultaneously with the petition for the regular organization county slate nominations is considered probable.

OPEN TENNESSEE CAMPAIGN.

Knoxville Republicans Hear Gov. Harding Denounce League Covenant

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 11.—Opening the Republican national campaign in Tennessee, Governor Harding of Iowa at a rally here last night declared that the League of Nations covenant was an un-American document which would carry the country "into untold trouble." He attacked the Administration of President Wilson, asserting that "he kept us out of war, but he is now keeping us out of peace."

ROOSEVELT SAYS COX WON'T STRADDLE

The Country Will Know Exactly Where Both Nominees Stand, He Declares.

PREDICTS VIGOROUS FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, July 11.—"We are going to make a hard campaign in every State of the Union. Personally, I am going to cover a large territory—I'll be back one of these days to talk to the people of this district."

Thus spoke Franklin D. Roosevelt, nominee for Vice President on the Democratic ticket, who stopped in Kansas City for a few minutes today on his way East from the convention at San Francisco. Mr. Roosevelt and his party arrived on the Missouri Pacific at noon and twenty minutes later were on the way to Columbus, Ohio, where Mr. Roosevelt will confer today with Governor Cox.

Asked for a statement regarding the League of Nations and prohibition, Mr. Roosevelt smilingly declined to comment. He said that when Governor Cox announced a stand on these questions the country would know exactly where he (Roosevelt) stood.

"Governor Cox will not be astraddle any fence," was his terse exclamation.

Although he has received a number of telegrams from the Democratic Presidential nominee, Mr. Roosevelt said that none of them contained any information regarding campaign plans.

"There probably will be a general discussion of future plans, as relating to the part in the campaign of Governor Cox and myself when I reach Columbus," he said. "I am not in a position to give a digest of these plans, but you can rest assured that the front porch idea will be conspicuous by its absence.

"I sincerely hope that Senator Harding will go through with his proposed front porch campaign. It is just what the Democrats want," he laughingly concluded.

"How do you think New York, Indiana and Ohio will go in November?" he was asked.

"I firmly believe New York and Indiana will be found in the Democratic column when the final returns are in," he replied, "while in Ohio I predict Governor Cox will run considerably ahead of Senator Harding. The Governor has an immense following in his home State."

After his conference with Governor Cox, Mr. Roosevelt expects to leave Columbus late Monday night for his home in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Asked if he were the youngest man ever nominated for the Vice Presidency, Mr. Roosevelt chuckled.

"A number of persons have told me that I am," he replied. "Personally, I don't know. I hope some of my friends will look up this matter and give me the straight of it, so that I can give a correct answer."

"When will you resign from the Navy Department?" was asked.

"That will depend on the date when I am officially notified of my nomination," he replied.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to reach Washington Friday.

LABOR TO OPPOSE "FOES."

Connecticut Federation Prepares for Political Action.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 11.—The Connecticut Federation of Labor held a meeting here this afternoon which was attended by delegates from more than 60 local unions in the State.

It was decided to form a State Central Committee of nineteen members from various labor union organizations, which will formulate plans for a campaign against political candidates who, the Federation believes, are opposed to organized labor.

It was said that United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee was the subject of a large part of the discussion at today's meeting.

PUGSLEY OUT FOR SENATE.

Ex-Congressman Woodson R. Oglesby of Westchester County and William Schek, Jr., ex-Chairman of the Rockland County Democratic Committee, announced yesterday that Chester D. Pugsley of Peekskill, Democratic and Progressive nominee for Congress in 1916 in the Twenty-fifth District, comprising Westchester and Rockland counties, would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the September primaries.

Mr. Pugsley is a Director and Vice President of the Westchester County National Bank of Peekskill, a Director of the New Jersey Life Insurance Company and is a practicing lawyer here. Through his interest in international relations, foreign policies and world trade he recently provided a fund to establish an annual postgraduate foreign scholarship in the Harvard Law School. He has also established, to be offered by the American Institute of International Law, annual prizes for the best essays on international law by college students in North, Central and South America.

Bean of Orono, Maine, to Senator Harding. Bean writes:

"Aug. 4, 1920, the sun and moon, Venus, Mercury, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Neptune will be on one side of the world with Uranus in a continuation of the line on the other. Isaiah XIII: 13, will be fulfilled and the nations who participated in the World War will be submerged by the Atlantic Ocean."

"Notwithstanding Bean's prophecy, the Harding headquarters intend to keep open night and day until Nov. 2."

Hardings Hold Church Reception.

The National Chairman arrived here early this morning and drove to the Harding home, where he had breakfast. Senator and Mrs. Harding with Mr. Hays attended morning services at Trinity Baptist Church, of which the Republican nominee is a Trustee.

The Rev. T. H. McAfee, the minister of the church, preached from a text taken from St. Luke 9:27: "But I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here which shall not taste of death until they see the Kingdom of God."

No references were made in the sermon to political issues. The church was crowded and at the close of the services Senator and Mrs. Harding and Mr. Hays held an impromptu reception in front of the pulpit.

The pastor, who was standing beside Senator Harding, had few introductions to make, for despite their five years' absence from Marion, during a large part of the year, both Mr. and Mrs. Harding knew most of the congregation, many of whom they called by their first names.

Mrs. Harding again demonstrated today her remarkable memory for names and faces when children passed in the receiving line. Some of the children were mere babies when Mrs. Harding was last here, but from their family resemblances she identified many of them.

It was here that an incident occurred that brought blushes to Mr. Hays's cheeks when Senator Harding twitted him about it later in the day. The Sunday collection was on a table behind Mr. Hays when he took his place beside the Hardings in the receiving line. It was not there long, for one of the deacons pressed through the crowd and placed the collection baskets out of reach on the pulpit platform.

Hard Fight for Middle West.

Before leaving for Columbus, Mr. Daugherty said that reports on the Ohio situation were "satisfactory."

"In my judgment the hardest contests in this campaign will be in Ohio and Indiana," Mr. Daugherty predicted. "You will probably see more parades, publicity and politics in these two States than anywhere else. The Ohio situation is satisfactory, while I just had a letter from Senator Watson of Indiana, saying that conditions are improving in that State as well."

Colonel R. S. Abbott of the Chicago Defender has written to Senator Harding that his nomination is entirely satisfactory to the large negro population of Illinois. From John W. Thompson, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the New York State Republican Council, a negro voters' organization, came the following:

"This organization, representing more than 300,000 colored men and women voters, begs to extend to you its most sincere congratulations."

The New York Council will hold a State convention at Saratoga on July 27, at which time it will select a delegation to come to Marion and call on Senator Harding.

Word has also been received from the Rev. N. T. Lane, pastor of a colored Baptist Church in Kansas City, that the colored voters of Jackson County, Mo., will support Senator Harding to a man.

Nominee Recalls He Once Preached.

MARION, Ohio, July 11 (Associated Press).—In his conference today with the newspaper correspondents Senator Harding recalled a time when he had preached at Trinity Baptist Church. According to the Senator, a series of services, conducted by laymen, had been arranged. It finally came to his turn to preside. He decided to take as his text the first verse on which his finger would fall when he opened the Bible.

"Strangely enough it was 'Be ye not offended if I tell you the truth,'" said Senator Harding. "That ended the series."

Aside from conferences scheduled for tomorrow, Senator Harding announced tonight that he would see no callers until he had completed his speech of acceptance and that only one conference instead of two with the newspaper correspondents would be held daily during that time. He was uncertain tonight when the speech would be completed, but hoped to finish it late this week.

Senator Cummins of Iowa, is expected to arrive here to confer with the Republican nominee regarding the political situation. The Iowa Senator is Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee and it is expected that they will discuss the railroad situation in connection with the nominee's speech.

Scandalmongers Rebuked.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, July 11.—The following is an extract from an editorial in today's issue of The Ohio State Journal, published at Columbus.

"The candidates have scarcely been named, and already mean, low stories about the personal life of each are being whispered about by their partisan opponents. It is a sad commentary on our American human nature that a man cannot be nominated for the Presidency or elected to it without prompting political enemies, who know absolutely nothing about the truth or the falsity of the charges they make, hear and repeat, to spread these vile slanders. President Wilson has been a conspicuous sufferer from these libels; so was President Roosevelt, and so was President Cleveland. Now Senator Harding and Governor Cox are being made the targets of the low-minded and the loose-tongued."

COOLIDGE IS HAYMAKING.

Special to The New York Times.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., July 11.—Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts is putting in time preparing his speech of acceptance of the Vice-Presidential nomination, but during his "rest periods" he devotes himself to haymaking for hours at a time on his father's farm here.

There is a big meadow in the rear of the house, and the Governor is devoting hours daily to mowing. Today being Sunday, he "laid off" and went to church instead, but he will resume his attention to the meadow again tomorrow.

He dresses for this work in the particular garb which appeals to his sense of comfort, wearing a short-sleeved shirt and overalls.

His father, John C. Coolidge, is not the possessor of an automobile, still using a horse and carriage. Consequently, when his son goes over to Ludlow or Woodstock, the county seat, he adopts the old-fashioned mode of travel. In every detail, his vacation is identical with those of recent Summers.

THE COST OF A LETTER

You write a letter. How long does it take you and what is your pay?

Your stenographer transcribes it. How long does it take her and what is her pay?

Work out these items and you have the main production cost of your letters.

Add the cost of paper—any paper—the cheapest or the best—it makes little difference either way.

CRANE'S Bond Paper costs twice as much as the average cheap bond paper, but it adds only about 1½ per cent to the cost of the letter.

For 1½ per cent more you can have an all new rag bond paper, made by a firm 119 years old, used for government bonds by 18 nations, water-marked with the name "Crane."

100% selected new rag stock
119 years experience

MOVE TO UNITE IN NEW THIRD PARTY

on his way. Later he declared this unnamed man's going had been deferred and that the trip well might prove unnecessary.

Labor Party Convention Opens.

Two factors were prominent in bringing to pass the altered situation. One was the changed complexion of the control of the Forty-eight Convention. The other was the radical step with which the Labor Convention set out this morning, thus meeting the mood of the less conservative delegates to the Forty-eight gathering, many of whom were in the galleries keeping close tab on the proceedings.

This extreme temper was well illustrated soon after the Chairman, Max Hays, had called the meeting to order in Car Men's Hall, with about 700 delegates present. Hays, who is editor of a Cleveland (Ohio) labor paper, introduced the keynote orator, President John H. Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor, leader of the Chicago outlaw rail strikers, an avowed Sinn Feiner and one of the pioneers in the new labor party.

Fitzpatrick received, in the language of the official stenographer's minutes, "prolonged cheering and vociferous applause" when he begged for the day to come when the workers of America would "do a job such as Russia has done," and a similar reception for his remarks when he coupled an impassioned plea for Ireland with a bitter diatribe against the British Empire.

He began by charging that capital through "its control of the instruments of information and communication" had tried to make the people believe that the Labor Party was entirely a Labor Party. To vehement denial of that he coupled a declaration that it admitted every man and woman doing useful work with either brain or hand, though he insisted that organized labor's program "brings within its scope the hopes of all of the people."

Fitzpatrick presented the Labor Party as a haven for all those whose aspirations were thwarted by the present political parties, and reviewed the history of the formation of the party—a party which, by the way, though generally referred to by its own adherents as the "National Labor Party," really is officially entitled the "Labor Party of the United States."

After that Fitzpatrick described the Republican platform as a "denial of everything the American people have demanded and spoken for," and he wanted to know "where is the man or woman who can accept the pleasure of the Democratic Party after the way that party has permitted its representatives to betray the people in the last four years?"

He charged that the Democrats wanted to perpetuate the "control of financial pirates," and veered into a bitter attack on the party's Presidential nominee, declaring that in the steel strike Governor James M. Cox of Ohio had removed the Democratic Mayor of Canton because he refused to deprive the workers of their right of free speech and free assembly, and then had called in the militia to support his Republican successor and break the strike.

He laid at the Governor's door the further charge that he was responsible for the strikers in East Youngstown, Ohio, being refused the right to carry the American flag in their parades that would have given the favorable impression that they were loyal Americans.

Fitzpatrick turned his keynote speech to a prediction of harmony with the other elements represented in Chicago conventions, thus publicly sounding for the first time during the day the new note so often heard among delegates to both the Labor and Committee of Forty-eight Conventions.

He predicted that all the "folks against the present situation and present control" would get together, since they were "together at heart," adding that "nothing can prevent the present renderers of useful service in America taking the reins out of the hands not of American financial, but international financial, men and women," and asserting that it was a case of "men, women and children" against "greed, gold and avarice."

Would Do What Russia Did.

He was cheered as he told of Russia "shooting the monarchs into the ash can," and again as he asserted that for the Russians "we would be poor instructors in Government after the job we permitted here," and recommended that the Russians "go to Ireland for assistance and direction."

"But Russia," Fitzpatrick continued, "has destroyed the situation and has brought into being a Government of the people, representing the people, and which takes into consideration the rights of the people in the way that the Russian people want them taken care of."

When the applause at this had died away Fitzpatrick went on:

"So I am not worrying about Russia. Russia has done a tremendous job, and oh! that the day was only near when the workers in the United States would be able to concentrate their effort and do a job such as Russia has done." [Prolonged cheering and vociferous applause.]

In his peroration Fitzpatrick said to another dose of "prolonged cheering and vociferous applause":

"Here is a group of greedy, avaricious financial labor baiters and oppressors trying to exploit the people. They have got control of the United States, and it is our duty, just as Russia has taken over the operation of its own country and its own Government, as the Irish have taken over the control of their own country and set up their own republic, then so also is it our duty and responsibility to proceed to wrest this Government out of the hands that it is in at the present time and bring it back to the people so that it will serve the people."

Easterners Regret Keynote's Tone.

Among the Eastern group in the Committee of Forty-eight there was profound regret at the tone of Fitzpatrick's speech, and its ready acceptance by the delegates, while Forty-eighters of more extreme temper accepted both the speech and the reaction to it with deep satisfaction.

Both the right and left wings of the Forty-eighters, however, were gratified at the cordial reception accorded by the labor men to C. J. France of Washington, when he presented to the convention the harmony and good-will resolution unanimously adopted by the Forty-eighters on Saturday at his suggestion.

Most of the groups represented by interlocking membership in the Forty-eighters' gathering also were to be found among the labor men. In addition there was strongly in evidence a new element, the American Freedom Foundation, which is working for amnesty for "political prisoners," under the sponsorship of Mrs. Victor Berger of Milwaukee; Robert M. Buck, Publicity Director for the Labor Party, and James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

Many of the labor delegates wore buttons expressive of their preference for Senator La Follette, or Frank P. Walsh, or both for their Presidential candidate.

Some labor men, particularly Easterners, oppose La Follette because of his war record. The sentiment seems to be strongly against Henry Ford on the ground that his huge manufacturing industries are conducted on the open shop plan, and this disinclination to Ford on the part of the labor men was ascribed as one of the reasons why the Forty-eighters decided to postpone sending an emissary to Detroit.

Aside from listening to the keynote speech and endorsing it with their applause, the labor men's principal action today was the appointment of a committee chosen from the floor to act with the committee selected by the Executive Committee to confer with the Forty-eighters in an effort to get together. This action precisely paralleled that of the Forty-eighters themselves in adding ten members from the floor to the men chosen by their Executive Committee to deal with the labor men. The two committees went into conference tonight, with the hope of presenting something constructive to their respective delegates tomorrow morning.

May Oust Original Forty-eighters.

According to the group which originally organized the Committee of Forty-eight, for which Allen McCurdy is the spokesman, while the efforts to agree on platform and candidates probably will bear fruit this time, this does not mean that the original men and their views are virtually to be obliterated.

The McCurdy-Hopkins men frankly would find it a hard job to swallow any extreme action by their convention, such as a complete yielding to the labor men with the inclusion of a platform plank for nationalization of the operation of big industries.

They put a bold face on things tonight, however, and overcoming their glumness and the harassed manner some of them plainly showed, insisted that harmony would prevail without such a sacrifice of the principles of the original group as would force their retirement from their own movement.

The three-plank platform adopted by the committee when it met in St. Louis contained this clause:

"We indorse the effort of labor to share in the management of industry and labor's right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing."

The hope of the Right Wing leaders is that this clause may be altered into such a declaration of principle as will satisfy the Labor men, without going so far that the original Forty-eighters will have to stand by and see their movement absorbed into the Labor Party and themselves forced to abandon their convictions or their political child.

The Left Wing men, however, are confident, almost boastful, that they are to have their own way. One of the most conspicuous and influential of them, asked today by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "What does this new spirit of confidence that the parties will get together mean?" replied:

"It means that with the addition of those ten Western men to the committee conferring with the Labor men that committee is a whole lot more radical than the original Conference Committee selected by the Executive Committee, and that it therefore not only is in position to get together with the labor men but is much more in harmony with the spirit of the majority of the delegates to our own convention."

The ten men to whom he alluded are J. H. Ryckman of Washington, characterized by his associates as "a radical and a single taxer"; Mrs. Ida P. Williams of Washington, a member of the Legislature for that State, editor of a farmer-labor paper and on friendly terms with the Non-Partisan League; Arthur G. Wray, Mayor of York, Neb., and candidate for Governor of that State on a ticket of farmers, laborers and liberals; J. Walter Scott of Illinois, a railroad engineer, member of the Brotherhood and of the Plumb Plan League; S. A. Olness, Insurance Commissioner of North Dakota, elected by the Non-Partisan League; William Hannan, officer of the machinists' union in Illinois and an organizer in the American Federation of Labor; James M. Byrne of Texas, C. A. Downs of Wisconsin, a La Follette man, and Eugene J. Brock of Michigan.

This same spokesman asserted that it was probable a farmer-labor name would be agreed to, though the pioneer Forty-Eighters from the Eastern States are opposed bitterly to any class tag on the new party.

Approve Program of Last Fall.

Chicago, July 11 (Associated Press).—Sixty trades union groups and other organizations are represented in the labor convention. Miners and railway men predominate in the union section. Other groups whose credentials were approved include the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Alliance, National People's League, Nurses' Association of Chicago, Plumb Plan League, Chicago University Liberal Club, Women's Trade Union League, Loyal Star League, Union Labor League, Kansas City Yardmen's Association, Friends of Freedom for India, Young Democracy, Non-Partisan League, Welfare Association of Washington, Farmers' Organization, World War Veterans, and American Union Against Militarism.

In opening the convention today Max Hayes, Chairman of the Labor Party's National Committee, declared that "every political group assembled in this city agrees in substance to the platform which the Labor Party had formulated last November."

This statement brought forth prolonged applause, in which delegates wearing badges of the Single Taxers, Forty-Eighters and other elements attending the convention joined.

The November labor platform declared for nationalization of all essential industries, abolition of the United States Senate and of injunction power of judges in labor disputes, declared for the Plumb plan, high income taxes, world-wide disarmament, a national budget and limitation of "the United States Supreme Court's power to veto legislation."

Calling of the roll was interrupted by prolonged cheering when the name of Alexander Howat, leader of the Kansas miners, who was sent to jail in connection with violation of the new Kansas Industrial Court law, was reached today.

James Duncan of Seattle, one of the leaders of the shipyards strike there a year ago, also was greeted with cheers. Duncan, who is also sitting in the Committee of Forty-eight convention as chairman of the Washington delegation, was nominated for a place on the Labor Party's Conference Committee.

Permanent organization was completed tonight with the election of John H. Walker, miner leader and former President of the Illinois Federation of Labor, as Chairman. Walker defeated James Duncan, who was then unanimously chosen Vice Chairman.

In his speech of acceptance, Walker assailed the Democratic and the Republican conventions. He declared that the delegates at both represented the "Steel Trust and profiteering merchants," and that Boise Penrose, "special representative of the Steel Trust," picked the Republican nominees. He said Attorney General Palmer chose the Democratic ticket.

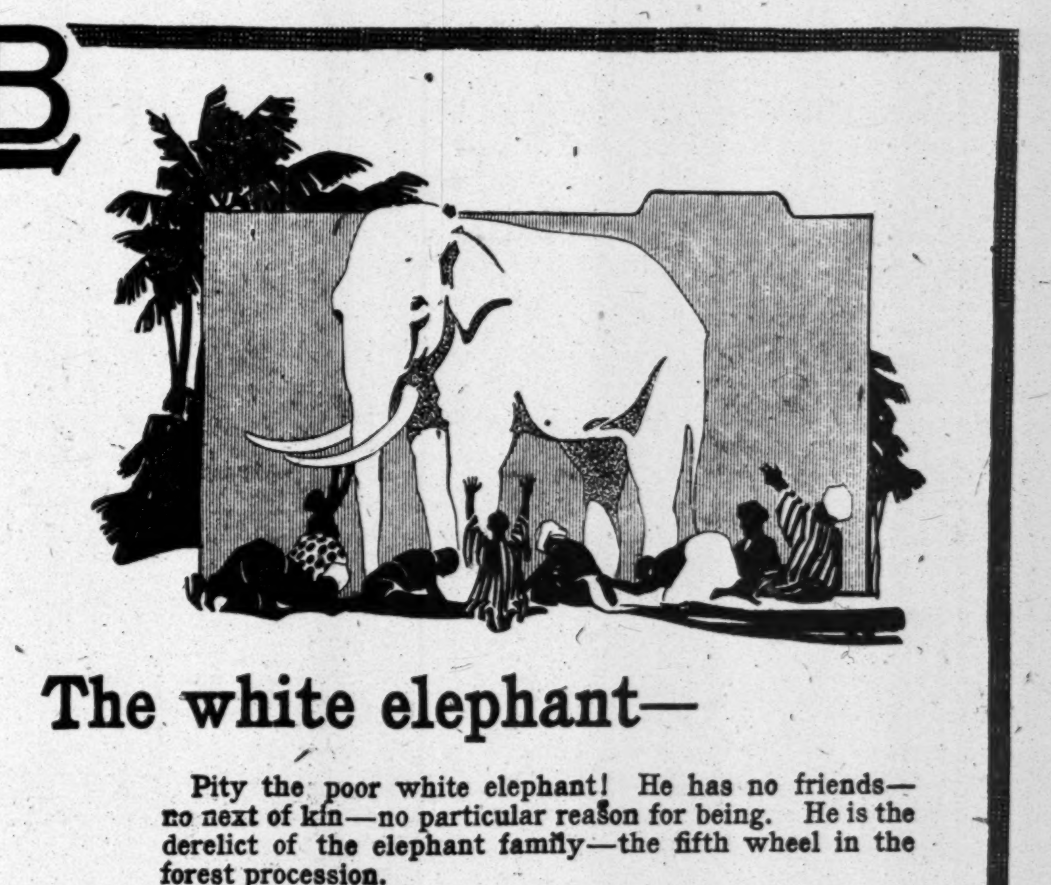
Walker said that in all Palmer's campaigns against profiteers "he had found nobody profiteering except the working man, who was trying to earn a living for his family. He has had them jailed and deported, but the men who charged prices that would make a thief blush have not only been allowed to go free, but they were the men who surrounded Palmer and decreed the nomination of the Democratic ticket at San Francisco."

Tarak Nath Das, New York, of the Friends of Freedom for India, asked aid in freeing India from British rule. His request was referred to the Resolutions Committee without recommendation.

Before adjourning, the convention adopted a six-hour workday for its sessions, providing for adjournment at 5:30 o'clock each day.

Plans to enter into a merger with the Committee of Forty-eight were discussed at a meeting of the single tax delegates tonight, but no definite action was taken. Fusion would be possible if the Committee of Forty-eight incorporated into its platform the single tax platform, delegates said.

R. C. Barnum of Cleveland, State Treasurer of the party in Ohio, will confer with the Forty-eight representatives tomorrow.



The white elephant—

Pity the poor white elephant! He has no friends—no next of kin—no particular reason for being. He is the derelict of the elephant family—the fifth wheel in the forest procession.

Not every white elephant roams the jungle. Some business men will regretfully admit that they have a few "white elephants" among their card records.

This brings up the value of standardization in your card record purchases. By this we mean not only standardization of equipment and supplies but more especially of the card systems themselves.

Library Bureau's card systems are made to fit the particular needs of different businesses. They co-ordinate —they harmonize—they work together. They are not "white elephants."

In these days of changing values, you ought to keep a careful watch on inventories. Come in and let us show you a system which gives you the same check on your stock that you have on your bank account.

THREAT IN BERLIN OF CABINET CRISIS

German Delegates at Spa Assailed and Protests Made Against Allied Demands.

OBJECT TO COAL DEMAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 11. — The tension caused here by the Spa conferences is ever increasing and may lead to an immediate Cabinet crisis if the German delegates should sign Premier Millerand's coal demands. Indeed, there are signs that even the signing of the disarmament agreement will cause the elimination of certain Cabinet members or the withdrawal of the Deutsch Volkspartei from the coalition, that party being especially incensed at Chancellor Fehrenbach's attitude, which is characterized as lacking pluck and diplomatic circumspection.

The party leaders were in consultation with the remaining Cabinet members all day and unanimously advised rejection of the coal demand and return of the delegates to Berlin unless M. Millerand made concessions permitting Germany's industry to live.

The situation today is entirely different from that of June, last year, when the Versailles treaty was signed. At that time the German people, especially the laboring classes, were aware that their existence depended more or less on the result of the Spa conference, and if its further development should compel the German delegates to return abruptly there would be nobody to censure the step.

The Spa conferences are the all-absorbing topic and people gather in the Berlin streets, as they did on the first days of the revolution, discussing news and damning Lloyd George and Millerand. One street corner orator epitomized the desperate feelings of large masses:

"Let Foch and his Frenchmen come in if they wish so they can see what German general strikes are like."

Members of the Security Police throughout Prussia have received circulars from the Berlin headquarters informing them that they need not be uneasy about their future, according to the Lokal-Anzeiger. Demobilization of the Security Police was agreed to by the German representatives at the Spa Conference under protest.

RUSSIAN ROYALISTS HOPE.

Siberian Group Scheme to Overthrow the Government.

HARBIN, June 28.—A group of officers of the old Russian régime, still clinging to the hope of restoration of a monarchy in Russia, has been holding conferences in Harbin as well as in China and at Vladivostok with Japanese, discussing the possibility of finding some basis for a new Government to absorb the Verkhne-Udinsk Government in Siberia.

The Verkhne-Udinsk Government, a Socialist-Zemstvo combination in its origin, has fallen into control of a Bolshevist majority of a provisional Parlament just convened. This majority is under the leadership of M. Krasnostchekoff, known at one time in Chicago as a lawyer under the name of Yankel Todelson.

The Japaneses Government entered into peace negotiations with this government, under the name of the Far Eastern Republic, in May, but the negotiations were broken off when the Japanese learned of the Soviet parentage.

The new group active here is a self-styled central, with Japanese backing. It favors inviting General Horvath, chief of the Chinese Eastern Railway for China, to assume chieftainship of its movements. General Horvath recently received an advisorship in the Chinese Depart of Communications and it is not believed he will accept leadership of the new Siberian party, according to Chinese sources.

MAY BAR HOWAT FROM PRIMARY VOTE

Miners' Leader and Congressman Campbell May Be Aliens in Kansas.

MUST PRODUCE PAPERS

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Kan., July 11.—Two widely known residents of Pittsburg cannot register to vote in the August primary until they produce proof of second naturalization papers. One of them is Representative Phil Campbell, who has represented the Third District in the House for nearly twenty years. The other is Alexander Howat, President of the Kansas Coal Miners' Union and one of the most radical labor leaders in the United States.

Campbell was born in Nova Scotia and Howat was born in Scotland. The parents came to this country when Campbell and Howat were minors.

A new Kansas law requires that foreign-born residents must have their second papers in order to vote in Kansas. A complete new registration in Kansas cities also is required.

When Mrs. Campbell and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Campbell, appeared to register yesterday, they could not present proof that Mr. Campbell's father, now deceased, had completed his citizenship. They were not allowed to register. Relatives said that Mr. Campbell, who will be here in a few days, had the necessary proof.

Andrew Howat, brother of the miners' chieftain, tried to register this week. He could not produce proof that his father had obtained second papers, and was not allowed to register. He said Alexander Howat had investigated in Pennsylvania, where the Howats first lived when they came to America, and found that naturalization papers had been taken out. Alexander Howat has not yet sought to register.

The possibilities in Howat's case are arousing much interest. If his father did not obtain his second papers, Howat is an alien. This would place him in a peculiarly interesting situation in view of his radical utterances. If he should find it necessary to start through the naturalization mill he would confront Judge Andrew J. Curran, who sent him to jail a few weeks ago. Howat has declared war to the death against the Kansas Industrial Court law. On naturalization days in Judge Curran's court every applicant for citizenship is asked many questions about his attitude toward the court law.

MILLIONS OF PROFITEERS.

Denial That Capitalists Are More Greedy Than the Common People.

The one sin which we all say must be stopped before relief is possible is profiteering. I know of almost no one who is not howling against profiteering, and at the same time engaged in it. Buy any article in any store and you will be charged an outrageous price, a price having no relation to cost. No workman so humble that he does not hold you up for every possible cent, and without reference to the value of his service.

This is the popular talk everywhere: that capitalists only are to blame, and that they must reform. The truth is that capitalists are no more greedy than the common people. If we hang the capitalists, as is now proposed, we shall not find a remedy.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Arrest 35 in Whisky Raids.

AURORA, Ill., July 11.—Whisky raids made by Federal officers Saturday night resulted in the arrest of thirty-five persons and the confiscation of about 150 gallons of liquors, officers announced. Three of those arrested were charged with being proprietors of stills near Aurora.

FIND NEW IDENTITY FOR WANDERER VICTIM

Man Slain by Former Lieutenant Now Said to be John T. Maloney of Pontiac, R. I.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The man killed by former Lieutenant Carl Wanderer at the time the latter murdered his young wife, Ruth, in the vestibule of their home in this city, on the night of June 21, has been virtually identified as John T. Maloney, a circus canvasman and ex-soldier, of Pontiac, R. I. This identification was made by men connected with Robinson's circus, now at Kansas City. Yesterday the body of the "ragged stranger" had been partially identified as that of Al Watson, also a circus follower and said to be the son of a New York turfman.

Wanderer spent this morning in his cell praying. During the afternoon, while the police were planning to have Mrs. John Kain, sister of John T. Maloney, brought here from Pontiac, R. I., to try and help identify him, Wanderer again proved himself a criminal enigma in a two-hour conversation with reporters in his cell.

He told of his prayers. He talked calmly of his wife as though she were alive and well, showing no emotion. He advised young men to tell the truth, not because of the principle involved, but because they would get caught if they lied. Directly afterward, he blandly declared that the $1,500, one of the motives for the fake holdup in which he shot his victims to death with a pair of automatic pistols, was his own money, earned by him and saved by him. He "didn't know" why it was necessary to slay to gain possession of it.

Detective Sergeant John Morton, whose efforts were largely responsible for the solution of the case, stood by during the interview.

"A man without a soul," was his comment as he locked Wanderer in for the night.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 11.—John T. Maloney, a victim in the Wanderer murder case, was convicted of killing a man and served four years of a twelve-year sentence here. He was out on parole after a conditional pardon by Governor Beeckman.

DEATH CHAIR LOST TO ART.

Sing Sing Warden Will Not Allow Artist to Depict It.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, July 11.—Major Lewis E. Lawes, Sing Sing Warden, refused today to permit an artist to paint a picture of the electric chair "for the purpose of art," as the painter explained. The applicant wished to display the picture at an exhibition.

The artist, whose identity the Warden refuses to disclose, insisted upon being permitted to enter the death chamber and paint the electric chair amid its surroundings. "I fail to see where that contrivance can in any way be associated with art," replied the Warden in refusing the application.

GUEST ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Youth in Hospital—Two Held—"Didn't Know It Was Loaded."

Archile Gentillo, aged 19, of 198 Seventh Avenue, is in the Coney Island Hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his chest, the result of an accidental shooting. He was a guest at the home of a friend, Jerry De Rosa, 1,765 West Eighth Street, Brooklyn, last night, when Louis Wasserman, aged 16, of 239 West Twentieth Street, Manhattan, pointed a gun at him, believing it was unloaded, and pulled the trigger.

De Rosa and Wasserman are being detained by the police, but no charge has been placed against them.

taken there before she became entirely blind. Her wish was gratified, and last April the cable told of Eugenie's delight as she again saw the beauties of Spain, and especially her home Province of Andalusia.

Despite her 94 years, she displayed notable vitality, and expressed warm-hearted gratitude over the way in which she was welcomed by the people of Spain. The aged Empress underwent an operation on the eyes by the Spanish oculist, Dr. Barraquen, who performed what was considered "a miraculous cure."

Eugenie not only hoped and prayed, but worked for the victory of the Allies in the great World War of 1914-18. The war had found her in a splendid home at Farnborough Hill in Hampshire, England. Early in the conflict she gave up her quiet and secluded life there so that her home could be transformed into a hospital for wounded British officers. Despite her advanced age—the ex-Empress was over 90 then—she assumed entire direction of the place and devoted herself to aiding the wounded men.

While the war was in progress she said she hoped to live to see the Germans driven from France, and also that she expected to fulfill a gypsy prophecy "that she would live to be nearly 100 years old." After half a century of seemingly hopeless waiting she lived to see the Prussians humbled, and she is said to have found contentment in her knowledge of their humiliation in the Peace of Versailles.

In their frequent journeys to Aldershot to review troops during the war, King George and Queen Mary often called upon the former Empress of France at Farnborough Hill. They found her alert mentally and declared that she kept in touch with the news of the war as few women of half her age did. Those who knew her said that her greatest hold on life was due to the fact that she was so strongly determined to live until the Germans were driven from France.

Exiled as Empress of France.

Of the ninety-four years of her long life, she had said that forty-four were "sparkling years," spent in the successive rôles of the young Spanish Countess de Montijo, traveling through Europe, a visitor to the French court, presently the wife of Napoleon III., and occasional regent of the French Empire. Then in a day the whole structure of imperial eminence collapsed. The other half of her life was mournful, so much so that Eugenie had said: "I wish I had passed when the shadowy fabric of my dream fell apart." That day of disaster was Sept. 4, 1870, when she and all Paris had heard of the defeat and capture of Napoleon at Sedan.

The riotous mobs of Paris, shouting for the new Republic which the Deputies proclaimed, stormed the palace of the Tuileries and howled imprecations upon Eugenie's head until the Empress became convinced that her life was in peril. Flight was decided upon, but one plan after another failed until an exit was found by way of the Louvre. The Empress, in disguise, accompanied only by one of her ladies in waiting, was whirled away in a cab to the residence of the American dentist, Dr. Thomas J. Evans.

Lost to all Paris, her party spent the night in the protection of this resident American, and the next day they were driven off in his carriage for flight across France to the Channel and the secret boarding of a yacht for England. With exile, misfortune came in treble measure. The fall of the Empire was followed by the death of the exiled Emperor, Napoleon III., in England three years later, and the killing of the Prince Imperial in battle with the Zulus.

"Sometimes," wrote the Empress in a letter which has recently come to light, bearing date of 1873, "sometimes, on seeing certain children tearing the wings off butterflies and tormenting poor things that cannot show signs of suffering, I have made the comparison that people sometimes pluck out the heart and hurt it without knowing the evil that they do with an eternal smile on their lips." This was written the day before her husband died.

The Empress, in the two score years that followed, found intimate friends in England and interest in travel, including visits to her former haunts in Paris. Dressed in black, she passed almost unnoticed where once she was the leader of one of the most brilliant courts of the nineteenth century. In her occasional interviews she revealed the strain of mournfulness in her life.

"I am the past, the horizon," she said. "There is nothing for me but to wait; my winter is nearly over."

She prepared what she had wished to be her last resting place some years ago by ordering an addition to the mausoleum in the Benedictine Abbey, which she built at Farnborough and where she buried the exiled Emperor and the Prince Imperial.

One instance of Eugenie's former brilliancy recalls the opening of the Suez Canal. She was the centre of the festivities at Cairo upon which the Khedive is said to have spent all of the $11,000,000 in his treasury. The gown she wore at the Khedival ball cost $25,000, and later it served to pay a debt when she fled from Paris. It has since been reported as brought to America for sale to collectors.

It has been estimated that the fortune of the ex-Empress amounted shortly before her death to $30,000,000. A report was published in Paris several years ago that she had been induced to leave her entire estate to the Church, but this was not confirmed at that time, nor had she since made known the intended terms of her will.

A probable heir of Eugenie's fortune, it was said formerly, would be her sister's son, the Duke of Alba, whom she was visiting just before her death in Spain. After a military plot against the French Republic twenty years ago, however, it was reported that the ex-Empress meant to leave her money to the Bonapartist claimant of the throne, Prince Louis, younger son of Prince Jerome Napoleon. Prince Louis, who was born at Paris, July 16, 1864, and became an officer in the Russian Army, was recently living at the Château de Prangins, near Nyon, Switzerland. His elder brother, Prince Victor, husband of princess Clementine of Belgium, abdicated in favor of Prince Louis as chief of the French Imperialists.

It was also reported in England that the ex-Empress's son, the Prince Imperial, had left a widow and infant son. At the time it was not known whether a marriage ceremony had actually been performed, binding the Prince to Miss Lottie Watkins, a beautiful girl whom the ardent young Frenchman met at Woolwich when he was studying at the Military Academy. There was no doubt, however, about there being a son, whether the union was sanctified by the Church or not. The young man became a pupil in a Paris lycée, taking a degree there, and his grandmother was in Paris at the time to congratulate him.

Saw All Her Contemporaries Gone.

Devotees of the Napoleonic tradition have often pointed out, as a coincidence of Eugenie's career, that the destined Empress of Napoleon III. had been born in 1826, on the very day—May 5—on which, five years before, the first and greatest of the Bonapartes had died at St. Helena.

When, moreover, the little Spanish girl first saw the light, a tall, sturdy, eleven-year-old lad named Leopold Otto von Bismarck was playing in the courtyard of an old German country house of Schönhausen, and setting his lips sternly as his eye caught the bullet marks left by the French in its walls twenty years before.

Among a number of promising cadets, too, then working hard for staff appointments at Berlin, figured prominently a slim, taciturn young man of twenty-six, lately arrived from the military school at Copenhagen, where a few old men still remember that the "soldiers' burial ground" outside the city (which his destroying genius peopled with dead half a century later) was the favorite walk of young Helmuth von Moltke.

The Prussian Guards who filed past the front of the palace at Potsdam saw by their King's side a big, ruddy, soldierlike, blond-mustached man in his thirtieth year, known to them only as "Kronprinz Wilhelm," but one day to call himself William I., German Emperor. And all these persons, although they knew it not, were walking along converging paths destined to bring them thereafter into strange and terrible contact with one another and with the newborn infant at Grenada.

Her father—who died when she was hardly 13—sprang from the ancient Genoese family of Porto Carreo, that, migrating to Spain in the fourteenth century, had become by the end of the seventeenth all-powerful over the land of their adoption in the person of that crafty and unprincipled statesman whose intrigues distracted the last moments of the wretched Charles II. of Spain and brought down upon that unhappy kingdom the War of the Spanish Succession.

Her mother, a Kirkpatrick of Scotland, was the lineal descendant of that grim old warrior whose ready dirk, driven hilt deep into the heart of the wounded Comyn, finished the work which Robert Bruce's hasty blow had begun. Bred on such traditions, which added the pride of the Italian and the Spaniard to that of the Scot, the golden-haired girl and her equally beautiful younger sister might well bear themselves proudly, poor and straitened though they were.

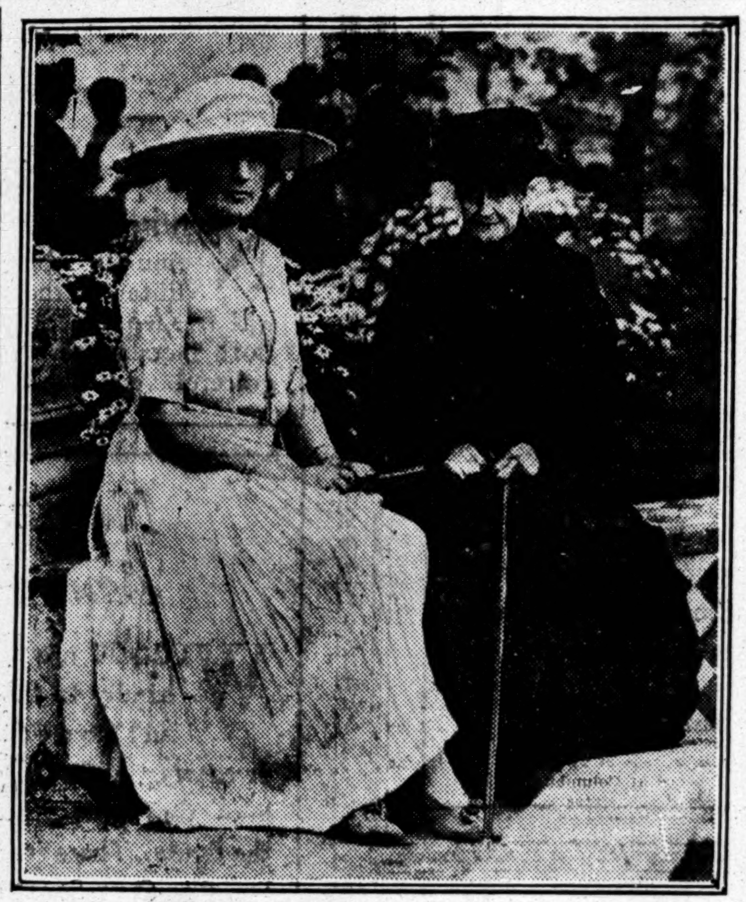
"She looks like a little Queen," said one who watched the child go by. The exclamation was doubtless heard and remembered; but the heiress of the Montijo pride and poverty needed no prompter. The lesson that beauty, like gold, opens all doors to its possessor was one which she early learned and never afterward forgot. The greater part of Eugénie's early childhood was spent in Madrid, where yesterday she died.

When she was rather more than 10 years old the fashionables of Madrid were greatly diverted by a comical story of an abortive attempt to kindle a Bonapartist rising among the French troops at Strasbourg, made by a crack-brained pretender called Louis Napoleon Bonaparte. Little Miss de Montijo doubtless laughed with the rest over "the new Don Quixote who had essayed to conquer a whole realm with his single arm," for the man whom the irony of fate was hereafter to magnify into the terror of all Europe was as yet nothing more than its constant laughing stock.

Respecting the future Empress's school days in the old French city of Toulouse and the English town of Clifton, the fashionable quarter of Bristol, the usual number of myths have of course been manufactured by those would-be picturesque writers who hold that every person destined to future greatness should have a proper sense of the fact from the very first, and behave accordingly. It is possible enough that some respectable English governess may have been greatly upheld in her declining years by the comforting recollection that the Empress of the French had once been graciously pleased to do her the honor of calling her "a cross old cat." But the bulk of the edifying legends interwoven by pious mantuamakers with the youth of their patron saint, who "opened the kingdom of millinery to all believers," may safely be left to the biographers.

The death of Count de Montijo in 1839 had left his family ill provided for, and the most obvious road to distinction for any young woman whose face is her fortune is proverbially an advantageous marriage. Accordingly, when the widowed Countess called to her two pretty and penniless daughters to follow her abroad, they had no choice but to obey the call. But years passed on, and neither of these aristocratic "beggar maids" had found her "King Cophetua."

They figured, indeed, in distinguished circles, but, less fortunate than Cinderella—to whom Eugenie would often sportively compare herself—they found no Prince to woo them. Superstitious like all women of southern blood, they gathered some slight comfort during this weary probation from the prophecy of a reputed possessor of "second sight," who made them the usual vaguely splendid promises of coming exaltation by marriage. No one, not even the great French novelist to whom everything was possible except telling the truth, would have ventured to predict that one of the sisters would be a Duchess and the other an Empress.



The Late Empress Eugenie,

Latest portrait of the widow of Napoleon III., Emperor of the French, taken with Queen Victoria of Spain in Seville, at the residence of the Duke of Alba, nephew of Eugenie, where she spent her 94th birthday, on May 5.

Introduced to Prince Louis.

In a London drawing room Eugénie de Montijo met a woman older than herself, the Countess Walewska, who was destined to share with her, a quarter of a century later, the terrors of that grim September night when incendiary fires blazed around the Tuileries, and the myriad throats of insurgent Paris yelled for the blood of "the Spanish woman." Count Bentivoglio, Mme. Walewska's brother, begged leave to introduce a friend, Prince Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, who, even in his penniless exile in Leicester Square, supposedly with the best years of his life left behind him, was dreaming of the imperial crown of France.

It was soon after, in a poorly furnished third-floor lodging in the Rue St. Antoine at Paris, that a Spanish grandee of the first rank, descended from James II.'s natural son, the warlike Duke of Berwick, came, saw and was conquered, and the younger of the two sisters became Duchess of Alva. What Eugénie thought or felt at this sudden and splendid exaltation of her younger sister has not been recorded, but now mighty events were on the wing, and the wild visions of that moody, heavy-eyed man whom she had once met in London were fast ripening into facts.

The great political earthquake of 1848 came and went, and the December of that year, which transformed the shabby exile of Leicester Square into the President of the French Republic, was but the foreshadowing of another December three years later, when an act of daring treachery worthy of the first Napoleon himself "placed on the head of the imperial burglar who robbed France of her liberty like a thief in the night a crown still red and wet with the innocent blood of his own people."

Whatever crimes Napoleon III. might have committed, the fact remained that he was the wearer of an imperial crown, and the wielder of the whole strength of a mighty and warlike nation. Hence, the other sovereigns of Europe, apart from a few scornful jests on Russia's part, for which she was fated to weep tears of blood three short years later, seemed generally disposed to be civil to her new comrade. But at one point—that of intermarriage—they rigidly drew the line.

Napoleon's Quest of Bride.

Twice did the self-made man of the Tuilleries vainly seek a bride among the royal houses of Germany, and it was while smarting under the second of these disappointments that he encountered at a court ball the fair face and golden hair which he had once admired in London, and which had never been wholly forgotten amid all the cares and crimes of his stormy career. His wooing was brief and businesslike. It was said the young lady, then in her twenty-seventh year, needed little persuasion. Men whispered that the Emperor's most trusted advisers, the men of the Coup d'Etat and the Boulevard massacre, had been unanimous in opposition to the marriage, and that the Princess Mathilde, his cousin, had implored him with tears in her eyes to change his mind before it was too late. "Mon cousin," cried she, bodingly, "ca vous portera malheur," (Cousin, this will bring you misfortune.")

In January, 1853—the fatal month that had witnessed the execution of Charles I. and Louis XVI.—the French priesthood and the French people "hailed with universal acclamation the auspicious wedding of the daughter of Herodias with Judas Iscariot," to quote a bitter phrase of Eugénie's enemies.

With all this, however, there was a womanly heart beating true beneath the hard shell of selfish calculation wherewith nature and society had combined to incrust it, and asserting its presence fitfully ever and anon. Years later when everything connected with the name of Bonaparte was a mark for the jeers and curses of milions, there were some who remembered how the Empress had refused the diamond necklace voted her as a wedding gift by the City of Paris and had directed that the 600,000 francs ($120,000) set apart for this costly ornament should be given to the poor of the capital.

But even her kindness was not free from alloy; the misery which she did not see had no existence for her. That the wholesale butchery of unarmed citizens by which her husband won his crown—a butchery of which veteran soldiers could never speak without a shudder, even after the lapse of many years—never once presented itself to her mind in the light of a crime is abundantly evident from her own words. When a copy of the most tremendous political satire ever penned—Victor Hugo's "Napoleon the Little"—fell into her hands. She exclaimed in pettish astonishment: "What offense can we have given to this M. Hugo, that he should speak of us like that."

For a time, however, all went well. A successful war—the favorite Bonaparte remedy for popular discontent—effaced the blood of murdered Parisians with that of Russian soldiers. The grown-up children of Paris, proud of their new Boulevard de Sebastopol, crowded to see the battered veterans of the Crimea file through the glittering streets of "the capital of the universe," and hailed with deafening cheers the great monarch who had avenged 1812 by 1854.

A series of vast public works, ending at length in a complete rebuilding of Paris itself, kept in good humor the turbulent workmen who might otherwise have been piling up barricades and singing the Marseillaise. The Queen of England and her husband came over to pay a friendly visit to the Emperor and Empress, whose armies had fought side by side with their own against the Russian oppressor.

Birth of the Prince Imperial.

Two great historical events distinguished the month of March, 1856. On the 1st the signature of the Treaty of Paris deprived Russia at one blow of the fruits of thirty years' patient and elaborate strategy. Fifteen days later all France greeted with the thunder of cannon, and of cheers louder still the birth of the Prince Imperial, Napoleon Eugene Louis Jean Joseph Bonaparte.

But although the continuance of the Bonaparte dynasty was thus secured, its consolidation was a less easy matter. "No one knew better than the Empress Eugénie," said an observant critic, "that the throne to which she had been so magically raised rested upon a shaky base. She thought of the future, and saw that her Court was not what she would have wished it to be. All France's most illustrious citizens were in exile or living in hostile retirement.

"The grand seigneurs of the old nobility—such men as the Dukes of Noailles, La Rochefoucauld and Luynes—although every means was tried to win them over, refused, with something more than contempt to appear at the Tuileries, while from foreign Courts came the echoes of biting epigrams uttered by the leading potentates of Europe at the expense of the new régime.

"It was hoped that the political visit which Queen Victoria paid to Paris in 1855 would induce other crowned heads to follow suit, and the crowned heads came indeed, but they would not bring their wives with them. The court receptions continued to be gatherings of enriched adventurers, place hunters, traveling Princes, and foreign tourists. To the very end the Empress felt keenly the odor of disrepute which hung over such a court."

To do this strange woman justice, later critics declared that her own conduct gave no ground whatever for the evil repute which clung so persistently to the founders of the Second Empire. Possessed of absolute power, with the warm blood of the South in her veins, bound to a moody and unattractive man nearly twenty years older than herself, moving in the loosest circles of a capital which has long been the recognized school of immorality for all Europe, she nevertheless preserved her reputation unsullied by even a breath of scandal, and forced her bitterest enemies to admit that so far as her domestic relations were concerned, slander itself could find no fault in the new Empress of France.

Not until 1858 did the mistress of the Tuileries attain any real power in the politics of her adopted country, and that power she owed chiefly to one of those strokes of theatrical effect which are always successful with Frenchmen. On the fatal 14th of January, when Orsini's hand bombs were exploding around the entrance of the Opéra and killing, as murderous bunglers nearly always do, every one except their intended victim, Eugénie's voice rose clear and unfaltering through all the uproar: "Let us go into the Opera House and show them all that we are not afraid." From that day her least friendly critics were fain to acknowledge that the charming dictator of the fashions was something more than a mere frivolous beauty.

The Treaty of Villafranca, in 1859, which humbled France's ancient enemy, Austria, and gave the first impetus to that movement which ended in making Italy an independent and united kingdom, seemed to raise the glory of the French Empire to its highest pitch.

"After the peace of Villafranca," wrote one of Eugénie's ablest biographers, "the Empress strenuously opposed those of the Emperor's counselors who wished to get rid of the Italian question by withdrawing the army of occupation from Rome.

"All the vacillation which marked the imperial policy toward Rome from 1860 to 1870," added the writer in another place, "may be ascribed to the Empress's influence counteracting and generally overriding the cooler and often more liberal impulses of the Emperor and his Ministers."

The shadow of advancing Germany, flushed with recent victory over her Austrian rival, was already broadening along the disputed Rhine. The French Emperor's health was beginning to fail and his experienced physicians had already detected symptoms of the cruel disease which ultimately caused his death.

The French people, true to their characteristic habit of judging everything by the measure of its success, were growling over the Mexican failure, and growing daily more ripe for revolt. One chance alone was left—that of an attack upon Germany, whose calm, contemptuous indifference to France's blustering threats had goaded the excitable Parisians to frenzy.

In vain Marshal Leboeuf urged that France was not ready for battle. Eugénie goaded him into action with a sneer which no soldier could have endured, and exclaimed with childish glee, after forcing on the declaration of war that sealed the doom of her empire. "This is my war!"

But this time the retribution was as swift as it was tremendous. The news of Sedan shook all Paris like an earthquake and let loose at once all the human tigers of Belleville. A raging mob, such as Paris had not seen since the grim days of the first Revolution poured into the palace like a mighty wave, yelling for the blood of "the Bonaparte canaille."

Slinking in a mean disguise through the rabble, Eugenie left her palace forever. One deadlier peril than all crossed her path in the lynx-eyed glance of a street arab of the "Gavroche" type, who screamed to his comrades, "Here she is!" But his voice was lost amid that sky-rending uproar, while a sudden heave of the living sea swept him far away from his intended victim.

An English woman who visited her in exile at Chiselhurst has recorded a characteristic utterance of the ex-Empress in reply to her own remark:

"'Had you died there, madame,' said I, alluding to the attack on the palace, 'you would have at least had the consolation of living forever in history.' 'Yes, that is all very well,' she answered, with the brightest, merriest smile, 'but I should like to live a few years in the world, too.'"

It was said that few were aware at the time, and not many know even now, that had the terrible surgical operation to which Louis Napoleon succumbed in January, 1873, been successful in checking his disease he would have instantly started for France to try one more throw for his lost crown. But it was not to be, and the inexorable justice which added the loss of a husband to that of an empire was yet to make her, whose ambition had rendered so many women childless, a childless woman in her turn. Six years later the bright-eyed boy, who seemed her sole remaining tie to life, accompanied the English army to Zululand, and met there the soldier's death which avenging fate had denied to his guilty father.

The once beautiful and splendid Empress—then become a worn and haggard mourner of middle age—departed a year later on her long pilgrimage to the spot where her only child had fallen. English popular traditions, ever eager to speak well of fallen greatness, dwell tenderly upon the courtesy that re-called the passengers who were respectfully quitting the deck of the steamer in order to leave her undisturbed, and the loving care with which the bereaved mother sought out and occupied in succession every room, however poor and ill-provided, in which her lost darling had lodged on his way to death, till at length her wanderings ended at the lonely hillside whereon a slender pillar of stone marks the spot where the last relic of a mighty empire and the last hope of a broken-hearted woman lie buried together.

Such a career needs no critic; it tells its own tale and points its own moral. The sorrows and sufferings which divine vengeance lets fall sooner or later upon the heads of all great political criminals, although they may avail to soften the sentence of history, can never reverse it. To those who had seen and known her, the dethroned Empress of the French, despite all the evil that she wrought, was rendered sacred by the memory of her bitter grief, her double bereavement, and the awful reverse of fortune which changed the royal wife and mother into a widowed and childless exile. But the impartial historian of the future must pronounce unhesitatingly that few women had such opportunities and that none has ever more miserably cast them away.

68% of Roast Beef is Water, plus 8% waste

We are going to tell you of the costs of other foods compared with Sheffield Milk.

ORDINARY Roast Beef costs 50 cents a pound. Milk contains 88% water. You can buy Sheffield Milk in your own container at 185 Sheffield stores at 5½ cents a pound. It's all food, no waste. Milk requires no preparation. Beef must be prepared and cooked.

A pound of beef contains only twice the solid food that you get in a pound of milk, yet you pay nearly ten times as much for the beef.

If you are really interested in the cost of eating you can save a lot of money and be healthier, if you will do a little figuring. Milk is the cheapest of all foods of animal origin—bar none.

OCCULT TIPS FUTILE IN ELWELL MYSTERY

CRANKS WORK OVERTIME

Amateur Sherlock Holmeses and Persons with Enemies Send In "Clues" That Are Valueless.

The second month since the Elwell murder started yesterday with the mystery apparently as far from solution as it was at 8:25 o'clock on the morning of June 11, when Mrs. Marie Larsen, the housekeeper of Elwell, walked into his residence at 244 West Seventieth Street and found her employer dying in a chair in the small reception room, with a bullet through his head.

The belief that the crime would ultimately be explained and the murderer arrested was encouraged yesterday by members of the Homicide Squad under Captain Arthur Carey, who have been steadily working to find the person with the motive and the opportunity to kill Elwell, and have been keeping silent as to the progress they have made.

One consolation which the investigators have found for their inability to clear up the case is the fact that supernatural agencies have likewise failed. From the conflicting theories put forward by ouija-board operators and patrons of mediums, it is apparent that the supernatural detective agencies are as deplorably baffled as the mystery experts of the Police Department and the District Attorney's office.

For more than three weeks District Attorney Swann and the Police Department have been getting occult tips. The District Attorney's mail has been fat with them. The crime has evidently made as great a sensation in pure ether as in the muggy atmosphere of New York. District Attorney Swann said that the ouija-board letters did not interest him, but that he had a man specially assigned to read all anonymous communications and to give those which contained apparent information to him personally.

Hope in Anonymous Letters.

"In many criminal cases we get valuable information in this way," said Mr. Swann. "Crooks are always giving each other away. There is no such thing as honor among thieves, or other criminals, and they frequently take this method of informing against one another. Anonymous letters have helped in the solution of many crimes, but so far no anonymous letters have contained any information of value regarding the Elwell case. There are no developments in it, and I do not care to discuss any speculative phase of it."

The ouija-board letters have joined the archives of the wastebasket as fast as they arrived. A number of letters written in good faith have been investigated, but, like all the other Elwell clues, have apparently led nowhere. Some letters, which bore evidence that the authors were crazy, were consigned to the "nut" file, which is kept for its possible future value in dealing with lunatics.

The anonymous letters on the Elwell case number many hundreds. They are divided into four main classes. The most numerous are those communicating supernatural information. The next are the products of the unaided human reason, the theories of the Morris chair mystery untwisters and unpaid deductive reasoners. The next class is composed of hearty haters who name their bosses, rivals in love, landlords, the suspected milk thieves of the adjoining apartment, the players of machine pianos across the court, dark-skinned persons with foreign accents and others who are personally or by occupation obnoxious to the writers.

"He wore dress clothes and smelt awfully of cigarettes," one letter said, in describing a person suspected, on a priori grounds, of the Elwell murder. Other letters recommended that certain persons, whose craftiness had obliterated outward causes of suspicion, be apprehended, placed in the Tombs and sweated, whereupon it was predicted that they would confess, if guilty.

In the fourth class are those who have furnished real information with an apparent bearing on the case. All four classes, however, have failed equally to advance the investigation.

Ouija Boards Accuse Score.

The ouija board leads even the District Attorney's office in the number of persons brought under suspicion. More than a score of persons stand accused by name on ouija evidence. With impartial ferocity the little instrument had levelled its ghostly accusation against men and women in equal numbers. Some boards have yielded the names in full at the first solicitation, evincing by their speed an anxiety to unburden themselves of the heavy secret or to be first with the news. Some boards have imparted only a first name, others have named only the last, and others have clung to the suicide theory.

In spite of their more than mortal knowledge, the ouijas apparently have followed the news closely and shown a disposition to suspect the persons named in the morning newspapers, although they also have named many dark horses. Most of them have followed the rainbow like the official investigators in describing the dress of women. The disembodied detectives whose unravelments of the crime have been relayed through mediums and their public-spirited clients to the District Attorney's office also have delivered a large assortment of men and women who fired the fatal shot. Several have described the manner of the crime in great detail, sometimes giving independent conceptions of the tragedy, but usually confirming the supposition that the newspapers have a large psychic circulation, and occasionally being curiously misled by inaccurate statements which have been published.

In the meantime the official investigators admit that they have not got much closer to the heart of the mystery than the amateurs and the spirits.

TRAILEDAS BURGLAR BY GIRL

Nurse Causes Arrest of Intruder Emerging from Coal Chute.

A man who said he was Edward Hazlett of 169 Forsyth Street was held without bail on a charge of burglary by Magistrate Fish in Flatbush Court yesterday afternoon. The complainant was Miss Anna Coleman, a nurse in the employ of Dr. Arthur Quinn, who said she saw Hazlett making his escape from the basement of the Quinn home at 16 Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn, by climbing out of a coal chute. The man had been frightened away by footsteps he heard on the floor above, she told the court.

The intruder apparently got into the house the same way he got out. Miss Coleman said she saw him lift the coal chute cover and clamber to the sidewalk. She followed him a block before she met Policeman Daly of the Bergen Street Station, who arrested the man on the nurse's complaint.

WOMEN FAINT IN FERRY JAM.

Staten Island's Record Crowd of 150,000 Causes Congestion.

More than 150,000 visitors to Staten Island, said by the police and transportation officials to be the largest Sunday crowd Richmond Borough has ever known, caused a bad jam last night at the municipal ferryhouses at St. George. Police reserves were sent out from two stations, and, in addition, policemen stationed in booths were relieved and hurried to the ferryhouses.

About forty women fainted in the crush about the ticket booths and were treated by ambulance surgeons from the Staten Island Hospital. Twenty children were reported lost.

Seven boats were running on the municipal ferry line, instead of four, as normally. As the crowd increased, shortly after 6 o'clock last evening two more boats were obtained from other lines. The nine boats were enough to carry the crowd, but the lack of sufficient ticket sellers kept up the congestion.

CITIZENS TO KEEP TRUCKS.

Will Be Ready for Future Pier Strikes—526 Tons Moved in Week.

Merchandise totaling 4,381¾ tons has been moved by the independent trucks of the Citizens' Transportation Committee from the four coastwise piers where strikes are in progress, according to figures made public by the committee yesterday. The merchandise moved last week with an average of twenty-two trucks was 526 tons.

The Citizens' Trucking Company, incorporated by the committee to fight the trucking tie-up at the piers, will continue its operations, but with a greatly reduced force. A small number of trucks will be kept as a nucleus in case similar trouble develops again.

ARREST 16 AT ROCKAWAY.

Men in Bathing Costume Tour Beach in Moving Van.

While Mayor John F. Hylan and Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, were making an inspection of Rockaway Beach yesterday, Patrolman Frank Myers telephoned to the Rockaway Beach Police Station for reserves to quell a crowd of disorderly persons. Sergeant McManus detailed officers to 106th Street, where the disturbance was reported. Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Whalen followed in an automobile. When they arrived at the scene the crowd applauded the Mayor and compelled him to stand in his automobile and acknowledge the ovation.

The police arrested sixteen men who were in a moving van in bathing costumes. They were charged with disorderly conduct and will be arraigned in the Jamaica Court today.

HUGO SUGGESTS LAWS TO AID THE FARMERS

Would Revise Agricultural Statutes and Increase Appropriation for Rural Schools.

AGAINST DAYLIGHT SAVING

Doubts Advisability of Electing Commissioner of Agriculture or Head of Markets.

ALBANY, July 11.—Declaring himself in favor of a revision of the State agricultural law, an increase in the State's appropriation for the support of rural schools, the repeal of the daylight saving law and certain other changes which he believes would work to the agricultural welfare of the State, Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State, and a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, today issued a statement as outlining his policy along agricultural lines.

"Agriculture is the great basic industry in this State, and everything should be done to make farming more remunerative, more productive and especially more attractive, in order to retain our young men on the farms," said Mr. Hugo.

"I am in favor of the repeal of the daylight saving law; likewise I believe that there should be a revision of the State agricultural law to the end that legislation and administration may be brought up to the present needs of the farm.

"As the tendency in this State appears to favor the shortening of the ballot, I doubt the advisability of electing a Commissioner of Agriculture and a Commissioner of Foods and Markets by direct vote, as has been advocated in certain circles.

"I believe that the school law should be revised to give greater authority to local boards in the management of rural schools, and the proportion of State moneys for the support of country schools should be increased.

"I believe that farmers and other industrial groups should be protected in the right of collective bargaining within proper limitations.

"I am in accord with the principle that farming is a business, and that to keep people contented on the farm in producing food the products should sell for enough to pay the cost of production as well as a reasonable profit.

"The transportation and marketing of food must be regulated in the interests of the producer and consumer. I am in favor of any plan that will work out in a more economic system in milk distribution, with a fair pree to producer and consumer.

"There should be developed through the Foods and Markets Department a more economic and efficient system for the distribution of food, the prices regulated by the law of supply and demand and an open market, that the producer may receive an accurate return and a fair share of the consumer's dollar."

IDENTIFY ABANDONED BABY.

Brooklyn Police Hunt Mother of Boy Left in Grocery Store.

The Brooklyn police are looking for Mrs. Vincenzo Morcerelli, who it is alleged abandoned her two-year-old son, Angelo, by leaving the child in a grocery store at 27 Floyd Street, on Saturday night. The child was turned over to the Children's Society. There was no mark of identification on the child's clothing, with the exception of a card bearing the address 191 Buonimitri Street. There is no such street in Brooklyn.

George L. O'Connor of the Missing Persons Bureau, remembered that on July 2, Vincenzo Morcerelli had reported to the police that his wife had left him with her child, leaving two other boys, seven and five years, at home with the father. Morcerelli lives at 191 Boerum Street and he identified the abandoned boy, who was turned over to him.

One hundred years ago, the use of the pomme de terre, or potato, was strenuously opposed in Greece.

The reason given was that the potato was the very identical apple with which Satan beguiled Eve out of Paradise.

Today, the potato, made into a delightfully piquant salad at CHILDS, is luring the daughters of Eve back into paradise.

"Unforeseen difficulties" is too often used in contracting to excuse delays or extra charges.

We dislike to make use of it, even when justified. But we must tell you about this one: When "unforeseen" rock conditions developed on a recent job, our engineers promptly suggested a cantilever foundation construction that saved the owners thousands of dollars of "extras."

AMERICA'S BACKWARDNESS ON THE SEA.

The alluring subject of the sea forms the basis of a timely article next Sunday in The New York Times Book Review and Magazine. It treats of America's neglect to avail herself of the present opportunity to restore the former pre-eminence of the Yankee Merchant Marine.—Advt.

FEARS JAPAN CRISIS FROM CALIFORNIA

By JOHN FOORD.

terms. Now it is proposed to take away from Japanese children the rights accorded to the offspring of parents of every other nationality born on American soil, and not only this, but under the new system, whose adoption will be contingent on the result of the popular vote, Japanese parents will not be allowed to act as trustees for their minor children, and the administration of their property interests will be placed entirely in the hands of State officers.

"Our people have patiently endured one denial after another of the rights originally accorded to them, but the time has come to let your people frankly understand that further deprivation can provoke only a rankling sense of wrong, the consciousness of being discriminated against. If there be 'undesirables and moral degenerates' among the Japanese in California, the laws of the State and nation give ample sanction for their deportation.

"Send them back home, and I shall be among the first to await them on their landing at Yokohama and see that they engage in some better business than that of soiling the good name of their country in a foreign land, proprovided that the American Government abolish all the prohibitory or discriminatory laws and treat the Japanese on equal footing with Americans. I ask disproof of the assertion that the average morality of the Japanese in California is quite equal to that of any other foreign people who were there before them.

"I see that, according to the Nippon Dempo cable service under Washington date of June 8, Senator Phelan 'charges that the Japanese Government has violated its immigration agreement with the United States and declares that a Congressional investigation into the matter will be begun in July.' Let the subject be investigated and produce any proof that our Government has issued a passport to any Japanese citizen not covered by the terms of the 'gentleman's agreement.'

Invites Congressional Inquiry.

"We would be glad to have a special Congressional investigator come over here and witness the elaborate precautions taken by our official inspectors to prevent the concealment of stowaways on outgoing steamers. If your Congressional investigators can improve on these methods, both our Government and the steamship companies will be their debtors.

"The Washington dispatch I have referred to announcing the decision of the House Immigration Committee to conduct an inquiry into pending Japanese questions during the Summer adds that the effort is to be renewed to pass legislation barring the Japanese from the Pacific Slope, and prohibiting Japanese children, born in the United States, from acquiring American citizenship.

"Let me mention the report of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, April 27, 1920, that when the conference between the Japanese and their San Francisco visitors adjourned on March 24, the declaration was placed on record by the San Franciscans that 'It was the general sentiment that a beginning had been made by the conference which might lead to the possible solution of some of the international difficulties between Japan and the United States, inasmuch as the American-Japanese Relations Committees of both Tokio and San Francisco had pledged themselves, before the conclusion of the conference, to use their utmost endeavors to bring about a situation so that these vital and intricate questions, which concern the peace of both nations, cannot be used by the politicians and agitators to bring discord between Japan and the United States, but can be referred to some impartial committee appointed by both Governments to study carefully and to suggest a solution.'

"In the broader field of American opinion I am keenly conscious of the fact that Japan is not so much admired and so implicitly trusted as she used to be. As you are aware, I first went to the United States forty-nine years ago and was educated in the public schools of Boston, afterward entering the Harvard Law School, where I graduated in 1878. I shall never cease to recall with pleasure my eight years' residence among your people, from whom I found everywhere a most cordial reception and a most hospitable welcome. Their kindness has left upon my mind an enduring impression, and has made me regard the United States as my second home.

"This was the more easy because I had seen the executive branch of our Government reorganized according to the principles and methods of the departments in Washington, and our rules of administration drawn from the statute laws of the United States. After this the Japanese financial policy was modeled on your own, and our National Bank system was organized after the American pattern.

"These were the immediate results of the Anglo-American civilization brought to us by Commodore Perry, acting under the instructions of his Government. Ever since that time, Japan, following closely the advice received from Americans and their Government, has tried with all her might to attain an honorable position in the family of nations. As you may remember, I visited your city during our war with Russia, and had the great honor of being entertained at a dinner given by General Stewart L. Woodford, which was attended by more than 100 men, representing all the best and highest in the City of New York.

"On that occasion I received warm and unanimous applause when I told them that, in going to war, we were not only acting as the pioneers of Anglo-American civilization in Asia, but were promoting the policy favored by your people and your Government in Washington from the time of President Fillmore to that of my life-long friend, President Roosevelt.

"I took down at that time these sentences from one of the public addresses that you yourself made in regard to the great conflict, because they seemed to me to be so profoundly true: 'So it has come about that a people which is the latest offspring of our civilization, the child of the Western world's old age, is fighting not only for its own ideals, but for its very existence against the northern colossus that, in subjugating Asia, has become more Asiatic than the Asiatics themselves. It is a singular paradox that the battle of human freedom which was won against the hosts of Persia at Marathon and Salamis should be waged today by a people of unmixed Asiatic blood against an empire which calls itself European, and claims to be the champion of white men against the yellow race.'

Civilization's iPoneer in the East.

"Your people are not alone among the nations in having short memories, and I may be permitted to remind them that the real stake in the Russo-Japanese war was the future of Anglo-American civilization in the Far East. We fought the battle and we won, and we have some right to claim a place among the nations conformable with the elevation of our national ideals and the sacrifices we have made to defend them. It must occur to the thoughtful men among your people that it would have been a very different Asia today had Japan come out of that war vanquished instead of victorious.

"There is an old proverb in China, 'To play one foreign power against another,' and foreigners can help China along the path of progress, that opens for her such splendid possibilities, only by standing together. Let us lay aside all considerations concerning the immense commercial potentialities of China, and the imperative need of harmonious international co-operation for their development, and reflect for a moment on the vital importance to the future peace of the world, and to the future progress of mankind, of the stability and unity of the great Chinese Republic. China will be a blessing or a curse to the world, just in proportion as she is able to take and to hold her place in the family of nations. Japan is a good deal more interested than America can possibly be in seeing a strong, self-governing China take the place of the present disorganized condition.

"We cannot, any more than you can, do much to help China if we are to deal with her in the supercilious way of a superior people. But you will pardon me for saying that it will be easier for us than for you to learn to regard the difficulties of China in the same spirit as we approach our own, and to treat the Chinese people as, in all essential respects, our equals. The American nation will never play the rôle that properly belongs to them in the peaceful development of Asia till they are able to judge Asiatic peoples by the standard of conduct instead of by that of race.

"If Chitna and Japan stand for ideals as high as your own—maintain social conventions and political institutions that will not suffer by comparison with yours—then I hold they must be to all intents and purposes dealt with in a footing of absolute equality. From the American point of view, that may be regarded as a hard saying, but it is my profound conviction that it carries with it a truth which all the great English-speaking communities will have to accept and act upon, if their place in the world's great hereafter is to be at all comparable to that which it is today."

AUSTRALIA-JAPAN DISPUTE.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

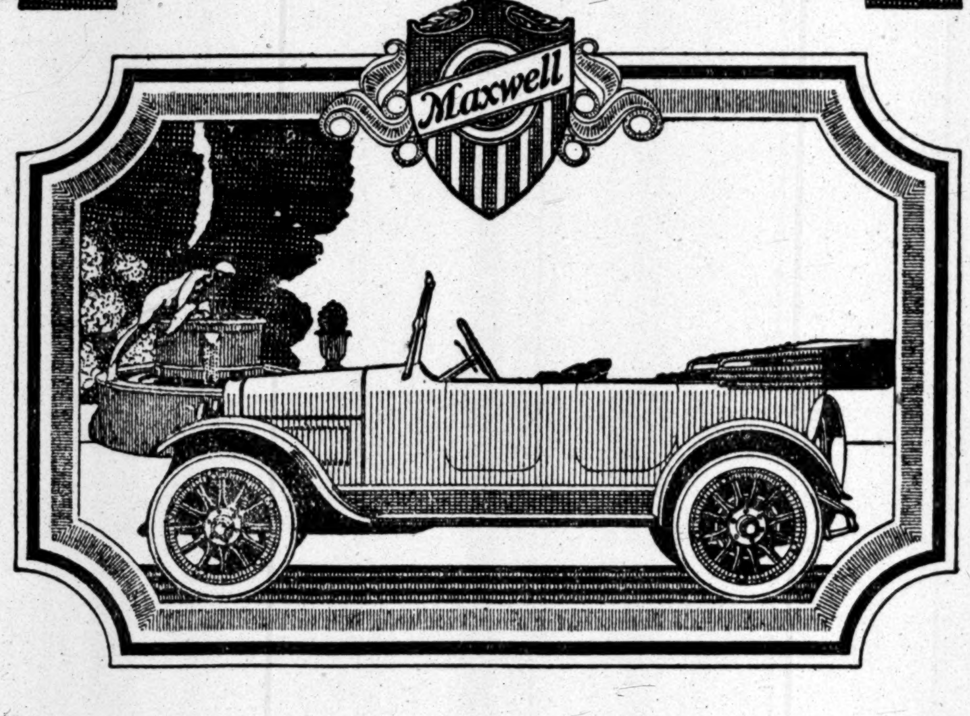
PARIS, July 11.—Japan has found a new outlet for her population in Queensland and Australia and the opposition of the Australians to Japanese intrusion has increased to a dangerous point.

A recent law was passed by both houses of the Australian Parliament imposing a tax of $500 a head on Asiatic immigrants. It was sent to the Governor General for his signature, but under instructions from the British foreign office he refused to indorse the law.

Meanwhile Australian officials have been attempting to collect the tax and the Japanese, backed by their consuls, have refused.

The Australians do not want the Japanese for the same reasons that California does not want them.

The only way out for the British Government is to form a new alliance which will take the place of the Japanese document in protecting England's Asiatic interests, and they believe America's future in the Far East will force her to follow the same course."



The Value of a Dollar is Expanded in a

MAXWELL

by Special Steels

The Maxwell now has the attention of many wise heads who are seeking how to get more value out of a dollar.

They find a Maxwell gives them:
1. All the speed they desire.
2. More comfort at the wheel than many larger cars.
3. Surprisingly long mileage on gasoline, oil and tires.
4. A marked freedom from trouble.
5. A remarkable dollar for dollar value in the list price.

Special steels in the Maxwell cut down the costs and build up the efficiency.

These are steels made to Maxwell's own formulae and they equal the steels, pound for pound, in any car built.

They are of great strength. They make possible light weight construction, which is the goal of scientific engineering.

Why carry around useless weight? Why burden engine and tires with superfluous pounds?

Costly as these steels are, they pay back handsome returns in ever increasing friendships for Maxwell. They build up sales, decrease "overhead" and daily enlarge the great Maxwell family. Today in size nearly 400,000, and growing at the rate of 100,000 a year.

Over 2% More Sugar

The highest extraction is the reason why Fulton mills and crushers represent the highest value in the cane sugar field.

More than 2 per cent more sugar is the Fulton mill's basis of value to the sugar industry and to sugar capital—in the production of a basic human necessity. Over 2 per cent more extraction than is possible with any other mill or process is the broad economic foundation on which the great Fulton industry rests, and the reason why Fulton milling equipment is the right hand of the sugar industry the world over.

Pioneers in the making of sugar mill machinery, the Fulton Company today are the only manufacturers in the world who manufacture only sugar machinery and the complete mechanical equipment of a plantation, including the power plant—the whole embracing every stage in the handling of sugar cane from the cartip to the delivery of the juice.

Insured efficiency and protection of the Fulton equipment against breakdown during the comparatively short crushing season has solved or surmounted the gravest difficulty which can confront the sugar producers—through a service that is almost without a peer in any industry. Fulton's universal distribution of duplicate parts and the maintenance of a field service of engineers and executives in the great cane sugar centers are two of the reasons why Fulton stands alone at the head of milling equipment makers—and an elemental reason why Fulton equipment enters into plantation values.

Fulton mills and crushers uphold their long-established standard for low maintenance, long life, high extraction and maximum capacity.

The Fulton Iron Works Company enjoys a fundamental advantage of central location at St. Louis as a manufacturing site unsurpassed in relation to labor, raw material, rates and shipping facilities, with about equal access to all of the great American ports—rendering the shipper independent of embargoes, strikes or tie-ups in any one section, and assuring timely delivery to all parts of the world.

he was about to sail from Liverpool last month on his perilous adventure.

"This is not mere bravado," he continued in an interview with a Lloyds Sundays News man, "nor is it the result of a silly bet! If I thought by doing this I should get killed I would not entertain the idea for a minute.

"I shall succeed. I have every confidence in my barrel, which is built of two-inch oak, six feet one inch in height, thirty-two inches in diameter at the middle and twenty-eight inches at the bottom. It has ten stout hoops and is padded throughout. I have a life-saving apparatus which will fit over my back and body, and when this is blown out I become twice my normal size. Right at the top of the barrel I have a safety valve or tap which I shall be able to unscrew and look out through. Inside is a breathing apparatus specially made by Professor Hill of Loughton, near London.

"With all this apparatus I shall be well prepared to go through the Whirlpool Rapids, which I hope to do if I get over the falls all right. My intention is to do the two feats at once. My object in doing this? Well, I am going to make quite a lot of money. Arrangements are being made for a film company to take a picture of my adventure. Then while I am over there I shall attempt a double parachute descent from an airplane, and a picture will be taken of that. With these pictures I shall tour all over the world and give a lecture on my experiences and the thrills I have enjoyed. I am going out to do the biggest thing of my life."

Although a barber, Stephens, who was 60 years old, had risked his life many times in all sorts of dare-devil performances. Here are some of his reported feats:

Standing before American knife-throwers.

ALLEGE BIG AIRCRAFT FRAUD

Makers Accused of Obtaining Millions from Public Funds

Henry Woodhouse, editor and publisher of Aerial Age, in a letter sent to Attorney General Palmer last week declared that he was prepared to submit to a grand jury evidence which will enable the Department of Justice to recover large sums of public funds, which, he charged, were obtained illegally from Government agencies by airplane manufacturers and by other individuals.

Mr. Woodhouse asks that investigations be instituted immediately before a Grand Jury, alleging that the accused have endeavored to discredit and destroy the source of income of persons with knowledge of the conspiracies and that he personally has been the victim of such plots. All the evidence which he is prepared to present, Mr. Woodhouse says is new and is supported by affidavits which have come into his possession.

The letter also alleges an attempt to obtain the support of Mr. Woodhouse and his publications in a scheme to destroy airplanes which cost $100,000,000, and an attempt to gain subsidies maintains the distinctive character it had in Mr. Stewart's lifetime, to which has been added the life and spirit of Mr. Stewart's old friend, its present owner, whose pride and signature govern all our undertakings in New York as well as Philadelphia.

JOHN WANAMAKER

The prosperity of this business since the new sign was placed at the corner of Ninth Street and Broadway on the old A. T. Stewart building a quarter century ago—

is still there. Across Ninth Street from Broadway to Fourth Avenue, the big New Building more than twice as high as the Stewart building looms up, doing a noble part as a staunch witness to the enduring principles of the two founders of this great, ever-increasing business.

Mr. Stewart's first quality of merchandise;

A fair price and but one price;

A wide civic and national vision—fixed a famous leadership that has not died and never will.

The A. T. S. and J. W. flags of business principles are nailed to the mast as business signals to the public.

A black satin Cape-wrap for Women

For this time of year,—and all through the summer season, a light and becoming wrap to wear over an afternoon and evening costume is necessary.

For the woman who always displays the best of conservative and smart taste in her wardrobe is a cape of fine black satin—a cape simply made, with a well-cut shoulder cape over it and falling to the waistline. This cape is lined at the shoulders only, and so is not heavy, but falls in graceful folds and allows the wearer to use it on warm days when a heavier wrap would be uncomfortable.

Second floor, Old Building.

Philippine Lingerie

Newly arrived and specially priced.

The Imported Shops have just received a shipment of Philippine lingerie consisting of nightgowns and envelope chemises made by hand of sheerest batiste. They have been priced very low, and the result is a group of unusually good values.

At $3.95

Nightgowns—round, square and V necks on sleeveless patterns or with small sleeves. Scalloped edges and neat hand embroidered designs.

At $5

Nightgowns — of excellent fineness, both in material and embroidery. Delicate butterfly patterns and lace inserts are but two examples. One excellent tailored model has beautifully hemstitched flat casing.

Third floor, Old Building.

A Remarkable Corset!

The L. R. Athletic at $9

There is hardly any of the usual corset boning or weight. They are designed in such a way that they are decidedly stylish in effect and yet are so light and flexible that they permit of the utmost freedom and action. Made of shell pink batiste, with bands of frilled elastic at top, front steels faced with plush, and lacings below front steel. 4 silk elastic garters.

Third floor, Old Building.

Day-time Frocks for Miss 14 to 20

Each possessing a distinctive charm

Three charming frocks in taffeta and drop-stitch tricolette have just come into the young women's salons.

One of taffeta

Especially interesting is the very full skirt of one taffeta frock. The petal motif is accentuated by the scalloped and corded hem and repeated in scalloped cords at regular intervals on the skirt. The quaint basque waist has a plain round neck and much abbreviated sleeves, each finished with a cord. A narrow picot edged gros-grain ribbon of copenhagen blue forms the girdle. Colors are navy blue, brown and black. $81.50.

One of foulard

Foulard of navy blue and small check figure is combined with taffeta in another frock. Is shirred on to the waist to give an apron effect in the front, and is used for collar, cuffs and piping in the back. The silhouette favored by this frock is attained by a very much puffed skirt which comes within a few inches of the hem. Daintily embroidered batiste collar finishes the V neck—in navy blue only. $72.50.

One of tricolette

Drop-stitch tricolette is the material from which a third frock is fashioned. The straight line of the long-waisted blouse is continued by narrow panels on the skirt which are looped under the hem. Braid rosettes are used on the blouse to accentuate the straight line from the shoulder. Colors are navy blue, brown and black. $65.

Second Floor, Old Building.
Tenth street side.

Men's Summer Driving Gloves

Men's tropical automobile driving gloves will be found cool and comfortable for summer wear.

They have cape palm, clock backs, with self stitching, and fasten with one clasp. Come in gray and tan. Complete line of sizes. $4 pair.

CROPS, CARS AND FARMERS.

The next food budget issued by the Government will be pleasanter reading than the last. Food must become cheaper, because there is unexpected abundance, according to the July report just issued for both Canada and the United States. The world's price could hardly stand up under the enlarged supplies, and a hundred million hungry foreigners would be fed, if the foodstuffs could be moved to them. But the abundant supplies are mockery alike to them and to the farmers here, who are hungry for profits out of reach because of the impossibility of moving their crops to market. In Kansas alone there are 25,000,000 bushels of last year's harvest unmoved and more than a hundred million bushels now await reaping. There are over 28,000,000 bushels more wheat than was expected a month ago, 7,000,000 more bushels of oats, 8,000,000 more of barley. There is a promise of 112,000,000 pounds of tobacco above the previous maximum, and 11,000,000 more bushels of rice than ever produced before. Corn will be a full crop, but not a record breaker, although it is still early to estimate it. Last year's wheat remaining on the farms is put at 47,756,000 bushels, against 19,261,000 a year ago. Altogether there will be 856,000,000 bushels of wheat.

These figures are like water in the sight of Tantalus. To farmers, sorrow's crown of sorrow is memory of the times when their railway rates were higher, and there was a car supply to match the crops. Senator Capper says that 480 cars a day for two months could not get the old crop of wheat in Kansas out of the way of the new crop, but on the day reported fifty elevators could get only seven cars. This is exasperating to producers and consumers on both sides the ocean. The crops must be moved to maintain the farmers' credit and purchasing power and to relieve Europe. Nothing in the money world equals the importance of the crops and their marketing. Last year the farmers pocketed twenty-five billions, double manufacturing, transportation or any other economic factor. In 1919 agricultural products exported exceeded four billions by about as much as all other products exceeded three billions. The figures are as momentous abroad as at home, in consideration of the fact that it will not be possible for cars and ships to carry what the farms will supply.

The crop difficulty merely points a general moral. Compared with prewar mileage, we have 6 per cent. more miles of railway and a deficiency of, say, a quarter of a million cars to carry traffic which has increased in rough proportion to an increase of 85 per cent. in bank clearings, reflecting both bigger crops and general trade. The railways have increased their tonnage moved, despite all difficulties, but are losing money in proportion to their public service. The latest report of the Pennsylvania showed an operating ratio of 111 per cent.; that is to say, it cost 11 per cent. more to do the business than it earned. The Pennsylvania is mentioned because it is far from being the worst case, and it is safe to mention it because the operating loss of $23,455,560 in four months does not trouble the company during the guarantee period.

We commend the farmers for consolation to Clifford Thorne, Glenn Plumb, and in general all who are sure that they could improve upon the railways' methods of operation, and who have taught that what the railways needed was lower rates. The farmers are not satisfied with what they have done to harm themselves through their indifference to what happened to the railways, but at the week-end they were demanding that the Government should not sell the Government ships to private operators, but should operate them, so that rates could be controlled more efficiently than under private operation. In the language of the Farmers' National Council propaganda from Washington, "it is imperative "that this act of gross injustice to "farmers [the Jones Shipping bill] be "repealed at the earliest possible moment." The nation's shipping policy, like its railway policy, is too important to be dealt with upon consideration of any class alone, even although that class is economically the nation's most important.

MORE BUT NOT MERRIER.

Chicago has seen many strange gatherings, but never can have harbored one more queer than the assemblage now striving there to found a Third Party. It may be a Thirteenth or Thirtieth before all is over. For the delegates have so long been violently discontented with whatever is, or can be, that they are now discontented with one another. The Labor Party glares hard at the Single Taxers. The American Constitutional Party—a pretty alias for Hearst—will have nothing to do with the Non-Partisan League. The freakish and fanatic gentlemen given the job of drawing up a platform which will unite all factions thus have a task beside which making oil and water mix would be easy. It is gravely stated that the promoters of the convention are still hopeful of a happy outcome. They admit that there is as yet no agreement on the name of the new party, that its principles refuse to be harmonized, and that no one has an idea who can be got to stand as the candidate. In all other respects everything is plain sailing.

Can a political party be created which is "dedicated to the proposition" that all men are entitled to be dissatisfied with all other men? For that, in effect, is what the proposed Third Party comes to. It is a plan for organizing disorganization. It is a scheme to build a party platform out of miscellaneous grouches. Existing parties are dismissed as melancholy failures. The fifteen or twenty million voters composing them are either fools or knaves. Go to, quoth the Forty-Eighters, let us show them how to start a party that shall fit the needs of the nation as a glove fits the hand. But, alas, even among such celestial minds there are irascibilities. When the time comes to construct instead of merely railing, they discover that they do not see eye to eye; that they not only disagree but distrust; that one begins to have horrid doubts of the other's soundness in the true anarchic faith. Hence the general air of sadness in the reports of the Third Party struggling to be born. It is far from being a case of the more the merrier.

The differences are not all internal. Outsiders who want something of the Third Party do not agree about the outlook for getting it. There are the Sons of Irish Freedom, for example. They had been encouraged to expect great things from the new party. In fact, The Irish World had waxed quite dithyrambic about it:

> The Democratic Party is dead.
> Room for the coming of the party of liberty!

But immediately came along The Gaelic American to remark, with a phlegm not at all Hibernian, that Irish hopes of a Third Party "have nothing to stand on." It cruelly added that "it is foolish in the extreme to think "that between now and November a "party capable of defeating both "Democrats and Republicans could be "organized, financed and properly "equipped."

We are confident, however, that none of these things will move the Forty-Eighters. They are not thinking of success, as mortals count success. They simply have bitter protests which they somehow must manage to utter; angry objections which they must express or die. What they are really about is not founding a party but making a defiant gesture. If they can contrive to combine with that a comprehensive curse on all existing political conditions they will leave Chicago feeling, for the first time in many months, satisfied. That satisfaction would not long endure, but if it amuses them while it lasts and does not harm anybody else, as it certainly will not, why begrudge them the fleeting pleasure?

THE CATCH QUESTION.

It is an interesting question which the Director of the Institute for Public Service presents to readers of The Times, and one to which the answer is more difficult than at first sight appears. A part of a test given to graduates of Teachers College ran as follows:

> If ontogeny invariably ingeminates phylogeny, circumscribe the word giving the location of the OURCQ; if not, underscore the word that locates the MANDIBLE.
> England Foot Utah Face Peru
> France Arm India

Mr. Allen apparently regards the question as a mere "catch" and the phrasing of it mere jargon, hinting that in such examinations is to be found the true reason for the shortage of teachers. But is he quite justified? The question can be stated in simple English. It is whether the life history of the individual invariably duplicates the life history of the race. We know that the embryo develops through most of the stages of evolution. But it does not do so "invariably." For one thing, the life of the individual is too brief, too compact. Much more significant is the fact of individual variations from type, which are a leading factor in evolutionary change. De Vries has observed "mutations" so marked as to warrant the theory that new varieties may arise in a single generation. It is clear that the life history of the individual does not "invariably" duplicate that of the species or race. Consequently the keyword is "mandible," and, as that means the lower jaw, the answer is a line under "face."

It is, of course, possible that the long words lie outside the field of instruction at Teachers College, and in that case Mr. Allen's scorn is unquestionably justified. But, though we have no definite knowledge on the point, we venture to say that they do not. Biology is now recognized as a basic subject, not only in natural science but in history and sociology. It should certainly form a leading part of every teacher's education. The question in hand, moreover, touches upon one of the essential facts in the science, a clear understanding of which reveals a grasp upon the subject as a whole. In other respects the question is revealing. Any one who is inexact in the use of words would be likely to miss the force of "invariably" and so go wrong. Any one careless in following instructions would be likely to circumscribe "face" instead of underlining it.

An examination made up wholly of such questions would undoubtedly be a freak examination and quite inadequate as a test of the intending teacher's ability. But as a means of revealing a knowledge both accurate and broad, combined with the equally valuable quality of gumption, it could not easily be excelled.

THE WAR ON THE SEA.

The first installment of the official German history of the war at sea, which has just been published in Berlin, discloses the fact that the Kaiser and his Admirals were mystified by the disappearance, or invisibility, of the Grand Fleet after war had begun. Aggressive action was expected and feared, but for a considerable period the only ships reported in the North Sea were light cruisers, destroyers and submarines. The curious result was that the German Admiralty had no policy; it was in a quandary, always suspecting a diversion or demonstration on a major scale and wondering when the blow would fall. It was decided to risk only the light cruisers and hold back the larger ships for the sea fight which must be imminent. We know that Great Britain adopted the same tactics, but from no nervousness about the issue of a general action. The initial volume of the German war history, written with a sailor's frankness by Commander O. Groos, gives the impression that, despite the boastful tone of the Kaiser, German naval officers had a wholesome respect for the ships and personnel of the British Navy. It is now known that Scapa Flow was not well protected from submarine torpedo attack, and that the British awoke every morning to thank God that the enemy did not know the weakness of the great base.

It is singular that the Germans did not test their submarine flotilla in an attack upon Scapa Flow, because it was held by German specialists that the submarine would win the war by sinking surface vessels. The Admiralty was annoyed when the British Navy adopted the plan of "masking" the High Sea Fleet from Scapa Flow, but no order was given the "hornets" to penetrate the harbor to attack the dreadnoughts lying at anchor there. Not less astonishing than the failure of the Germans to try aggressive tactics when the Grand Fleet hugged its base was the policy of not interfering boldly with the transportation of the Expeditionary Force to France. Commander Groos says:

> The military command made no demands of this kind on the navy. It appeared, if the truth were told, not to rate very high the importance of the efficient but numerically weak Expeditionary Force.

The navy was not to be risked to prevent the landing of a British force, which the Chief of Staff, von Moltke, intimated the land forces would be glad to settle with in the field in its own good time. So reports Commander Groos. And yet "The Old Contemptibles" caused von Kluck a great deal of trouble in his advance upon Paris, and at the first battle of the Marne played a not inconspicuous part, as is now admitted. The German Admiralty did, indeed, attempt minor operations in the North Sea, pursuing an attrition plan, but it was not successful. Defensive strategy on the British side was brisker, with the result that telling blows were sometimes struck. This was notably the case when warships to be reckoned with were unexpectedly detached from the phantom British fleet to attack the Germans off Heligoland, while they were still pondering the mystery of the disappearance from the seas of the Grand Fleet, which had been mobilized on the eve of war. The action began with an audacious invasion of the bight by British submarines, and scouts soon reported that cruisers were behind them in support. No large German ships were ready. Light cruisers were sent out, the Stettin, the Frauenlob and the Mainz. Suddenly British armored cruisers were seen to be bearing down. The Germans had been taken completely by surprise. There loomed up the battle cruiser Lion. She quickly sank the Ariadne, and later the Cöln. In the fight so suddenly begun the Mainz also went down.

Although the Germans were caught off their guard and suffered heavily, losing, besides their ships, 649 officers and men killed or drowned and 361 captured (140 were wounded), Commander Groos finds satisfaction in the poor quality of the British shells, many of which did not explode, he avers. But the shooting of the British must have been remarkably good with the other shells. He puts the blame of the defeat off Heligoland upon the Kaiser, who withheld the High Sea Fleet until "the exact time to use it with all its force." As the story of badly handled German sea power unfolds, it will doubtless be often maintained that the Kaiser meddled too much with his Admirals and was responsible for misdirected effort and for dallying with opportunity.

AN ENGLISH "CHARACTER."

Lord John Fisher, who has just died in his eightieth year, was more than a sailor, more than a high naval authority. He was a striking personality. There was a savor of originality about him from his earliest days which he carried with him to the very end. He had an immense gusto in life. Some of the varying experiences which he had were not pleasing, but he went through them all with a kind of burly vivacity. In his individual flavor he somehow impressed observers as being always an overgrown boy, full of pranks, delighting in saying smart or savage things. He was, in short, a "character."

Since the war his publications about the Admiralty went far beyond the bounds of discretion or discipline. Probably they would not have been tolerated in another. But Lord Fisher was a chartered libertine. He could say or do what he liked, and the authorities could only grin or rage. They could never think of trying to suppress a man who had done what he had, and who took advantage of his high reputation to denounce as imbeciles all and sundry who differed with him. Some of the outbreaks in his recent reminiscences are truly amazing. The records which he gave from his old diaries frequently reveal remarkable forecasts. He predicted that the war would come in 1914. And a letter which he wrote in 1911 advised all his friends to bet on Woodrow Wilson as the next President of the United States. Lord Fisher had probably met Mr. Wilson at Bermuda. At all events, he had gained a high idea of the future President's abilities, and described him as "a Bismarck and Moltke rolled into one." Pretty strong, that, even for the imperious Fisher.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Belief Is Almost Impossible.

So close to the limit of credibility is the story of double murder told out in Chicago by the former soldier, Carl Wanderer, that if it were not confirmed by other evidence there would be more than excuse for doubting the truth of his confession—for suspecting that he made it simply to escape the torture of questioning, ruthlessly continued by the police for many hours. That form of torture, it must be remembered, not infrequently has elicited confessions that afterward were retracted and disproved.

In this instance, however, the corroboration is so strong that the man's amazing tale of a plot to get rid of his wife, coldly planned and skillfully carried out, must be accepted as correct. The alternative to denial is almost necessarily an assumption that Wanderer, while obviously not insane in any ordinary sense of that word, is mentally abnormal. Perhaps he always has been so—what is called a moral idiot—or perhaps he was made so by the strains of war, which for him must have been many and severe, as he earned on the firing line in France both the Croix de Guerre and the D. S. C.

On the latter theory he would be a man still suffering from an obscure and unusual form of what, inaccurately in most cases, is termed "shell shock," and if that be so some delicate questions as to his responsibility before the law will be raised for the psychiatrists and alienists to dispute with the lawyers.

Dead Men Tell No Tales.

For a murder even remotely analogous to Wanderer's it is probably necessary to go back to the histories, or rather to the legends, of the old-time pirates. If the ancient chronicles are to be trusted, it was a fairly common practice of the buccaneer chief to have himself and a chest of gold rowed ashore at midnight in a lonely place by two of his crew and then, after the treasure had been neatly buried, to shoot the unlucky twain in order that the secret might be his alone.

Then, however, there was the added plea that the spirits of the men thus slain would guard the buried gold and make things dangerous or highly unpleasant for anybody who tried to dig it up, though why they should perform that service for their murderer is a question that seems never to have received the investigation it deserves.

Wanderer could have had only the determination permanently to silence the tramp who, when dead, was to be held guilty of murder committed by him in the course of an attempt to rob. The scheme was shrewdly devised, but not too shrewdly to have been the product of a disordered mind, and it seems to have failed only, or chiefly, because both of the pistols used could be traced to Wanderer's possession.

As usual, it is the circumstantial evidence that outweighs the eyewitness's testimony, yet in spite of the frequency with which that happens juries almost always listen with patience or approval to lawyers for the defense when they assert that no man ought to be convicted on circumstantial evidence.

Was There Misuse of Legal Process?

With the reversal by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the convictions in the Court of Special Sessions that followed the publication by the Harpers of a book entitled "Madeleine" there will be general satisfaction—a satisfaction that will be shared by all except a few people in and out of the Society for the Prevention of Vice who hold exaggerated and perverted notions as to literary censorship, and a few other people who did their best—or worst—and most to turn an offense against good taste into a violation of law.

That the book itself has been in a way vindicated by the decision of the Appellate Division—that is a matter of only academic importance. It is a poor book, a dull book, of no sociological value as a "human document," though probably all of its incidents, if one looked long enough, could be duplicated in the circles it pretends to picture. It has not, however, the particular faults that alone justify the always repellent exercise of the State's censorial power, for while there are many passages in it to displease, and several to disgust, a sensitive reader, there is not one to lead the weak astray by making vice attractive.

The real importance of the original convictions and their present abrogation lies in the support they give to suspicion that the real object of the prosecution was considerably less the protection of virtue and the preservation of literary cleanliness than the attainment of other and quite different ends. Such a use of the courts, if it occurred, was a matter of the utmost seriousness, and hardly less serious is it that there should have been even an appearance of it.

The fact that Mr. Brainerd was a member of what The Brooklyn Eagle, in commenting on the case, calls "an inconvenient Grand Jury" has forced itself upon public attention, and the question whether that fact had any connection with an attack, otherwise inexplicable, on a book equally harmless and worthless seemingly deserves some sort of official investigation. As it stands the situation is disquieting.

Impartiality Gets Its Recognition.

So often have spokesmen of labor violently denounced as "Cossacks" the State Constabulary now established in several States, and so strong has been the opposition from the same quarter to every extension of the system to other States, that special attention is deserved by a brief dispatch from Charleston, W. Va., which was printed on Saturday.

In it was recorded the fact that an official of the United Mine Workers had asked the Governor of West Virginia to send a troop of the State Constables to the town of Mohawk, in McDowell County, to prevent the mine operators there from using private guards to exclude striking miners from their homes in violation of the law.

The obvious assumption of the union officer is that the so-called "Cossacks" both can and will enforce the law, no matter by whom it is violated. If he thought or even suspected them to be the tools of capital and the enemies of labor, certainly he would not have appealed for their help in a quarrel between employers and employés.

BACKWARD? NOT A BIT!

South Dakota Up with New York in Everything but Swallowtail Coats.

From the Iroquois Chief.

Taking the lack of a Governor's mansion at Pierre as its subject, The New York Times refers to South Dakota as "the State of Small Things, because it is poor in revenue." It is not to be expected that The Times, which looks upon New York as the principal part of the world and whose vision extends but a few miles beyond its corporate boundaries, would have much knowledge of the condition of South Dakota and its people. The Times probably does not know that South Dakota produces more wealth per capita than any State in the Union; that its per capita bank deposits are equaled by but few States; that it is third in the number of automobiles owned, population considered; that its public debt is a mere pittance; that it has no poverty-stricken people, and that New York would go hungry if South Dakota stopped producing. South Dakota is not poor in revenue or in anything else. True, it owns a less number of swallowtail coats than does New York, but it also has a far less number of people who do not know where their next meal is coming from. South Dakota can built a dozen Governor's mansions and never feel it—and it has already made preliminary arrangements to build one.

A Test in Concentration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of July 10 William H. Allen quotes a question said to have been given in an examination of graduate students at Teachers College.

I think it is extremely probable that Mr. Allen is drawing his conclusions from insufficient data. The question was given not as a "test of intelligence," but as an experiment in psychology. I think I am perfectly safe in asserting that in the letter to The Times Mr. Allen did not quote the question in its entirety. Look it up, Mr. Allen, and see if I am not right. Wasn't that awe-inspiring sentence preceded by a simple direction such as this: "Underline the fifth word in the following sentence." And weren't you (or the examinees) thrown off the track by the unfamiliar and meaningless words? And, of course, that was what the examination was for. In other words, it was a simple test in concentration.

EDITH DERBY ROBINSON.

Quogue, L. I., July 10, 1920.

For Prophet or Soothsayer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A recent very interesting article relates, as a matter of history, that the ancestors of Senator Harding were killed by Indians. Inasmuch as the Tammany braves are still upon the warpath, after the same kind of scalps, presumably, are we to regard the article and incident above referred to as a prophecy forecasting history, which always repeats itself, or shall we interpret it as we do those dreams that go by contraries? If as a prophecy, I move it be referred to Colonel Harvey. He never fails.

BUDDY NATIONS.

(England.)

We were buddy nations, John,
Through the thickest of the fray,
When we scarce could carry on,
As it seemed, until the dawn
Of another, brighter day.
But we held our lines until Victory came—let's hold them still:

We'll drive with you,
We'll strive with you
At any sport alive with you,
From croquet up to tennis, and from football down to craps;
But when it comes to fighting, John,
Our wrongs we can be righting, John,
I think you will agree with me, without these foolish scraps.

(France.)

We were buddy nations, France,
When our ranks were torn with shell,
When a death's head led the dance
And we won a yard's advance.
Only through the jaws of hell,
But we never failed each other,
Jonathan and Jean, his brother.

We'll laugh with you,
We'll chaff with you,
Stand any kind of gaff with you,
Although we're rather leery when it Comes to parlez-vous;
But we will let no one destroy
Our entente cordiale, my boy,
We still will settle our disputes as we've been wont to do.

PORTUGAL'S TRIALS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is the duty and the pleasure of those who know Portugal to see to it that nobody does her rank injustice without a protest. The last attack upon her fair name was contained in a letter appearing in our press which opines (with what authority who can say?) that "Queen Amelie * * * seems destined ere long to return, with her son and his wife, to her home on the banks of the Tagus in response to the summons of the people of Portugal, whose decade of so-called republican form of rule has proved so lamentable a failure * * * that the people are anxious for the restoration of a monarchy."

There is no space in your columns to describe the real conditions in the Republic of Portugal, but I suggest that her critics, always remembering that she knew only monarchical rule for countless centuries and was suddenly—of course too suddenly—called upon to operate a totally unfamiliar system, merely take down from their bookshelves the histories of the United States, France and some other republics and note whether, only ten years after the declaration of the republic, these countries were much, if any, further advanced toward a perfect democracy than Portugal is now. In the name of justice, give Portugal a fair show. There are many people, in Portugal, too, who jump to the conclusion that since ten years have not sufficed to turn the country from an ancient, hidebound monarchy into a modern republic, a return to the old régime is desirable. This standpoint is narrow, unhistoric and unfair to the highest degree.

Where the hearts of the people are good there is a glorious future for the land. This is eminently the case in Portugal. A letter from our Naval Attaché at Lisbon tells me that the accounts of revolutions are much exaggerated and that a long strike has been at the bottom of all the recent disturbances. I wish to add here a quotation from a letter from the wife of a well-known American professor, who is returning from a trip to Portugal. She writes:

"We met with, in traveling, such constant courtesy from the Portuguese; that wonderful gesture that means 'Don't trouble yourself about the stations. When we get there I will tell you and see that all your luggage is put off.' So many chickens and bread and wine we've shared in the carriages! The kindness we've been shown seemed to me all the more extraordinary as I came to realize how strange it must have seemed to see women traveling alone."

With hearts like these and more experience in the game of democracy, who will be uncharitable enough to prophesy a failure for lovely Portugal?

EDWARD BRECK.

Washington, July 8, 1920.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The dispatch appearing in The New York Times of July 9 about Switzerland and socialization does not seem entirely exact to me. The Swiss loan of $25,000,000 raised in the United States is intended for the electrification of our national railroads, i. e., to make us more independent of the coal furnishing countries, especially Germany. The financial situation, which, compared with other countries, is not so serious, must be attributed to the war. The mobilization of our army cost Switzerland the biggest sums. As to socialization and nationalization, I beg not to confound the expressions, because there is considerable difference in their meaning. It is true that our main railways, post, telegraph and telephone are nationalized, i. e., owned by the Government. The indebtedness of the State railways dates from the purchase by the Government years ago. Since then installments and interest have to be paid until the contracted debt is extinguished. It is a fact that the State railways in Switzerland are better managed than the few private ones, and that the revenues are as big as theirs.

The lack of foreign tourists, increased wages and cost of materials, &c., during the war caused smaller profits to both State and private railways. It is not the system of State ownership but unfortunate circumstances which are responsible for these small profits. Swiss hotels, for instance, are all privately owned enterprises, but for four years only a small number have been able to pay dividends or even the interest on their obligations. Complicated questions like these must be carefully examined before a final judgment can be rendered. Often cause and effect are not fully considered when trying to prove a certain fact, because it may involve the choosing of inexact premises.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On behalf of the association Unity of Russia permit me to thank you most sincerely for your splendid editorial article entitled "Trading with Russia," published on July 9, 1920. At this dark hour, it is gratifying to hear a sound warning to those petty politicians who, being afraid of the plague of Bolshevism, deem it possible to get rid of it by means of coquetting with Messrs. Lenin and Trotzky. Whatever Mr. Lloyd George's intentions may be, it is undeniable that his shameful deal with the cut-throats now in control of Russia will be recorded in the memory of the Russian people as a gross insult and as a calamity knowingly and willingly brought about by Great Britain. No special wisdom is required in order to understand the plain fact that the present unspeakable sufferings of the Russian people cannot be cured by prolonging the Bolshevist regime of horror, which is precisely the cause of Russia's present tragedy.

Indeed, we Russians are very grateful to The New York Times for the firm stand which it takes on a matter not only of vital importance, but which also affects the very dignity and honor of the Russian people.

Grammar for Language Study.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The readers of The New York Times greatly appreciate the fact that you publish so many valuable communications from readers. This time I especially refer to the letter on "Save Grammar" in Friday's issue.

I have been a teacher of modern languages for almost fifty years in New York City, twenty of them as head of department in one of the largest high schools; and I know what the lack of grammatical knowledge means for students of foreign languages; and I am also fully convinced that the so-called "direct method" is responsible for a great deal of the inefficiency of modern language instruction in our country. "A smattering, nothing thorough."

What Would the Colonel Say?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following tribute (?) was paid to President Taft and some other people by Theodore Roosevelt in the campaign of 1912, in which the election of Wilson should be credited to Roosevelt:

"President Taft means well, but he means well feebly, and he is affiliated with a lot of men who do not mean well and are not feeble."

How about the present candidate of the Republican Party? Does his record indicate that he even means well, and, if so, is he more or less feeble?

Are not his affiliations practically the same as were those of the candidate that Mr. Roosevelt defeated and who were characterized as not feeble?

If Harding is elected will Johnson, La Follette, Lodge, &c., be members of his Cabinet? Will it be a balky team?

G. B. THOMPSON.

K. OF C. MEET HERE AUG. 1.

300 Delegates from All Over Western Hemisphere Will Gather.

Delegates from all over the Western Hemisphere will attend the thirty-eighth annual supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus, which will be held at the Hotel Commodore during the week beginning Aug. 1. Each State will be represented, as well as Canada, Newfoundland, Alaska, Panama, Cuba, Mexico, the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

The enlarged education work of the Knights of Columbus involving the expenditure of a $7,000,000 balance of the war fund upon free night schools for former service men and women will be launched. The convention will also make an official declaration of the presentation of the Knights of Columbus statue of Lafayette to France and the baton to Marshal Foch. At the close of the convention a Knights of Columbus pilgrimage, headed by Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia will sail for France.

It is expected that about 300 delegates with voting power will attend the convention, but about 50,000 Knights will be in New York during convention week. The delegates from this city include William J. McGinley, Supreme Secretary, ex-officio; William P. Larkin, Dr. John G. Coyle, State Deputy; Edgar A. Martin, Joseph P. Toomey, John J. Cone, Past Supreme Deputy, and Edward L. Hearn, European Commissioner.

PLAN TO AID DISABLED MEN.

Meeting Tomorrow to Discuss Care of 641,900 Former Soldiers.

The Committee for Aid to Disabled Soldiers, of which Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, is chairman, will hold a conference Thursday noon at the Lawyers' Club to formulate a concrete plan of relief for the 641,900 disabled ex-service men. Invitations have been sent to representatives of the Government and civic organizations and citizens interested in the work.

"We are agreed," said the invitation, "that existing provision for the care and rehabilitation of these men is far from adequate. The situation of the mental and tuberculosis cases particularly needs attention, and there is as well lack of understanding of the gravity and magnitude of the whole problem.

"Private agencies are not equipped for the immense task, and existing legislation does not give sufficient scope to the Government agencies. This year the Government has been asked to appropriate $450,000,000, but it is generally agreed among officials that the annual cost presently will be $1,000,000,000 if the country intends to reclaim those men who now represent an economic loss and whose present condition constitutes an unpaid debt of honor."

BIG DEATH VERDICT UPSET.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 11.—Supreme Court Justice J. Addison Young, in Westchester County, has made an order, setting aside a verdict of $24,896.15 in favor of Mrs. Ethel Williams of Mamaroneck, against Dr. Arthur N. Bauman, a dentist here, following the death of Mrs. Williams's husband. The order followed the retraction of expert testimony by witnesses for Mrs. Williams.

Dental societies in New York State and in various parts of the United States had taken an active interest in the case, after the verdict. Mrs. Williams had sued Dr. Bauman for $50,000 after her husband died from an infection of the head which she charged was the result of dental treatment by Dr. Bauman.

Upon the consent of the attorneys of both the plaintiff and the defendant, the order was issued by Justice Young. It follows:

"Upon the annexed stipulations and consent, and upon the retractions by Dr. Matthew Carney and Dr. John T. Delaney, and on motion of James B. Henney, attorney for the defendant, it is "Ordered, That the judgment heretofore entered in this action in the office of the Clerk of the County of Westchester, on the 5th day of April, 1920, in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, amounting, with interest, to the sum of $24,896.15, shall be vacated, set aside, canceled and annulled in all respects as if the same had never been entered, and that this action be discontinued without costs to either party, as against the other."

Dr. Carney and Dr. Delaney are New York dentists. They testified that certain drugs, which most dentists use to sterilize tooth cavities, were injurious.

SUCCEEDS DR. JANEWAY.

Dr. W. J. V. Osterhout Elected to Rockefeller Medical Board.

The Board of Scientific Directors of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research yesterday announced the election of Dr. Winthrop J. V. Osterhout as a member of the Board of Scientific Directors to succeed the late Dr. Theodore C. Janeway. Promotions and appointments announced included:

Van Slyke, an Associate Member in Chemistry, have been made members; Dr. Francis G. Blake, hitherto an Associate in Medicine, and Dr. John H. Northrop, an Associate in Experimental Biology, have been made Associate Members, and Dr. James H. Austin, an Assistant in Medicine; Dr. Harry W. Graybill, an Assistant in the Department of Animal Pathology, and Dr. William C. Stadie, an Assistant in Medicine, have been made Associates.

PALMER IN VANCOUVER.

Confers with Robinson and McCormick—Women Favor Governor Cox.

Special to The New York Times.

VANCOUVER, July 10.—Senator Robinson, who was the Permanent Chairman of the Democratic National Convention, arrived here this evening by boat from San Francisco. He went to the Vancouver Hotel, where he had a long conference with Attorney General Mitchell Palmer and Vance McCormick.

Governor Kilby of Alabama and his wife also passed through Vancouver. Mrs. Kilby said that Governor Cox was in reality chosen by the women as the Democratic nominee because he would stand by their ideals. She also said that he was a strong man and could not be changed by petty party politics. Mrs. Kilby was among those who seconded his nomination.

SPANISH RAILWAYS ASK RISE

Say They Must Suspend Unless Rates Are Increased.

MADRID, July 11.—The railroads have announced that unless they are authorized to increase their rates they will be compelled to suspend service because of lack of equipment.

A general strike has been threatened in case the increases are granted, but it is believed the difficulty will be solved by means of a State guarantee.

SCHOOL HEADS MAKE PLEA FOR TILDSLEY

ECHO OF WAR ACTIVITIES

Security League Protests Delay as Approval of Radical Propaganda in Schools.

Protesting that failure to re-elect Dr. John L. Tildsley would not be in the best interests of the New York school system, twenty-one High School principals yesterday addressed a letter to the Board of Education, calling attention to the work of the Associate Superintendent of Schools in delving into reports of teacher disloyalty during the war.

In addition, the National Security League, through its President, Charles D. Orth, issued a statement urging its members to protest to the Board. The letter follows:

New York, July 11, 1920.
To the Board of Education,
The City of New York.
Ladies and Gentlemen:

The undersigned principals of High Schools have noted with regret the efforts of a few persons to oppose the re-election of John L. Tildsley because of his performance of the duty assigned to him by the Board of Education, which charged him with the labor of bringing to trial members of the teaching staff charged with failure in their duty of co-operating with the Board of Education in its measures in support of the Government during the war.

As members of the school system familiar with the work of Superintendent Tildsley, we bear witness to the high quality of his service in organizing and in supporting constructive measures for the progress of these schools, and for increasing their efficiency.

We ask consideration of the Board of Education for the merit system now enacted into law whereby every member of the teaching and supervising force from the beginning grade, up through the district superintendency, feels confident of employment upon the basis of faithful service. We commend the observance of that system in the case of Superintendent Tildsley to the end that a public servant under direction of the Board of Education may feel assured that only on proof of professional incompetence, neglect of duty, or for misconduct, shall he be dismissed from his position.

It is our belief that failure to re-elect Superintendent Tildsley at this time will be hailed as a personal vindication and victory for all teachers whose loyalty has been suspected and whose radical tendencies have subjected them to suspicion.

We believe that this will be the interpretation not only in New York City but in the country at large.

Turner, Bay Ridge H. S.

The National Security League's statement said:

"The National Security League has issued an appeal to all its members in New York to protest to the Board of Education against any action in what has become known as the 'Tildsley matter,' which action might be construed as approval, by the Board of Education of the greatest city in the United States, of radical propaganda among the school children of the city.

"The League believes that this is the main question and regrets that it is apt to be clouded over in the minds of many people by an impression that the matter is a more or less personal one centering upon the reappointment or otherwise of Dr. Tildsley.

"If the Board of Education desires to convince the public that it does not approve of the policy of permitting individual teachers, instead of the overwhelming public opinion of the people, to direct and elect what shall be taught to pupils, it can do so by reappointing Dr. Tilsdley.

"This is the direct means and the short cut to reassure the public of the integrity of the Board's purpose in this matter. If, however, definite proof is adduced of why Dr. Tildsley should not be reappointed, the man or woman to succeed him must be beyond suspicion as respects any leaning towards minority and radical propaganda.

"The effort to convince the Board of what the public wants should not be confined to League members, but should be participated in by the general public. This furnishes an excellent opportunity for the people of New York City to give an indication that they are awakening from the lethargy as respects patriotic and civic matters into which they appear to have fallen with the ending of the war."

FOR INTERNATIONAL JUDGES.

Jurist, University Personage or Ex-parliamentarian Recommended.

THE HAGUE, July 10.—The following decision was reached today on selection of Judges for the Permanent Court of International Justice by the conference of jurists appointed to draft a plan for the court:

"The position of Judge on the Permanent Court of International Justice must not be assigned to any one discharging political duties, whether national or international. No one who is a member of a Government or a representative in the Council or Assembly of the League of Nations should at the same time be a Judge of the International Court. Selection of a distinguished Judge, university personage, or eminent ex-parliamentarian not subject to these disqualifications would, it is believed, meet with public approval."

The conference also decided that the selection of Judges should be made by the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations, to which also was assigned the duty of filling any vacancies which might arise. Judges would be appointed for a term of nine years, as would those chosen to fill vacancies.

BACK JAPAN GOVERNMENT.

House Votes Confidence by Large Majority—Diet Guarded.

TOKIO, July 10 (Associated Press).—The Government received a vote of confidence by a large majority in the House of Representatives today. The House defeated a resolution of want of confidence in the Ministry by 145 votes for the resolution and 283 against it.

During the debate in the Diet and the developments outside today, the tendencies toward freedom of speech and action along liberal lines that have been observable recently continued to manifest themselves. Three large meetings in promotion of the agitation for universal suffrage were held here, attended by adherents of 100 or more universal suffrage associations in the provinces, in addition to the masses of Tokio supporters of the movement. Speeches of a violent character were made at these gatherings, and paraders carrying banners subsequently clashed with the police, a number of arrests being made.

Five thousand police reserves were called out as a special guard for the Diet.

BROOKLYN TO HAVE A POLICE HOSPITAL

Coleman du Pont Heads Committee of 33 Prominent Citizens to Raise $5,000,000 Fund.

FAMILIES ARE TO BENEFIT

City Makes No Provision for Care of Sick—60,000 Persons Will Be Eligible.

A hospital in Brooklyn exclusively for policemen and their families is the object of a $5,000,000 fund to be raised locally by subscription, according to an announcement made yesterday by a group of thirty-three prominent men, headed by Coleman du Pont, Special Deputy Police Commissioner.

The institution is to be known as the Police Hospital, with 300 beds and caring for 60,000—policemen and their families. In addition to the 11,000 men on active duty, the 4,000 men on the retired list and their dependents will be eligible.

Pointing out that Brooklyn has the largest number of policemen, the committee's statement of plans revealed that about $800,000 would go to the purchase of a site there, $2,500,000 would be spent in building and equipment, while the remainder of the $5,000,000 would be funded as an endowment. No date has been set for the inauguration of the camaign to get the sum needed.

"The city," set forth the statement, "provides no special sick care for the police beyond the excellent but limited service of the police surgeons in their inspection and care of men when entering the force and while on duty. If a policeman is taken ill or wounded while on duty and carried to a hospital he gets only such care as he is able to pay for. The pay of these men, especially those in the lower ranks, is not sufficient to warrant the employment of nurses or the services of high-class physicians or surgeons during a period of illness either of the man or of a member of his family.

"Pulmonary diseases, fallen arches and other foot troubles and various forms of neurasthenia are peculiarly common to men in the Police Department. The number of men on the pension roll would be considerably less if they had had hospital care in the early stages of the diseases from which many of them suffer and which have incapacitate most of them for further duty."

Mr. du Pont has been chosen President of the hospital and the Honorary Chairman will be Elbert H. Gary. The Vice Presidents announced are R. A. C. Smith, Colonel Jefferson Demont Thompson, Herman A. Metz, Charles Thorley, Louis K. Kaufman, Treasurer; Henry W. Dearborn, Secretary, and Jane Thomson Bausman, Executive Secretary.

BRICK HITS POLICE RESERVE

Harry F. Cox, 26 years old, of 752 Ninth Avenue, a member of the Police Reserves, was struck wtih a brick alleged to have been thrown by Michael Travers, 22, of 435 Eighth Street, West New York, after Cox and Patrolman Hogan had broken up a dice game late yesterday afternoon in front of 322 West Fifty-second Street.

Travers was charged with felonious assault and disorderly conduct. James O'Donnell, 32, an electrician, of 414 West Fiftieth Street, was also arrested, charged with disorderly conduct.

Hogan and Cox were taking their prisoners to the station house when the brick struck Cox and he fell. He held O'Donnell, however, while Hogan ran back and caught Travers. While the two prisoners were being taken away the crap shooters circled around and threatened to free their friends. Hogan, however, drew his revolver and dispersed them.

SOLDIERS SEEK PREFERENCE

Legion Commander to Ask Recommendation on Civil Service.

Wade H. Hayes, State Commander of the American Legion, announced yesterday that he would ask all the posts in the State to submit recommendations on the subject of civil service preference for ex-service men for the consideration of the committee which he had appointed to make a study of civil service conditions. The committee will report at the next State convention of the legion.

"It is not the function of this committee to consider civil service questions from an academic point of view, but to receive and digest the many proposals from various posts all over the State on the subject of civil service preference, so that these proposals can be presented before the convention in an intelligent manner," said Mr. Hayes. "The first thing we must fight for is the basic principle of preference to all ex-service people, and when that is accomplished the detailed application of the principle will have to be worked out."

GIVES MORE DETAILS OF GERMAN SHIP DEAL

SAYS GOVERNMENT FAVORS

Germans Declined to Fly British Flag, and Proposition Was Made to Sail Them Under Neutral Colors.

BERLIN, July 11.—The Boersen Courier's Hamburg correspondent claims authority to confirm the report that British shipowners have offered to sell to German shipowners or the German Government a large part of the tonnage surrendered as compensation for the Scapa Flow sinkings. Immediately after the conclusion of the shipping deal British overtures, according to the correspondent, were made through Count Lucovitch of the German Legation at London, with the approval of the British Government, including an offer to place the ships immediately at the disposal of the German buyers on five years' credit.

The Germans declined to accede to the British demand that the ships fly the British flag, whereupon the prospective sellers proposed a neutral flag. The deal involves no working agreement or restrictions.

POLES LESS CRUEL TO JEWS

British Official Mission Reports Results of Its Investigations.

LONDON, July 10.—The report of the mission headed by Sir Stuart Samuel, which was sent by the British Government last September to investigate conditions in Poland, has been published, together with a covering letter by Sir H. Rumbold. It deals largely with the treatment of Jews, which, the report says, is being "gradually mitigated" and "will abate when peace has been restored and the presence of foreigners in their country will shame the Poles into more civilized treatment of their near neighbors."

The report declares that massacres of Jews in Poland were not pogroms or State superintended and authorized slaughterings, but manifestations of popular animus on the part of ignorant men, misled in many instances by men of education. In many cases, the report says, the police participated in acts of aggression against Jews.

Sir H. Rumbold's covering letter says that bad as the condition of Jews in Poland may have been or may still be, it is far better than that in surrounding countries.

"Unless all information on the point is entirely inaccurate," he said, "the massacres of Jews by Ukrainian peasant bands can find no parallel in their extent and thoroughness except in the massacres of Armenians in Turkey."

BIG PLANE STRIKES WOMAN.

Atlantic City Visitor Hurt as Emergency Landing Is Made.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—Miss Louise Barrett of Philadelphia was severely injured and a score of other persons barely escaped being struck by a big twenty-passenger airplane of the Aero Transport Company, which operates between this city and New York, when it made a landing at the Inlet in an effort to avoid hitting bathers in its path to the station. The plane shattered one of its wings as it struck the beach, but the damage was repaired in time to fulfil the scheduled return trip to New York tonight.

New Mexican Suffering from Nervous Trouble Found Dead.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—E. Labows, 55 years old, believed to be a New Mexico mining engineer, was found dead in his apartment at 42 North Virginia Avenue, today. County Physician Souder believes Labows committed suicide. One gas jet was found turned on and the windows and doors of the room were closed. Three prescriptions made out by a local physician indicated that the man had been under treatment for nervous trouble. Labows came here June 13 with a woman believed to be his daughter. Three weeks ago she left town.

CHAIR PUSHERS STILL OUT.

Atlantic City Employers Expect Strike to Collapse.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—The roller chair pushers are still on strike here. The number of chairs in use this afternoon was apparently increased and tonight the chair stand proprietors were confident the strike would collapse. The pushers struck yesterday for higher wages.

The strikers assert that some of the proprietors have given in to the men.

None Objects to Fare Increase.

GOSHEN, July 11.—Officials of the Public Service Commission reported today that no protest has been received against the application of the Wallkill Transit Company to increase fares in Orange County from five to seven cents. The corporation operates trolley cars in Middletown and its suburbs. Commissioner Frank Irvine held a hearing on Saturday, but none opposed the application. Company officials and experts declared the increase was necessary to continue operation.

ALLIES WILL HELP POLES ON CONDITION

expressed the desire for peace upon a basis of self-determination.

"Have you asked the Allies for troops?"

"No," he replied.

"For munitions?"

"Yes," he said.

"Have you asked for demobilized officers?"

"No, but we would be glad to have them. A few foreign officers are serving with the Poles, but each is an exceptional case."

The Premier said that the agreement with Czechoslovakia was as good as completed on all points.

The suggestion that the powers support Poland's peace proposals is being discussed by the allied Ministers, notably the representatives of France and the Governments recognizing the Russian Soviet Government.

Reds May Have Taken Minsk.

LONDON, July 11.—A roundabout report that the Bolsheviki driving against the Poles had occupied Minsk was received here today. The report originated in Kovno, it is stated, and was forwarded by the Central News correspondent at Copenhagen.

This report has not been confirmed from any direct source.

WARSAW, July 11.—The Bolsheviki, according to a communication issued today, have occupied Smolewicz and Sarny, and the battle is continuing in the vicinity of Minsk. The Polish forces are said to have retired south of the Pripet and in Podolia, but the Bolshevist attacks have been repelled near Janina and between the Pripet and Puyez, where the enemy losses are declared to have been heavy.

The decision of the Polish Government to appeal to the Spa conference for moral and material help in the fight against the Bolsheviki comes as a climax to a task extending over many months in securing ammunition held up in London by the refusal of workingmen to load the ships and by the withholding of other shipments by the Czechs, it is declared, in retaliation for the disagreement over the Teschen district plebiscite.

It is charged by the Poles that the Czechs delayed indefinitely a train of thirty-six cars of ammunition for which Poland had urgent need just prior to the Bolshevist attack. Austria is also said to have been hindering shipments, holding that they were contrary to the peace treaty.

It has been a common prediction for months in various circles that unless ammunition was forthcoming the Poles would be forced to withdraw before the inevitable Summer attack by the Bolsheviki. Poland claims never to have suffered a shortage in men, and thousands are offering their services daily in the new army being organized in the hope of stemming the Bolshevist advance. It is estimated officially that 800,000 men and women have entered the service within two days. A volunteer army of 18,000 was enlisted at Vilna, and the entire City of Lemberg is said to be determined to defend that city to the end, 60,000 having offered their services.

French Experts See Poland in Peril.

PARIS, July 11.—The present situation of the armies of Poland, with the Bolsheviki attempting a pincers movement by a southwesterly drive with Vilna as its objective while General Budenney's troops are striking northwesterly toward Kovel and Brest-Litovsk, according to news dispatches received here, is causing nearly as much comment in the French press and in military circles as the Spa conference with the Germans. The morning newspapers have resumed their wartime appearance, with the military experts studying the situation at length. The majority of these critics are not optimistic as to the position of the Polish Army.

Advices received from Spa late last night declared that Premier Lloyd George had informed M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Minister for Foreign Affairs, that the conclusion of an armistice between the Soviet Government and Poland was placed by Great Britain as the first condition for the continuation of negotiations with Leonid Krassin, the Soviet Minister of Trade and Commerce. Mr. Lloyd George was speaking in his own personal name, but in accord with France, Italy and Japan, the report stated.

The French are said to be urging the British Premier to break off the negotiations with the Bolsheviki should they refuse to grant an armistice with Poland.

BUDAPEST, July 10.—The Hungarians are closely watching the results of the Bolshevist offensive against Poland and the possibility of a successful advance by the Soviet forces to the German frontier. The Hungarians, military men say, feel sure they would be able to repel any attempt by the Soviet to attack over the Carpathians, although to do this would mean a reoccupation of Slovakia.

MGR. PATRICK CODY DIES.

Rector of St. James Church, Newark, Succumbs After Long Illness.

Monsignor Patrick Cody, rector of St. James Church, Newark, died yesterday after a long illness. He was born in Tipperary, Ireland, 82 years ago, and was brought to this country by his parents when a baby. His early education was obtained at various Catholic institutions in this country before he was sent, in 1860, to the American College in Rome. In 1863 he was ordained by Bishop Bayley at Seton Hall, of which he was then made Vice President.

Following the burning of Seton Hall in 1866 he became assistant to Father Rogers at New Brunswick, and later helped in the building of St. Peter's Church at Camden. For a time he had charge of the missions at Hackensack, Englewood and Fort Lee, founding a school at Englewood. In 1872 he succeeded the late Rev. J. E. Gervais as rector of St. James Church, and completed the work begun by his predecessor, finishing the tower and spire of the present edifice. He also built a new rectory, remodeled the parochial school and built a hospital. He was made a Monsignor in April, 1913. Funeral plans have not yet been announced.

Negro Who Shaved Lincoln Dies.

TRENTON, N. J., July 11.—Samuel W. Gordon, a negro, 75 years old, who had been messenger to the Governors of New Jersey for forty-seven years, died today at his home here. Two Men Went Their Way

THE FIRST, a business executive enjoying a large salary, had a wife and no children and in the belief that in any circumstances his wife would inherit all his estate he kept putting off making a will until "a tomorrow," which for him never came. When he was killed in an accident his widow was not only deprived of the benefits of his large salary but, under the laws of New York State governing the settlement of estates where there is no will, found herself entitled to only a portion of his personal property and a life income from a third of his real estate. The rest of the property went to her husband's two sisters, with whom she had not been on visiting terms and who did not need it.

When there is no will the law must take its way—not your way, the way of your wishes and your expectations, but an arbitrary, impersonal way in which individual needs play no part.

THE SECOND, also married and without children, had a lesser income but more foresight, and he crystallized the fruits of a lifetime of endeavor by having his lawyer draw up a well-considered will. By so doing he protected his wife's future. He strengthened this protection, relieved his wife of financial burdens, and insured a wise administration of his estate by appointing this Company as his executor and trustee.

Let us send you our pamphlets, "Why a Trust Company," which explains our service as Executor and Trustee, and "The First Step in Making Your Will."

BABE WHALES OUT ANOTHER OF THEM

THRONG OF 35,000 ON HAND

Jeers Assail Ehmke's Eardrums as He Passes Mighty Slugger Thrice. —Cobb's Homer Scores Two.

Babe Ruth, king of all home run hitters and greatest walker since the palmy days of Dan O'Leary and Edward Payson Weston, starred in both specialties at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. Babe clouted his twenty-seventh home run of the current season in the third inning of the game with the Detroit Tigers, and on each of three other trips to the plate Howard Ehmke worked on the theory that a base on balls is the only thing which Ruth can't hit. Babe's lone circuit clout was an important factor in the defeat of the Tigers, 6 to 5.

Ruth took his bat off his shoulder just twice during the game. In the third inning he missed one swing, and followed by clouting the ball into the lower tier of the right field stand. Babe had not hit into this section in any other game this year, and some of the fans out that way began to believe he was showing favoritism. As if to prove that his territory is unbounded, the Sultan of Swat turned loose a line drive in the third inning, and it spattered among the customers who inhabit the lower floor.

In the first inning Ruth was passed on four pitched balls, and Ehmke was jeered as only a crowd of 35,000 disgusted fans can jeer. But there was some provocation for caution at the time, as Sam Vick was roosting on the third cushion and Wally Pipp was perched on second base. When Babe was passed on four pitches in the fifth inning, with the bases empty and two out, another howl of derision swept from the stands to the pitching mound. In the seventh it was the same story, two out and the bases empty, but Ehmke would give Ruth nothing that he could hit. Every last mortal in that gathering of 35,000 wanted to see Babe hit, and the idea of one man blocking the will of the populace was more than the crowd could bear. Ehmke reached a new mark in extracting jeers, hoots and hisses from a Polo Grounds crowd.

Meusel There with His Cudgel.

Nor was all this walking that was forced upon Ruth such good baseball strategy as Ehmke believed it to be. Walking Babe to pick on Meusel is about the same from a safety standpoint as dropping ten stories to escape a fire. Bob is not the home run hitter that Ruth is, but opposing pitchers are not shooting many strikes past his bat these days. The big Californian has stepped out among the major league sluggers as second only to his illustrious predecessor in the Yankee batting order, and visiting outfielders are getting a lot of exercise while chasing the drives from Meusel's bat. Big Bob unloaded a double after Ruth was walked in the first inning, and two runners went over on the smash. In the fifth he converted Ruth's second excursion into a New York run with a double that chased Babe all the way home from first base.

"Walk Babe and I'll make him run" is the defi that Meusel is tossing daily to pitchers at the Polo Grounds. In his last three games Meusel has turned loose a home run, six two-baggers and one single. Even the Federal Express has to halt occasionally at a flag station.

All the home run honors of the game were not monopolized by the mastodonic mauler of the Yankees. That other superman of baseball, Tyrus Raymond Cobb, was limping around on an ailing leg, but even in a crippled state Tyrus is a dangerous person in a ball game. With the Yankees leading, 5 to 1, in the sixth inning, the Georgia Peach lofted a home run among the fans in the upper stand after Bush had reached first base through some slow work by Mays. That clout enabled Ty to travel the hassocks without putting any undue strain on the battered knee. He had punched out a single in the first inning that helped to put the Tigers in the van until Bob Meusel stepped in with his two-bagger in the Yankees' half of the inning. Hale, batting for Pinelli in the ninth, also joined the circuit clouters with a wallop among the sungods in left field.

Ehmke Twirls Nice Ball.

Aside from displaying extreme caution in the case of Ruth, Ehmke pitched a fairly good game. He held the Yanks to seven hits which were fairly well scattered but unusually healthy. Five of the Yankee drives were for extra bases, the lot including four doubles and a home run. The hits were interwoven with passes, and that helped to run the score up high enough to win.

Mays, too, was the victim of some solid slaps by the Detroiters, but scattered the blows well, barring the sixth inning. In this frame he really presented the Tigers with a pair of runs by slow work in getting over to first base on grounders which Pipp fielded. One of these fluke hits preceded Cobb's hoist among the patrons on the upper deck, and another, which followed the home run, helped in the scoring of a run which Mays might have shut off with a little more speed. Before this inning ended the Tigers had collected five hits and three runs. Huggins had George Mogridge warming up in the bull pen, but Mays settled down after this one outburst by the Tigers and thereby escaped the derrick.

The big gathering had its moments of uneasiness as well as its thrills. The Tigers did just enough clawing at Mays in the ninth inning to spread the impression that they were about to unload another of those belated rallies which took the opening game of the series from the Yanks and turned the Saturday affair into an extra-inning battle. Again it was the relief corps that caused the trepidation. On Saturday Jennings called on two pinch hitters and they delivered a double and a triple. In the ninth inning yesterday Pinch Hitter Hale unbelted a home run that put the Tigers only one run behind, and Pinch Hitter Flagstead cut loose with a double. Here was the tying run on second base and only a single needed when Bush lofted to Sam Vick, and the big crowd emitted a sigh of relief.

Tigers Off in the Lead.

The Tigers lost no time in going to the front. With Bush out of the way in the first inning Jones slapped a single to right centre and on a pretty hit and run play Cobb drove a single through short as Ward ran over to cover second on Jones's dash from first. Jones went to third on Ty's hit and scored while Bob Veach was forcing Cobb at second. The Yanks promptly made up for that run and took the lead with another. With one out Vick walked and Pipp chased him around to third with a double to right centre. From the stands and bleachers rolled a chorus of moans and jeers as Ruth was purposely walked. Meusel crashed a fast hopper along the left field line for two bases, scoring Vick and Pipp and sending Ruth to third. Babe died at the plate a minute later when Bodie grounded to Bush, and Pratt's bounder to Ehmke closed the inning.

In the third Ruth increased the Yankee total with his home run into the grandstand, and in the fifth two more runs arrived. With two out, Ruth walked on four pitched balls and raced all the way from first to the plate on Meusel's double to right. Bob reached third on the throw to the plate, and scored on Bodie's single to left.

Then the Tigers made their big noise. Bush got an infield hit, Jones lined to Vick and Cobb's home run sent Bush in ahead. Veach singled to right, Shorten was favored by some slow work on Mays's part in getting over to first, and Ellison's infield out advanced Veach and Shorten. Veach scored while Pinelli was beating Ward's throw from deep short to first base.

An error by Jones helped to get the winning run across in the eighth. Pratt got a double when Veach lost his high fly in the sun, Ruel walked and Mays flied to Cobb in deep centre. Pratt raced to third after the catch and when Cobb's throw-in got away from Jones, Del kept on to the home plate.

Daubert's Homer Scores Three Runs and Wins Game in Ninth.

CINCINNATI, July 11.—Daubert's home run in the ninth inning today broke a tie score and gave Cincinnati an even break in the series with Boston. The drive sent in two runners ahead of Daubert, and all three tallies counted under the new rules. Sallee and Rudolph were both hit freely.

Curves and Bingles

The Yankees will have a holiday today, but tomorrow a big day's work looms up. The Browns will open a five-game series with a double-header at the Polo Grounds.

The Tigers won the first game of their first series here and lost the others, just as they did in the eries which ended yesterday. So far this season the Hugmen have won nine games from the Tigers and lost only two.

Ruth has now batted safely in twenty-five consecutive games. It is a remarkable record in view of the numerous intentional passes handed out to the Yankee slugger.

A foul tip from Bodie's bat struck Ainsmith on the chest, just above the protecter in the third inning and the game was held up until Eddie's breathing apparatus was again in normal working order.

Ruth posed for a boy photographer just before the game, then put his arm on the kid's shoulder while Pratt photographed the pair. The stunt made a big hit with the crowd.

Pratt had a hand in the first eight putouts. He threw five Tigers out at first base, handled two force plays at second and tagged another runner on an attempted steal.

Cobb showed the big crowd how the hit-and-run play should be worked in the first inning. Jones dashed for second base, Ward ran over to cover the bag and Ty hit a ball past the spot where Ward had been playing.

Why worry about those cripples when the reserve material is doing such fine work for Huggins? The regulars could not win any more frequently.

Cobb showed lack of practice in the outfield by overrunning three drives to centre but he went into the air each time and made the catch. Veach did some fancy outfielding in left.

Pratt never played better ball since coming into the majors than he is showing day after day at the Polo Grounds. His fielding is high class and his hitting is close to the .300 mark.

GIANTS BEAT CUBS AND DIVIDE SERIES

Pull Game from Fire by Count of 3 to 2 When Vaughn Weakens Toward End.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The Giants are great believers in exacting exact vengeance. If they take an eye for an eye they don't insist on having a couple of eyelashes thrown in. If they pull a tooth for a tooth they don't extract a bit of jawbone with it. Which is by way of saying that McGraw's troopers won today's closing game of the series from the Cubs by the score of 3 to 2.

In the opening clash on Thursday the Chicagoans were victorious by 8 to 5, and they won the second game by 3 to 2. Yesterday the Giants triumphed by 8 to 5, and today, with a nice sense of righteous retribution, they reversed the score of the second encounter. What could be fairer than that?

Yet a great crowd of Chicagoans who gathered to tell the Giants where they could go from here was lacking in approval of the outcome. They didn't care for it at all. As the two teams churned their way into the seventh inning the Cubs were in the lead by 2 to 0, Vaughn was twirling great guns, and it looked to the massed citizens at the North Side Park as if Chicago had won another ball game and taken the series by the count of 3 to 1.

Just then something cracked. It may have been the Giants' patience or perhaps it was one of Vaughn's tendons. Anyhow, the New Yorkers put on a little cantata entitled "Drawing Level" in the seventh inning and gave a skit called "Bringing Home the Bacon" in the eighth by way of an undesired encore.

Rube Benton attended to the pitching for the visitors, and he was in good form. He had a rather saddening experience in the third session, when the local gang straightened out his benders for two singles and a double and packed away a brace of runs. Nevertheless, he kept right on attending to his knitting, and was regarded later on when his mates took it into their heads to win the ball game.

Larry Doyle Is Ejected.

The tussle was enlivened for the local fans in the third inning, when Larry Doyle kicked himself right out of the picture. There was a party named Klem standing around back of the plate, and Doyle didn't care for his views on balls and strikes. In fact, Larry didn't think they were views at all. He considered them feverish nightmares. When Klem called him out on a third floater, Doyle turned, fixed the arbiter with his glittering eye and made an impassioned address, in the course of which he expressed wonder that a grocery clerk with one glass eye and a bad astigmatism in the other should be allowed to adjudicate such delicate matters as balls and strikes. He suggested that mankind would have been spared much vexation if Klem's parents had run him through the wringer with the pillowcases when he was three weeks old.

At this point Klem, although much interested in Doyle's remarks, felt that his own selfish pleasure should not be allowed to hold up the game, and excused Larry for the remainder of the afternoon. Lefevre took his place at second.

The Giants wasted a long hit in the opening inning, when Young doubled into the crowd with two out. The Cubs went out in rapid order, Frisch knocking down Terry's high bounder and getting him at first for the third out.

Two Hits, But No Runs.

In the second session the New Yorkers were even more wasteful of hits. Kelly singled to start the inning. King struck out. Doyle beat out a hit into Herzog's domain. Vaughn coiled up his spring and fanned Snyder and Benton in rapid sequence. Davey Robertson singled with one gone in the Cubs' half, but Paskert whiffed and Herzog forced Robertson.

Vaughn, still going like a blizzard, struck out Burns and Young in the third and Frisch popped to Merkle. Then came the Cubs' big demonstration. After Bancroft had thrown out Killefer, Vaughn and Twombly singled. Doyle disposed of Hollocher. Benton walked Terry and the bases were filled. Merkle got the end of his war club on the ball and slashed out a double, scoring Vaughn and Twombly, Terry holding third. Robertson grounded to Kelly.

In the seventh the Giants tied up the tally. Herzog fielded Lefevre's grounder and threw him out at first. Snyder bunted and beat the throw. Benton's grounder got by Herzog and the Rube perched on second, Snyder going to third. George Burns came to the rescue with a two-base slam and Snyder and Benton counted. Bancroft flied to Hollocher and Young struck out.

In the eighth the Giants put over what proved to be the winning run very neatly. Frank Frisch doubled at the outset and was sacrificed to third by Kelly and the rest of the way by King. Lefevre popped to Terry.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, July 11.—Hoblitzel's Numatics backed Lute Barnes's great pitching with sensational fielding today and won the first game of the series from Jersey City, 4 to 1. A drizzling rain and the street car strike combined in holding the crowd to 3,000. It was Akron's fourteenth consecutive victory at home.

Barnes held the Skeeters to seven hits, two of which were scratches, passed one batter an dfanned nine men. He struck out the side in the eighth without a foul tip, and fanned two of three batters to face him after Denoville had started the fifth with a double.

LABOWITZ WINS WALK.

Louis Labowitz, Pastime A. C.'s star walker, scored a close victory over Adolph Arnold, a veteran of the Bronx club, yesterday in a one-mile handicap walk in the members' games at Macomb's Dam Park. Labowitz, starting from scratch, just managed to lead his older rival to the tape after a hard struggle in the closing fifty yards. Arnold was allowed a handicap of 1 minute 45 seconds. The victor's time was 7 minutes.

Pat Conway was the only other backmarker to redeem handicap allowances. Conway competed from scratch in a 12-pound hammer throw and emerged victorious, with a heave of 153 feet 3 inches.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash; Handicap—Won by Al Scribeau (6 feet); J. Bascomb (9 feet), second; Daniel Shea (6 feet), third. Time—0:10 1-5.

One-Mile Walk; Handicap—Won by Louis Labowitz (scratch); Adolph Arnold (1 minute 45 seconds), second; B. Jacobs (2 minutes), third. Time—7:00.

440-Yard Run; Handicap—Won by J. Russell (22 yards); J. Bascomb (12 yards), second; W. Schenkelbach (4 yards), third. Time—0:52.

Throwing the Twelve-Pound Hammer; Handicap—Won by P. Conway (scratch), with 153 feet 3 inches; Nick Yiahnis (15 feet), 138 feet, second; Dan Shea (20 feet), 135 feet 11 inches, third.

Running Hop, Step and Jump; Handicap—Won by J. Bascomb (8 feet), with 43 feet 6 inches; Frank Haggman (8 feet), 43 feet 5 inches, second; Oscar Phillopsin (8 feet), 43 feet 3 inches, third.

One-Mile Run; Handicap—Won by P. Borrell (85 yards); J. Tvelton (scratch), second; M. H. Edelman (90 yards), third. Time—4:46 2-5.

ARMY ATHLETES IN BOSTON.

Olympic Team Candidates Arrive for Completion of Training.

BOSTON, July 11.—Two practice sessions each day this week will put the finishing touches to the training of the army athletic squad, which reached Boston yesterday. The squad of thirty men, directed by Coach Frank M. Kanaly, has established headquarters at the Army and Navy Club in Park Square and will hold its drills at Tech Field in Cambridge. Surprises may be in store for those who have omitted the army men from consideration among probably successful candidates for the Olympic team in the trials at the Harvard Stadium next Friday and Saturday.

Coach Kanaly believes he has several men under his tutelage who are likely to worry even the most famous of their rivals from civilian ranks. Among these is Sergeant Schley C. Williamson of Texas, whom Kanaly describes as a consistent 10-second man in the hundred yard dash. He has done 9 4-5 seconds this season with only a slight breeze at his back. Even in the wonderful company of sprinters who will strive for a place on Uncle Sam's team this year, Coach Kanaly believes that Williamson can earn a worthy place.

AMATEUR EXPERTS TO BOX.

Many Title Holders in Olympic Tryouts Tonight.

Holders of international, national, army, navy and sectional amateur boxing championship titles will compete this evening in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, when the final Olympic boxing tryouts will be conducted under the auspices of the American Olympic Committee. Every section of the country where the sport is supported will be represented in the struggles for berths on the team which will make the journey to Antwerp, and bouts will be provided between the nation's leading amateur boxers. An entry list of eighty individuals has been received, making the tournament the greatest ever held in the local district.

Local boxers are prominent in the record entry. In the lightweight class New York will depend upon Frank Cassidy, international champion; Sam Mosberg, metropolitan champion, and B. Ponteau, St. Christopher Club, runner-up in the national championships. Sam Lagonia, Bronxdale A. C., national champion, is the favorite in the middleweight class, but is promised strong opposition from Sidney Loog, Jr., of Philadelphia; Clarence Jenkins, St. Christopher Club; Edwin W. Schell, champion of the navy, and A. E. Gill, of the army.

Four boxers will compete in the heavyweight class. The entry includes William Spengler, metropolitan champion; Gordon Munce, of Bayonne, N. J.; Lieutenant Sam Stewart, United States army, and John Burke, Pittsburgh, national and international champion.

ROBINS TAKE FINAL GAME FROM CARDS

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 11.—The Robins maintained their advantage over the Reds in the pennant race this afternoon when they won the final game of the series from the Cardinals, finishing on the heavy end of a 2 to 1 score. The visitors won four of the five games played with Branch Rickey's sluggers.

Rube Marquard is the member of the Robins' staff to be credited with the team's latest victory, but in order to win he had to bring all his pitching skill into play. He was opposed by Bill Doak, and the blond spitball heaver offered his left-handed rival plenty of opposition.

The Robins drew two passes during the game, and they were bunched in the sixth inning and paved the way for Doak's defeat. Zack Wheat, first up in the session, drew the first free ticket. Myers attempted to sacrifice, but was called out by Umpire McCormick when he interfered with Clemons's throw to first. Wheat, who ran to second, was called back to first, but returned to the Keystone bag when Koney drew the second pass. Kilduff raised a short fly to Schultz, and Elliott followed with a single to left, which sent Wheat over the plate with what proved to be the deciding tally. When Schultz fumbled the ball Koney reached third and Elliott continued to second. The error did not help the Robins, as Marquard was tossed out by Hornsby.

The Cardinals scored their lone run in the opening chapter, and it was due to the batting activities of Janvrin and Schultz, who break into the game only when a southpaw is working against Rickey's men. Janvrin greeted the Rube with a long three-bagger to left centre, and scored on Schultz's sacrifice fly to Wheat.

The Robins evened the score in the fourth inning. Myers started off with a hit to Hornsby. Koney followed with a long two-bagger to left centre, the ball going past McHenry, and Myers did not stop running until he had crossed the plate. Kilduff sent Koney to third with a sacrifice, but Elliott and Marquard could not bring him home.

A double play prevented the Cardinals from scoring in the fourth inning, when singles by Stock and Fournier, coupled with Kilduff's muff of Olson's throw, resulted in the bases being filled with one out. McHenry hit to Olson, and the two-ply killing was put in motion, with Kilduff as the middle man. The Cards rallied again in the eighth, when they bunched two hits, but Marquard refused to falter and the side was held scoreless.

SOCCER ELEVEN DEPARTS.

MONTREAL, July 11.—Twenty-two strong, the St. Louis soccer football club, which is to do battle in five or six foreign lands this Summer, sailed for Havre this morning aboard the Canadian-Pacific steamship Tunisian. The tourists were thrice delayed in their getaway for Europe, the original plan being for a July 1 sailing aboard the Canadian Steamship Company's Kamarima. The Kamarima's sailing was postponed to July 15, and arrangements were made for the squad to make the passage by the United States Navy transport Pocahontas, but that vessel's sailing, set for last Tuesday, was delayed and the footballers then booked passage aboard the Tunisian, due to sail last Friday. Fog delayed the last arrival of the Tunisian at Montreal and she did not get away until 10 A. M. today. It is not expected the Tunisian will reach France before July 22, and it will probably be about the end of the first week in August when the Americans play their first game against the Swedes in the Stadium at Stockholm.

Thomas W. Cahill, Honorary Secretary of the United States Football Association, the governing national soccer body, was in charge of the team which sailed today. It is his third such expedition, as he directed the 1916 tour of the first American international soccer team and the Bethlehem Steel F. C. invasion of Sweden and Denmark last Summer. Cahill was accompanied, in addition to eighteen players, by John C. Meyers of St. Louis, physical director; Jean Roberts of Detroit, masseur, and James B. Henderson of Newark, N. J., as publicity representative.

Every player in the squad is American born. Fourteen were born in the City of St. Louis, where the national soccer championship now rests with the Ben Miller eleven. Five players in the squad well known to the East are Albert Blakey of Philadelphia, formerly of Disston, Merchants' Ship and Bethlehem; George J. Tintle of Harrison, N. J., formerly of Paterson F. C.; David Brown of Kearny, another Paterson player last season; Charles H. Ellis of Woodside, L. I., with Federal Ship F. C. last season; Harry Jay Ratican, St. Louis-born star of Robins Dry Dock F. C. of Brooklyn last season and leading goal scorer of the United States for three years, and George Post of Kearny, N. J., a full back of Erie A. A. last year. Blakey, Tintle and Ellis were members of the international team of 1916. Blakey, Tintle, Ratican and Brown were on tour with Bethlehem a year ago.

The St. Louis League players in the squad this year are Billy Quinn, Tate Brady, O'Hanlon, Hap Marre, Quinlan, Potee, Ollie Fink, O'Reilly, Becktold, Schemel, Corrigan, Vaughan, McHenry, Ryan and Riley.

The team will be met at Havre by a delegation headed by Ernest Viberg from the Swedish Football Association, under the auspices of which the tour is being made.

Boxing in Jersey City Tonight.

Considerable local interest has been attracted to the twelve-round bout between Jack Sharkey, west side bantamweight, and Frankie Burns, veteran Jersey City boxer, which will be held tonight at the Armory A. A., Jersey City. This bout will feature the club's weekly card. In an eight-round semifinal contest Frankie Fleming, Staten Island middleweight, will clash with Buddy Sprague. Two six-round bouts will also be contested, the principals being Knockout Joe Daly vs. Kid Murphy and Bullet Harrison vs. Willie Nelson.

Phillies Beat Semi-Pros.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 11.—The Philadelphia Nationals bunched hits off Ralph Comstock, former Detroit and Louisville pitcher, and won from the Rail-Lights, an independent outfit, by a score of 3 to 2 here today.

The score:

At Bat Only Twice but Player Scores Eight Runs

What is believed to be a world's baseball record was established recently in a three-game series between the Kalamazoo and Muskegon teams. Right Fielder Wilcox was officially credited with having been at bat but twice during the three games, yet he scored eight runs. On both official times at bat he made hits: He was able to score his eight runs by virtue of bases on balls and being hit by a pitched ball once.

DEMPSEY TO FIGHT WITHIN SIX WEEKS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—Jack Dempsey will appear in a championship match within the next six weeks, Jack Kearns, his manager, declared tonight in an interview. According to Kearns, the champion will be ready to defend his title in three weeks.

Bill Brennan looms up as the probable next opponent. But offers are numerous and each carries another choice, including Fred Fulton, Billy Miske, Gunboat Smith, Willie Meehan and Bartley Madden.

Minneapolis has offered Dempsey $100,000 as his share of the purse for a fight there. New York is also bidding for a championship fight, while Benton Harbor, Mich.; Milwaukee, Denver, New Orleans, Buffalo, Rochester, Connecticut and New Jersey are also bidding for matches. Each city has a preference as to who the opponent shall be.

Kearns states that Dempsey will meet all the contenders within the period of a year, or sooner if the public demands. As to colored fighters, Dempsey's manager says that this is a question to be determined by public opinion and sentiment. If the public clamors for a mixed championship bout, then Dempsey will probably answer such a popular demand, Kearns stated. He added that no offers for bouts with colored boxers had been received. Leo Flynn, business representative for Brennan, is pressing for a bout with the champion and he seems to have the inside track.

"I cornered Carpentier in New York," Kearns said, "and he boldly admitted to me that he came to this country to engage in exhibitions and for moving pictures. He sidesteps my challenge for a bout by bringing up his contract with Charles Cochran, which stipulates that he must fight in Europe, and binds him until Dec. 30, 1920. I met this reply by urging him to sign articles which would not become effective until after that date, but was unsuccessful.

"I do not think that Carpentier wants to fight Dempsey now. He may change later. Carpentier will not improve, while Dempsey will get better. He will take on all contenders."

Kearns said that it must be a most alluring offer for him to take Dempsey abroad for a championship fight.

"So far offers from Europe have fallen far short of what we could get in America," he said, "and further, I wouldn't want Jack to fight out of the country, as it is due American sportsmen that the match be staged on home soil. It would probably take double an American purse to lure him away."

Dempsey will meet Kearns in New York City tomorrow to arrange for a training camp. Dempsey plans to go right in training, and not await a definite understanding for a bout.

SHAW IS TENNIS VICTOR.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 11.—With out-of-town players beginning to drift in, there were some fair matches today at the South Side Tennis Club, where the national clay court tennis championships are being held. The best match of the day was between A. W. Shaw of Providence, brother of the Rhode Island State champion, and Arthur Hubbell, prominent in tennis circles here.

The Easterner won in three sets, much to the surprise of the large gallery, which had figured that the match would be easy for the local player. This impression had been strengthened by Hubbell's victory in the first set, 6—2. Shaw had been making the mistake of staying back and driving with Hubbell, who is one of the best getters in the country, but changed his tactics after dropping the first set and took the second, 6—4. The third was more easy, 6—1.

In all the other matches played the favorites won easily. Walter T. Hayes defeated A. P. Smith, champion of Ames College, 6—2, 6—0, his experience being too much for the boy, who is possessed of some good strokes. Two St. Louis players, Wray Brown and Harvey Frolichstein, won easy matches, while a third, George Pasmore, lost to a local player, Herbert Schiff, 6—4, 6—4.

S. Howard Voshell of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Roland Roberts of California, Ted Drewes and Fred Josties of St. Louis and J. J. Armstrong of Minneapolis are expected to arrive in the morning and to play their first matches the same day. R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls, N. Y., left for Chicago today, but is not expected to arrive in time to compete until Tuesday.

The summaries:

First Round—Arthur Hubbell defeated P. H. Hartney, 6—2, 6—1; J. R. McKnight defeated R. J. Shoemaker, 6—1, 4—6, 6—0; W. M. Goodwillie defeated B. A. Newberger, 6—2, 6—8, 6—1; D. Westervelt defeated M. A. Carpenter, 6—0, 6—1; George Neeves defeated T. E. Loehr, 6—3, 6—4; A. Lipman defeated C. F. Geiger, 6—1, 6—1; J. F. Chappel defeated L. G. Evans, 11—13, 6—1, 6—4; Clifton Herd defeated Frank A. Cohen, 6—0, 6—0; H. Frolichstein defeated R. A. W. Arnold, 5—7, 7—5, 7—2; W. E. Kramer defeated B. J. Luydens, 6—6, 6—3, 6—1.

Second Round—George O'Connell defeated B. Evans, 6—2, 6—1; J. C. Harris defeated H. Burlingame, 6—1, 6—3; H. H. Grinstead defeated F. L. Pond, 6—3, 7—5; L. R. Hayes defeated R. F. Farnham, 6—2, 6—2; A. W. Shaw defeated Arthur Hubbell, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1; Alex Squair defeated R. L. Barker, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4; C. C. Carlstrom defeated J. M. Lapointe, 6—0, 6—0; J. F. Day won from J. T. Bailey by default; Wray Brown defeated Evan Rees, 6—2, 6—4; Walter T. Hayes defeated A. P. Smith, 6—0, 6—2.

WESTCHESTER TITLE IS WON BY HUNTER

Gains Sensational Tennis Victory Over Throckmorton by 1-6, 2-6, 6-2, 8-6, 8-6.

Francis T. Hunter added another tennis title to his collection yesterday when he won the championship of Westchester County by a sensational victory over Harold Throckmorton in a five-set final, scored 1—6, 2—6, 6—2, 8—6, 8—6. The match was played at the County Tennis Club of Westchester, Hartsdale, and attracted one of the largest galleries of the season. The big crowd was rewarded by as fine an exhibition of uphill tennis as has been seen on local courts in many a day.

Although defeated, Throckmorton actually won one more game than his opponent, and while he was able to move along at top speed his work was consistently superior. He had played a semi-final match earlier in the day, defeating William Rand 6—1, 6—3, and the effect on his endurance became evident after the first two sets against Hunter. Realizing that if he won at all he would have to do so in straight sets, Throckmorton bent every effort toward making a quick and thorough job of it. In those first two sets he fairly scintillated, hitting everything with all his might, serving clean aces, and rushing to the net for superb volleys, outclassing Hunter in every department of play.

A Whirlwind Start.

The Cornellian was able to capture only one game in the opener and two in the second session, and seemed so completely baffled by his rival's whirlwind tactics that be failed utterly to get his own best shots into working order. But he kept on trying, and waited grimly for the inevitable let-down.

It came at the start of the third set. Throckmorton had been playing almost superhuman tennis, and it had nearly exhausted his energy for the time. As he weakened slightly, Hunter was after him with a rush, and for an entire set he became the aggressor, piling up a commanding lead which made Throckmorton eventually willing enough to concede the set. The latter knew that his supreme effort must be made before the close of the next session, and the resulting struggle was a bitter and practically even fight. They remained at a deadlock up to 6 all. Then Hunter finally succeeded in breaking through and winning the set, 8—6, squaring the match.

On physical condition, Hunter now had all the better of the argument, for his muscular frame never seems to tire, whereas Throckmorton is both slighter in build and less hardened to tournament play this season. Nevertheless, the New Jersey champion went right after the rubber with every intention of winning the match, no matter what the physical results might be. He was playing largely on his nerve, for there was practically no strength or energy left for his brilliant shots.

Within Two Points of Match.

By sheer gameness Throckmorton struggled ahead to a lead of 4-1, then reached 5-3, and at one time was within two points of victory. Throckmorton had broken three racquets by this time, and they had been at it for upwards of three hours. But Hunter also refused to quit, and his bulldog determination eventually won the day, supported by his physical advantages.

Hunter brought the game to deuce by furious hitting and unfailing steadiness, and then hung on while two service games alternated. At 6-all he once more made his supreme bid and broke through successfully, taking the set and match, as in the previous session, by the score of 8-6.

Hunter and Throckmorton are doubles partners, and will meet the present champions, George King and Allen Tobey, in the final fround of the team event on Wednesday afternoon.

VOSHELL AND HALL WIN.

Take Doubles Final from Anderson and Botsford at Sea Gate Nets.

S. Howard Voshell and Walter Merrill Hall yesterday won the doubles in the invitation tennis tournament of the Atlantic Yacht Club at Sea Gate, defeating Frank T. Anderson and Willard Botsford in a four-set final at 5—7, 6—4, 6—0, 6—0. The younger team had previously come through by a remarkable victory over the highly favored combination of Ben Letson and Fred Anderson, and their endurance was not good for more than two sets in the last bracket. They succeeded in winning the opener by splendid hitting and fairly good team-work, but after the second session had gone against them by a count of 6—4 their game went all to pieces.

Voshell and Hall, on the other hand, although slow in starting, worked up to a standard of tremendous efficiency in the last two sets, and even if their opponents had been fresh and playing their best game it is doubtful if they could have held the winners in check. Hall was very steady and resourceful, while Voshell camped at the net and smashed and volleyed with unremitting energy. His left-hand service was also a tower of strength and seldom gave opportunity for aggressive returns.

Frank Anderson and Botsford are a new combination in doubles, but their showing yesterday indicated that they might go far as a team. They had taken one set from Letson and Fred Anderson, the New Jersey champions, on the previous day, and won this match by merely dividing the next two, which proved no easy task. The first went against them at 10—8, but by a fine recovery they annexed the rubber at 6—4. Up to the time that they tired, Anderson and Botsford pressed their more experienced opponents of the final round to their limit.

TENNIS AT WOODMERE.

Seventy-five Entered in Annual Event Which Opens Today.

The annual open tennis tournament of the Woodmere Club starts this afternoon on the clay courts at Woodmere, L. I., with seventy-five entries. The doubles event will begin on Wednesday, but owing to the large number of entries in the men's tournament it will be necessary to postpone the mixed doubles until the week of the women's Long Island championship, beginning July 26. The Californians, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, Miss Helen Baker and Miss Eleanor Tennant, are among the competitors expected in the women's tourney.

FREEMAN IS FIRST IN CYCLING TRYOUT

St. Louis Rider Covers Olympic Distance Over Long Island Course in Record Time.

SECOND PLACE FOR NOGARA

World War Hero from Washington Finishes Three Minutes Behind Winner—35 Compete in Test.

J. D. Freeman of St. Louis earned unquestioned right to a place on America's Olympic cycling team yesterday morning when he excelled a field of thirty-four rival riders in the final road race tryout for the international classic, held over a stiff course of 108.74 miles on Long Island. The Missouri cyclist, riding at a steady, consistent pace from beginning to end of his arduous journey, crossed the finish line in the record time of 5:24:50, a new mark for the distance, unpaced.

Freeman's actual time shaved 1 minute 50 seconds off the best previous mark, made June 27 in the second of the Eastern tryouts over the same course, by Arthur Nieminsky, a local rider, who returned the fast time of 5:26:40.

Second laurels fell to A. Nogara, a Post Office Department employe at Washington, D. C., and a World War hero who, though a comparative novice at the sport, finished but 3 minutes 1 second back of Freeman. Nogara's actual time was 5:27:51. J. Otto, a Newark cyclist, was third in 5:28:30; Ernest Kockler of Chicago, Middle West tryout winner, was fourth in 5:28:45, and R. Grasing, Acme Wheelmen, of this city, a victor in the Eastern tryouts, finished fifth in 5:30:02. The latter, however, was protested and the award for his position will be withheld pending an investigation by the officials of the National Cycling Association. Sixth position was held by C. Stockholm of Chicago, whose time was 5:32:29, one second faster than the time of Nieminsky, holder of the previous record, who finished seventh.

Shows Great Endurance.

Freeman's victory demonstrated that he is one of the best amateur cyclists ever developed in this country. With his remarkable endurance powers the Missourian combines a keen knowledge of the requisites of distance riding and is well versed in the essential of judging pace. This he demonstrated with his performance against the crack amateur cyclists of the country, who bowed to the superior ability of the crack St. Louis rider.

A field of thirty-five riders were declared eligible for the test, which was fought over a course equivalent to the 175 kilometers the riders have to travel in the race in Belgium. Officials of the Inter-City Amateur Cycle Road Racing League, under whose auspices the trial was conducted, mapped out a course in Long Island, which carried the riders through Jericho, Hicksville, Newbridge, Bellmore, Amityville and Lyndhurst. The start and finish were at Floral Park and the course had to be traversed twice to make up the required distance. Following the custom of the two Eastern tryouts, the officials started the test at 6 o'clock, in order to avoid the afternoon's traffic.

Freeman was among the last to leave the starting point. He pedaled his steel mount away from an unusually large crowd of cycling enthusiasts at 7:20, more than an hour after the first rider had been sent off on the struggle which had for its objective a trip to Europe and the honor of wearing Uncle Sam's silks against the world's best amateur riders. A. Cochran, a fellow-rider from St. Louis, was sent away with Freeman, and when the pair started their journey there were but seven of the field of thirty-five cyclists waiting for the signal to start.

Gains on Second Lap.

On the first leg of the race Freeman failed to make any notable headway against the riders who had started previously. All were fresh and rode fast over the Long Island roads. With Cochran he plodded steadily over the dusty course, employing a swift, almost mechanical pace which sent him on his journey at a rapid rate. At the close of the second lap withdrawals because of wheel trouble or riders being hopelessly distanced decreased the field considerably, while the early starters began to show signs of the stiff test. Freeman, however, never faltered, and soon he began to cut down his rivals. One by one they were passed in the drive to the finish line, until the Missouri rider had left five men, who had started before him, to take his dust.

It was exactly 12:44:50 o'clock when Freeman, tired and weary, but with a satisfied expression on his countenance, pedaled his wheel past the finish line amid a resounding crescendo of cheers. Outside of the natural fatigue attendant upon such a stiff test, the St. Louis cyclist showed no ill effects after his hard ride.

Ernest Kockler, who held the record of 5:33:51 2-5 previous to Nieminsky's spectacular race of June 27, was the first rider over the finish line. He started at 6:11 and finished exactly 1 hour 5 minutes 5 seconds ahead of Freeman, who got away at 7:20.

W. Jones of Stockton, Cal., holder of the world's unpaced 100-mile record of 5:05:05, and regarded as a likely candidate for the Olympic team, was forced to withdraw from the race at the completion of the first lap because of a punctured tire. The California rider's time for half of the distance was 2:41:03.

Other riders who withdrew from the race through tire trouble or because they were distanced included J. Schneider of Buffalo; W. Van Zanta, Chicago; F. M. Tanhorn, Baltimore; A. Timmins, Newark, N. J.; I. Grougawsky, Buffalo; A. Strathan, Buffalo; L. Gaffney, Brooklyn; W. Wherry, Brooklyn; J. Shea, Brooklyn; R. Lyon, Hicksville, L. I., and T. La Rossa, Jersey City.

The order of the finish, according to time, follows:

1	J. D. Freeman, St. Louis	5:24:50
2	A. Nogara, Washington	5:27:51

Grand Circuit's Second Week Opens Today on Fort Miami Track.

TOLEDO, July 11.—The second week of the 1920 Grand Circuit harness racing season will open on the Fort Miami track tomorrow afternoon. All of the horses that performed during the opening week at Cleveland have arrived and are quartered at the track.

There are four events on the opening day's program. They are the 2:15 trot, for a purse of $1,200; the Fort Meigs 2:09 $3,000 stake pace; the Sherwood 2:12 trot for three-year-olds, for $1,500, and the 2:12 pace, for $1,200. All races are under the three-heat plan.

In the 2:15 trot there are twenty-one horses entered. The Fort Meigs Stake has nineteen, the Sherwood has twenty-five, and the 2:12 pace seventeen. Racing is scheduled for the first five days of the week, with Saturday reserved for postponements.

Ball Game Played in Water Is Latest Novelty in West

DEL MONTE, Cal., July 11.—A novel sporting feature to be staged at Del Monte July 17 and 18 will be a water baseball game between a team from the Olympic Club of San Francisco and Del Monte. Water baseball was introduced in the Roman plunge at Del Monte last year and proved exciting competition.

The game is played with seven men on a side—a pitcher, catcher, three basemen and two outfielders. A water polo ball is used with a short, stout bat. The rules are the same as in baseball, with the players swimming to the bases. Interest is added to the pastime in that the basemen must be on their guard to watch for the swimmers, as they often dive under and reach the bases just as the runners on a baseball field slide to base.

AMATEUR CYCLING TITLE FOR TAYLOR

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., July 11.—Fred Taylor of the New York Athletic Club won the amateur bicycle championship of America by defeating Anthony Young, Willie Beck and Edward Bendi in the five-mile titular contest at the Velodrome here today. The race was the last of a series of six to decide the championship. Taylor, Young and Chris Dotterweich were on even terms, all with fifteen points, before today's race. Dotterweich was shut out in a semi-final today, which put him out of the running and narrowed the struggle down to a battle between Young and Taylor.

The two amateurs put up one of the greatest races ever witnessed at the Newark track. Going into the last lap Young was leading, with Beck second and Taylor third. Taylor rode around Beck on the back stretch, and then started at Young. Taylor raced Young neck and neck for a half lap. As they came down the home stretch they were kicking stride for stride. Taylor had a bit more in reserve, and just nosed Young out by not more than two inches. It was a great finish.

Taylor is a Newark boy and served with the New Jersey Lightning Division, 312th Infantry, in France. He was wounded while the Americans were taking Grand Pré, being shot through the right arm by machine gun fire. He was in a hospital in France for three months and it was feared he would lose his arm, but he came out all right, and today is the happiest youth in America. Taylor will go to the Olympic games and so will Young.

Arthur Spencer won the five-mile professional championship from Willie Spencer, Ray Eaton and Frank Kramer. Spencer rode around Eaton on the last lap and pulled Willie into second place. Only inches separated the four riders. Orlando Piani defeated Alf Goullet, Eddie Madden and Harry Kaiser in the championship consolidation. Frank Kramer and Oscar Egg rode a hard race in taking the two-mile tandem event.

The summaries:

One-Mile Novice (Amateur)—Won by Charles Mazzeo, East Orange; Chester Fisher, East Orange, second. Time—2:13 2-5.

Five-Mile National Championship (Professional)—Won by Arthur Spencer, Toronto; W. Spencer, Toronto, second; Ray Eaton, Newark, third; Frank Kramer, East Orange, fourth. Time—10:35. Last eighth mile—0:12.

One-Mile Championship Consolidation (Professional)—Won by Orlando Piani, Italy; Alfred Goullet, Newark, second; Eddie Madden, Newark, third; Harry Kaiser, Bronx, fourth. Time—2:43 4-5.

Two-Mile Invitation (Professional)—Won by Harry Kaiser, Bronx; Reggy McNamara, Australia, second; Alfred Grenda, Australia, third; Lloyd Thomas, San Francisco, fourth; Gus Lang, Irvington, fifth. Time—3:43 4-5.

Five-Mile National Championship (Amateur)—Won by Fred Taylor, New York A. C.; Anthony Young, Bayview Wheelmen, second; William Beck, Bayview Wheelmen, third; Edward Bendi, Unione Sportiva Italiana, fourth. Time—2:32.

One-Mile Consolidation (Professional)—Won by Floyd Krebs, Newark; Peter Drobach, Boston, second; William Coburn, Newark, third; Charley Piercey, Australia, fourth; William Erskine, Australia, fifth. Time—2:32.

Two-Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Charles Kuntz, Bayview Wheelmen (200 yards); Walter Stein, New York A. C. (190 yards), second; Bobby Walthour, Jr., Newark (180 yards), third; Earl Adams, New York (170 yards), fourth. Time—3:57 1-5.

Two-Mile Tandem (Professional)—Won by Frank Kramer, East Orange, and Oscar Egg, Switzerland; Percy Lawrence, San Francisco, and William Coburn, Newark, second; Charley Piercey, Australia, and Lloyd Thomas, San Francisco third; Gus Lang, Irvington, and Menus Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I., fourth; Peter Drobach, Boston, and Fred Weber, Newark, fifth. Time—3:42 4-5.

ABE MITCHELL MAY PLAY.

He and Duncan Possible Contestants in Inverness Golf Match.

Although golf officials who will conduct the national open at Toledo next month are without definite assurance from Abe Mitchell, they are going ahead with plans for holding the international team match on the Inverness course. Originally this was scheduled for Aug. 7, but it has been changed to Monday, Aug. 9, and will be an appropriate curtain-raiser to the championship, which begins on Aug. 10. The last word from the other side was a cablegram from Mitchell's club, the North Foreland, indicating that it would permit him to make the American trip.

These same Inverness boosters are also endeavoring to persuade George Duncan, the new British champion, to visit the States this Summer. During the Winter Duncan announced that he was coming, but later changed his mind, although there was the implied possibility that he would come in the late Sumer or Fall. The P. G. A. has requested him to come in time for the championship and also for this international team match.

Under the proposed arrangements the English team will comprise Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, who are to arrive this week, and Mitchell and Duncan. The American team will be Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes, who has insisted that he play on the American team or none, Mike Brady and Jock Hutchinson. The plan calls for Vardon and Ray meeting Brady and Hagen in the morning, while Mitchell and Duncan are engaging Hutchinson and Barnes. In the afternon Vardon and Ray will play Hutchinson and Barnes, and Mitchell and Duncan will meet Hagen and Brady. The match will be scored on the point basis, and three prizes have been suggested, for the best 18-hole score, for the best 36-hole total, and for the low best ball.

GREENS WIN POLO MATCH.

Butler's Playing Is Feature of Victory Over Whites Team.

The Greens and the Whites, polo fours from the Gedney Farms Polo Club, figured in a well-played match yesterday afternoon on the club grounds in Westchester County, the Greens winning by 4¼ goals to 0. Butler's skilful driving accounted for three of the five goals made by the Greens.

The line-up:

GREENS.	WHITES.
1—W. Butler.	1—J. Snow.
2—Max Karminsky.	2—J. Abernathy.
3—Herbert Levinsky.	3—J. Cook.
Back—H. Fitzpatrick.	Back—Louis Berman.

Goals—Butler (3), Karminsky, Fitzpatrick.

RESOLUTE ARRIVES IN THE HORSESHOE

Special to The New York Times.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 11.—America's Cup defender, the trim white sloop Resolute, arrived in the Horseshoe here yesterday in tow of the tender Montauk and took possession of her mooring, which the Lighthouse Department planted a few weeks ago. Today she had two brief practice spins, during which she tried out a brand new suit of Ratsey sails and all hands, including Captain Nat Herreshoff, her designer, who arrived yesterday and is aboard the tender, appeared to be thoroughly satisfied with the new attire.

George Ratsey, who made the new set of sails, was there to see their first trial and he, too, was well pleased. In neither spin today did the Resolute remain out long or go very far. It was simply a case of giving the new sails a slight stretching to rid them of their wrinkles and the very light south-southwesterly breeze was ideal for the purpose. The Resolute dropped her mooring, and, getting out beyond the end of the False Hook, started in a reach out toward the Scotland Lightship. Then, coming about she returned to her mooring, the trial of the afternoon lasting but an hour all told.

The Resolute ghosted along at what appeared to be almost remarkable speed, considering the lightness of the breeze, and thousands of visitors to the shore points near Atlantic and Navesink Highlands watched the spin with the greatest interest, while motor tourists sought out points of vantage along the roads that edge the Highlands, particularly at Waterwich. The spectators had a remarkable panoramic view of the waters over which the America's Cup races are to be sailed.

Shamrock IV. remained at the Morse drydocks yesterday, but it is expected that she, as well as the 23-meter Shamrock, the houseboat Killarney, the steam yacht Victoria, the motor boat Molly Bawn and the tug Governor Smith, all of Sir Thomas Lipton's fleet, will arrive at the moorings they occupied off here before the Shamrock IV. left to be measured.

As Resolute heeled to the light breeze today it could be seen that her underbody for a considerable distance below the water line had been coated and disclored by the crude oil which some vessel had permitted to escape from her hold and coat the entire surface of the waters around the dry dock. The apron which was fastened to the defender to keep the oil off her hull apparently did not serve its purpose. More trial spins are expected today.

HAWK WINS BY 2 SECONDS.

GOLFERS WILL BE BUSY.

Many Important Tourneys on Links Will Begin This Week.

Days of rest are ended for the Metropolitan golfers, for today they will start the Summer's succession of tournaments. Since July 3, when the Sleepy Hollow invitation event was completed, the local players have been either inactive altogether or else dabbling around on their home club courses to keep in condition.

The Westchester County open championship will be held today at the Gedney Farm County Club in White Plains, and although it is intended to be a tourney primarily for professionals, assistants and caddy masters, enough amateur linksmen have made entry with Jay S. Jones to give it a thoroughly representative flavor. Thirty-six holes will comprise the event and play will be started this morning at 9 o'clock and this afternoon at 1:30. Twelve prizes, totaling $205 will be awarded to the dozen contestants who have lowest scores. First prize is $75 and a gold medal. No prize will go to an amateur unless he finishes first, second or third, and in that case his award will be in plate.

The professionals' biggest day will be Thursday, when the sixty-four entrants will fight for the twelve places of the Metropolitan quota for the P. G. A. championships at Flossmoor next month. The local qualifying play on Thursday will be divided between the Fox Hills and the Richmond County courses, both on Staten Island, half the field playing on one in the morning and switching to the other after lunch. Play will begin at 9:30 o'clock.

For the amateurs the week's big event, and in many respects the most important local fixture outside of the Metropolitan championship, will be the Victory Cup event at Wykagyl on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This war memorial, started last year, found immediate popularity with the simon pures and seems certain to take a place in the front rank of three-day tourneys. Last year's leg on the cup was won by D. E. Sawyer, the new Metropolitan champion.

There is the possibility that Harry Vardon and Edward Ray will arrive on the Celtic Friday, but the liner is not expected to dock before Saturday. They will attend a theatre that night and on Sunday at Siwanoy will begin their tour, which will carry them into most States and into several Canadian provinces.

TURF

If the pseudo-scientific theory of reincarnation should prove founded on more than wild speculation and the spirit, the heart and courage of Man o' War, ruler of the turf, should be some time incorporated in human flesh, another Napoleon would arrive. This son of Fair Play and Mahubah, wonderful as a two-year-old last season, is now, as a three-year-old, the racing marvel of all time. Never does he start without arousing expectations of mighty deeds, and never does he fail to surprise even those who expect the most of him. The mere prospect of seeing him indulge in what is commonly a mere canter against opponents wholly unworthy of his mettle suffices to draw to the course thousands of the casual racegoers in addition to the other thousands who are habitual attendants.

There was, however, a divided admiration in the splendid spectacle in the Dwyer Stakes on Saturday. The admirers of Man o' War—and that means everybody who has the slightest interest in the sport of kings—had practically abandoned all hope of seeing him in a real horse race this season, inasmuch as he is being started, for the present, at least, only in the three-year-old stakes, and in this division there appeared to be no worthy opponent in sight for the young super-horse. There was only one hope. In the stables of Harry Payne Whitney, John P. Grier, rated the second best of the two-year-old racers of 1919, was rounding into form. These two were yet to clash, and there was just a chance that Man o' War might learn what it is to have company on the way home.

The speed duel between the two is now history—genuine turf history of the highest possible type. Probably not a score of the lovers of racing present at the Aqueduct track on Saturday expected to see a real race. What they saw, nevertheless, was not only a real race, but the greatest race of many years. Man o' War's gift to his rival of eighteen pounds was not enough to beat him, but it served to enable John P. Grier to fight it out almost to the last gasp and to stamp him as prime minister to the king of the three-year-old division.

YACHTING

In the booklet issued by the New York Yacht Club on the regulations governing the international yacht races there appears on the first page of text, following the official regulations as laid down by the Department of Commerce, an announcement of the vessels to be permitted within the restricted area, and this list specifies a guide boat, the purpose of which is to direct the leading yacht toward the turning mark and avoid any possibility of her mistaking her course through some deflection of her compass or other cause.

The guide boat has served a most useful purpose in more than one race heretofore, particularly when steel booms were used, which, as they shifted from one side to the other, seriously affected the yachts' compasses. This year both sloops are equipped with wooden booms, and that may lessen the need of the guide boat. However, as the New York Yacht Club stated in its own circular that there would be a guide boat, there probably will be, despite some statements to the contrary.

This year the chances are that the time allowance may be close to three times as great as ever before. Although the official measurer of the New York Yacht Club has not announced what allowance Shamrock will have to give Resolute, still it is generally believed that it may be not far from six minutes, and in that length of time, with anything of a breeze, a racing yacht can travel a very considerable distance.

If the challenger is to make any sort of a good showing, much less win, she must be nearly as far ahead of Resolute as she could sail in approximately six minutes by the time she nears the finish line, and proportionally ahead at each turning mark. That means that she must be the one to locate the mark and act as guide boat for the defender. Those who have to do with the interests of the New York Yacht Club are not the kind to take any unfair advantage of an adversary, particularly when by so doing they might cast the slightest shade of doubt on their real sportsmanship, which in this case represents the attitude of the American public, for America's Cup races are more than mere club affairs—they are international institutions.

Any intimation that the New York Yacht Club had the slightest intention of depriving the challenger of any reasonable and prearranged aid in locating the marks is an injustice to the New York Yacht Club, and to the American public as well, for the club represents the great American public in the forthcoming contests, and the comparatively trivial amount involved in providing a guide boat would be the last reason in the world for not having one, as all who have any idea of the great amount of money already spent will appreciate.

The New York Yacht Club may be depended upon to give the challenger the better of any doubt, and, should there be no guide boat, which is highly improbable, then the club will have its own good reasons for not providing one, and those reasons may be depended upon to satisfy the "powers that be" of the Shamrock IV.

Unless all signs fail, some baseball history will be made at the Polo Grounds during the coming week. Babe Ruth, on another long-distance hitting rampage, has added three home runs to his credit in as many days, and now needs only three circuit drives to break the phenomenal record which he established last season. Judging from the distance Ruth has been getting for the last few days, it would not be surprising if he reached his new objective before the conclusion of the five games with the St. Louis Browns, extending from tomorrow to Friday inclusive.

That he will go far beyond his 1919 figure if he escapes injury is the accepted conclusion of all followers of the game. Guessing on the total which the heavy hitter will reach before the curtain is rung down on baseball next October is causing much interesting discussion, and it seems to be a general conclusion that he will reach the half-century mark, or come very close to it. The Yankees have played two games more than one-half of their schedule, and Ruth has made twenty-seven home runs. Only one park has escaped, and as the Yankees have only three more games to play in Washington there is no obstacle to steady progress in sight. Even Washington has been the scene of home-run hitting by Ruth, so that park cannot be listed as beyond his hitting power.

Some time, it may be in the current season after the record is broken or in future seasons when Ruth's home run deeds are being considered, the charge of the livelier ball or the short distance to the right field stand at the Polo Grounds may be offered to explain Ruth's remarkable hitting. Either charge would be doing an injustice to this mightiest of sluggers in the history of baseball. He is hitting the same brand of ball that other players are swinging at without doing anything unusual enough to attract great attention. He is hitting to spots where no player of the past or present ever has been able to hit, and the short right field wall at the Polo Grounds has not been of any real assistance. Proof of this rests in the fact that he has batted but one ball into the lower section of the Polo Grounds stand this year. He has hit over the roof, into the upper deck, beyond the stand or into the bleachers.

When Ruth first attracted attention by his long-distance hitting he was frequently compared with the great hitters of older days and some old-timers expressed the belief that he could hit no harder than Anson, Delehanty or some other sluggers of the past. Comparisons no longer are heard. Baseball stars of the olden days concur with the idea of present day critics that Ruth stands all alone in the art of long-distance hitting.

Sportsmanship of the highest order has traditionally been associated with the game of lawn tennis, and in the main its standards have been religiously upheld. But the rapid popularizing of tennis in America of late cannot be considered an unmixed blessing in its effect upon the spirit of the game. A "win-at-any-cost" attitude is becoming increasingly noticeable, even in the informal daily play on club and public courts, and some of our tournament stars are showing a tendency to develop into pothunters pure and simple.

Such a spirit was frankly admitted by the argument advanced in a recent doubles event, when the entire tournament was unnecessarily delayed because one team refused to play a provisional match on the ground that they might have a better chance to win if their opponents could be wearied by an additional preliminary encounter. Their attitude was the more markedly unsportsmanlike because technicalities had been distinctly stretched in admitting this particular pair to the draw after the event was already well under way. The fact that they eventually consented to carry out the wishes of the committee made no difference, for by that time it was too late to finish on the same afternoon, and the final round is still to be played.

In another and more important tournament the story was told of one man who deliberately gave a false decision to gain a crucial point, and later taunted his opponents with their lack of spirit in "giving in" so easily. If that is true, the player in question should be debarred from further tournament play.

The bad odor of another unplayed final still hangs over the metropolitan district, and here also there has been little evidence of sportsmanship. If tennis is to become an orgy of pothunting, petty gambling and childish arguments, the more restricted its popularity the better. Whatever the personal whims and eccentricities of a player may be, and no matter what his rank and prestige, it should be distinctly understood that any one entering a tournament places himself in the hands of the committee in charge, to be dealt with entirely according to the best interests of the event. A little more of this spirit on the part of contestants and a little more firmness on the part of the committeemen might accomplish wonders in bringing tennis back to its old level of unselfish sportsmanship.

The overwhelming defeat of France in the first round of the Davis Cup tennis competition augurs well for the chances of the American team to go right through to a challenge and a probable victory over the Australians themselves next Winter. Two open tournaments sufficed to show the consistent superiority of Messrs. Tilden, Johnston, Williams and Garland over any other European group of stars, and the loss of a tie to either England or Holland would now be an inconceivable upset. Close followers of tennis knew that the United States was sending over a practically unbeatable team in Tilden and Johnston alone. They may wait with satisfaction for the results that are almost sure to come.

TRACK AND FIELD

Princeton's triumph over Oxford in their dual games launched what is expected to develop into an important track and field fixture in the way of an annual international college meet. It cannot be said that it occasioned surprise. The result was forecast in the comparative strength of the contending collegians. The Orange and Black stars excelled their British rivals except at middle-distance and distance running, where the wearers of the dark blue showed superiority. The success attained therein, however, could not overcome Princeton's great strength in the sprint, hurdle and field events.

The remarkable work of B. G. D. Rudd, who aroused admiration with his wonderful anchor half-mile in the record two-mile relay at the Penn relay carnival, prevented a more impressive defeat for the British athletes. The South African middle-distance runner again showed supremacy over America's college athletes. Rudd's performances, including victories in the quarter mile and half mile, with a place in the 100-yard dash, indicate that he will be a potent factor in the Olympic games at Antwerp next month.

In view of the fact that England's Olympic team will be composed principally of student runners, the result serves in a measure to dispel any apprehension as to America's chance in the forthcoming Olympiad. The Orange and Black triumph accentuates the fact that England after the years of war has rather limited material for the international meet. The wearers of the Union Jack include among their numbers several brilliant athletes, but there is slim prospect of a really formidable team to question Uncle Sam's right to the track and field supremacy of the world.

SALLY ANN VICTOR IN 40-FOOT CLASS

Special to The New York Times.

SMITHTOWN, L. I., July 11.—In the diagonal twenty-mile run of the Eastern Yacht Club across the Sound from New Haven to this almost forgotten port today a special race was held for the New York Yacht Club 40-footers, and Sally Ann, owned and steered by Spencer Borden, Jr., of Fall River, won by a margin of 51 seconds over H. S. Duell's Rowdy. Zilph, owned by J. Hayes and skippered by Harry F. Maxwell, was a close third, but Shawara, Mistral and Pamparo were far behind.

The remainder of the fleet came across at will, but all hands were anchored under Crane's Point early in the afternoon. The final run of the cruise tomorrow will carry the feet to Larchmont, where it will disband. Vice Commodore Henry Whiton of the Larchmont Yacht Club joined the fleet on his power boat Usona.

The breeze was light from the east-northeast when the six little sloops came out from behind New Haven Breakwater this noon. As the run was almost before the wind, all six yachts spun around to the windward of the line until just before the starting signal. Captain Duell on Rowdy judged the time so nicely that he had his yacht cutting the line at a lively clip within five seconds after the start. Sally Ann was just astern, but Zilph, which was running down the line in the hope of crowding the other boats off, was badly blanketed and almost lost headway. Shawara chose to cross by herself, while Mistral and Pamparo were well astern.

All the yachts except Zilph broke out spinnakers to port, but had them boomed well out. The breeze, while increasing, did not hold true, and in one of the shifts Sally Ann, by a quick handling of her spinnaker, reached across Rowdy's bow and took the lead. Zilph held off to the westward and sailed practically the entire race under balloon jib.

Off Stratford Shoal Sally Ann was leading by 200 yards, but in the run to the finish Rowdy drew up, and half a mile from the line blanketed the Borden boat and nearly caught her. There was just speed enough in Sally Ann to enable her to creep out and win her first victory against her rivals.

The summary:

Sally Ann, S. Borden, Jr.	3:08:12
Rowdy, H. S. Duell	3:08:53
Zilph, J. Hayes	3:09:51

Rugby Team May Play Here.

America's Olympic rugby football team, which is scheduled to sail for Antwerp on Aug. 5, will be seen in exhibition play in this district before leaving for Europe, if plans of Rowland H. Ormsby materialize. Mr. Ormsby is now engaged in the quest of a capable team of rugby players, familiar with the game under English rules, with the idea of arranging for contests against the Olympic team on Aug. 3 and 4 or a single game on either date. Invitations have been extended to all local rugby football players to communicate with Mr. Ormsby at his office, 141 Broadway.

TAURUS BEATS MILKY WAY.

Inslee's Yacht First in Interclub Race Over Bayside Course.

W. L. Inslee won another leg on the championship in the Star Class in the fifth of a series of interclub races between yachts of the Manhasset Bay, Port Washington and Bayside Yacht clubs over the course of the latter in Little Neck Bay yesterday afternoon, when he steered his fast little yacht, Taurus, to victory. The Inslee yacht needed all the skill of her owner to cross the line in front of the Milky Way, which was guided by her owner, F. W. Teves.

On the final dash home, in which the light easterly breeze appeared to strengthen for a short time, the Taurus and the Milky Way fought it out to the finish in one of the finest exhibitions of seamanship seen on the course this year. The veteran, Mr. Inslee, made good use of his experience, and Mr. Teves was also warmly congratulated upon the manner in which he handled his yacht. The two leading yachts carried the colors of the Bayside Yacht Club.

Gordon Curry, who, with the Aquilla, won the first two races in the series, finished third in Class A. 16 seconds behind the Milky Way. Eight yachts started in the championship class.

R. D'Oench's Vega won in Class B by 2 minutes and 40 seconds over C. F. Searing's Neptune. Six of the junior class crossed the line.

MARSHALL VICTOR BY CLOSE MARGIN

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—Notwithstanding the fact that his position at adjournment was so unpromising that he would have accepted a draw, had E. S. Jackson of Philadelphia proposed it, Frank J. Marshall of New York, the United States chess champion, succeeded in wrigging out of his troubles in the final session today of the third round of the masters' tournament of the Atlantic City Chess Congress at Young's Million-Dollar Pier. Marshall, outwitting his younger rival in the ending, won the game after fifty-eight moves.

But for turning the tables in this surprising fashion, Mashall's prospects of winning the tournament would have been anything but bright. As it is, he is but half a point behind the leader, Jaffe of New York, who had a similarly low escape at the hands of Neidich of Cornell.

Players.	Won.	Lost.	Players.	Won.	Lost.
Jaffe	2½	½	Sharp	1½	1½
Marshall	2	1	Neidich	1	2
Mlotkowski	2	1	Jackson	0	3

Fotheringham and Davidson Win.

George Fotheringham and George Davidson were the victors over Carl Anderson and Tom Boyd yesterday afternoon in a professional best ball golf match played on the links of the Richmond County Country Club. Fotheringham and Davidson won by 4 up and 2 to play, and scored a best ball total of 69.

MISS BLEIBTREY IN A DOUBLE VICTORY

Ethelda Bleibtrey of the Women's Swimming Association, women's national champion swimmer and holder of several records, took a day off from her record-making yesterday, but didn't entirely desert aquatic competition. The local mermaid, together with several other prospective members of America's women's Olympic swimming team, journeyed to Woodmere, L. I., for an impromptu water carnival held by the Woodmere Country Club.

Miss Bleibtrey confined herself to a relay race and a 100-yard handicap event, in both of which she swam in winning form. In the relay race, at 400 yards, Miss Bleibtrey swam the last leg for the victorious team and gave her quartet a convincing margin of victory. The time for the race was 5:30 3-5. In a 100-yard handicap test Miss Bleibtrey started from the honor mark, and beat her way to a victory over Miss Helen Wainwright, a clubmate, in 1:13 2-5.

Miss Charlotte Boyle, national distance swimming champion, scored a victory from scratch in a 200-yard handicap race. The Sea Gate star led Miss Eileen Riggin, a clubmate, by about five yards in 2:58.

The summaries:

400-Yard Relay Swim—Won by team composed of Misses Lillian Stoddard, Women's Swimming Association; Elizabeth Ryan, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia; Eleanor Smith, Morningside A. C., and Ethelda Bleibtrey, Women's Swimming Association; team composed of Misses Florence Briscoe, Women's Swimming Association; Eileen Riggin, Women's Swimming Association; Ruth Smith, Morningside A. C., and Helen Moses, Outrigger Club, Honolulu, second. Time—5:30 3-5.

100-Yard Swim, Handicap—Won by Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, Women's Swimming Association (scratch); Miss Helen Wainwright, Women's Swimming Association (6 seconds), second; Miss Lonnie Fink, Women's Swimming Association (6 seconds), third. Time—1:13 2-5.

TENAFLY, N. J., July 11.—In the continuation of the trials to pick an American rifle team to shoot against Switzerland in a cable match to be contested before Sept. 15 next, Frank Winch, representing the Eisner Rifle Club, carried away the principal honors this afternoon at the National Range here. The rules for the match against the Swiss team will require each man to fire strings of twenty consecutive shots, but Winch was the only competitor today to shoot in compliance with this regulation. The others confined their efforts to strings of ten consecutive shots.

Winch turned in the fine score of 199 out of a possible 200 targets, while C. B. Atkins, who headed the other contestants, scored two 99s and a 100. Some excellent shooting was done by every man at the range, indicating that the American Smallbore League is sure of strong representation in the international match. The trials, to pick a ten-man team with two alternates, will continue for the next three weeks.

The match with the Shooting Society of Switzerland, which will be shot by the Americans at Tenafly and the Swiss at Berne, will present several novel features. The Swiss will shoot at a 9½-inch bullseye, 300 metres distant, the Americans at a 1 9-10-inch target, 50 metres distant, the conditions for the latter representing a one-fifth reduction. The Americans will use a 22-calibre rifle and the Swiss any rifle employing the standard Swiss army ammunition.

Surprises Experts in 100-Meter Back-Stroke Event in Olympic Tryouts.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Roy Kegeris of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, a swimmer virtually unknown to the Eastern swimming world, staged a surprise in the national Olympic swimming tryouts in the Lincoln Park Lagoon today by winning the 100-meter back stroke. Kegeris stroked the distance in 1:22 3-5, two and one-fifth seconds slower than the Olympic record held by Harry Hebner of the Illinois Athletic Club.

W. Kealoha, of Hawaii was second, H. S. Kruger, Hawaii, third, and G. K. Kane of the United States Navy, fourth.

Norman Ross of the Illinois Athletic Club, won the 440-yard national A. A. U. championship in comparatively easy fashion, using a powerful crawl stroke. He took the event by three yards from W. H. Harris of Hawaii, who was a yard in advance of P. Kealoha of the Hawaiian swimming team. Kahele of the navy was fourth. Ross swam the distance in 5:40 2-5.

Jack Howell of the Oakland Athletic Club, who won the 400-meter breast stroke, was disqualified after Otto Wahle of New York, who has been appointed coach of the American Olympic swimming team, protested that Howell advanced a shoulder instead of having both shoulders on a straight line at all times. First place in the event went to G. H. Taylor of the Chicago Athletic Association, who was three yards behind the Californian and a shade in advance of Stephen Ruddy of New York. C. S. Quinby, United States Navy, was third. The time was 7:00 2-5.

Coach Wahle left for New York tonight. He said the makeup of the American team would be announced not later than Thursday.

CHANGES AT EMPIRE CITY.

Yonkers Race Track Greatly Improved for Wednesday's Opening.

Visitors to the Yonkers course of the Empire City Racing Association on the opening day of the Summer meeting on Wednesday will find a greatly improved plant, President James Butler having completed the work which was held up by labor troubles in 1919.

One improvement which will meet with the approval of the public is the enlargement of the Jerome Avenue entrance. Splendid iron gates have replaced the old wooden barriers, and there is now ample room for nine machines to enter abreast, doing away with the crush at this point which was so annoying in former years. There are new entrances for those who come by trolley, and no course on the metropolitan circuit has as great a patronage by this method of transportation. Passengers arriving by Yonkers Avenue will find a new entrance to the grand stand at the upper end of the structure, and the danger from automobiles has been eliminated.

The grand stand, clubhouse and other buildings have all been painted, and a new judges' stand of modern type has replaced the old one, which cut off the view of many of the patrons on the lawn. The space in front of the clubhouse has been enlarged and now extends beyond the jockeys' quarters. The entrance to the paddock is through a walk in front of the clubhouse and jockeys' room. The horses will enter and leave the course through a new roadway above the latter structure. A new fence which extends well above the grand stand adds to the beauty of the course considerably. There are also new stables, while the course shows the pains which Supt. Mullarkey has taken to have it at its best. Many applications have been made for stalls and stabling is at a premium. In fact, everything points to a banner meeting.

As usual the Empire City Handicap of $6,000 at a mile and a furlong for three-year-olds and upward is the feature of the opening day. This event has always furnished a good race and this season should be no exception, as every good horse in the country with the exception of Man o' War is named for it. Conspicuous among the nominations are Sir Barton, Boniface, Wildair, Naturalist, Sunny Slope, Exterminator, Over There, Mad Hatter, Lucullite, Thunderclap, Star Master, Gladiator, John P. Grier, Upset, Audacious, Vexatious and Lanius.

Mr. Schaumburg has made a good book for the overnight races, and as his stakes have filled well he is bound to have good results. His chief two-year-old events, the Whirl and the Eastview, each of a value of $6,000, have filled well. The former, which will be run on the first Saturday of the meeting, has a fine list of nominations, with the unbeaten Tryster as the bright particular star. Opposed to him will be The Bohemian, which many good judges regard as his superior; Care Free, which is now being trained by Sam Hildreth; Star Voter, Jacobina, Pluribus, Sporting Blood, Eastview, Aillira, Southern Gentleman, Serapis, Tamarisk, Rockland, Dark Horse and Knight of the Heather.

On the same day the three-year-olds will have their inning in the Empire City Derby at a mile and a furlong. Man o' War will furnish a holiday for all the Bronx on that occasion.

RED BANDITS SLEW DR. FRIEDLAENDER

He Was Held Up with Rev. Dr. Cantor in Automobile by Robbers Who Killed Both.

CHAUFFEUR MADE ESCAPE

WARSAW, July 10 (Associated Press)—Dr. Israel Friedlaender, Professor of Biblical literature at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, and Bernard Cantor, also of New York, have been identified as the men killed on July 7 near Yarmolince, in the Ukraine, by three men wearing Bolshevist uniforms, according to information received today at the Warsaw headquarters of the American Joint Distribution Committee, to which both the victims were attached.

Dr. Friedlaender and Dr. Cantor had distributed more than 1,000,000 marks in the prosecution of their relief work and were preparing to leave the region in the Ukraine near which General Budenny was operating with his Bolshevist cavalry.

According to the story related by the chauffeur who was driving the car in which they were traveling, the armed bandits stopped the automobile and demanded money. The chauffeur, who spoke Russian, explained to the bandits that both the men he was driving, and who wore the khaki uniforms of the distribution committee, were Americans. The bandits persisted in their search, however, and while they were going over the car the chauffeur escaped. As he ran he heard a shot, he said, and saw one of the Americans fall.

The chauffeur gave this account of the happening on his arrival at Lemberg, and later, according to the committee's information, other travellers who arrived at Lemberg reported having seen the bodies of the two Americans and the ruins of the burned automobile.

The American legation here and the Joint Distribution Committee will make a thorough investigation of the affair and try to learn what dispositon was made of the bodies. Both of the Americans had been connected for the last six months with the Jewish relief work in Poland and had planned to return home in the near future.

Dr. Friedlaender's Career.

The Rev. Dr. Israel Friedlaender was in service the second oldest member of the Faculty of the Jewish Theological Seminary in America, the oldest being Dr. Cyrus Adler, and had been connected with the seminary for seventeen years. He was Sabato Morais Professor of Biblical Literature and Exegesis. He was also a member of the Faculty of the Teachers Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary, being instructor in history.

Dr. Friedlaender leaves a wife and six small children. Mrs. Friedlaender was Miss Lillian Ruth Bentwick of London, England. They were married Sept. 26, 1905. There are three sons and three daughters. Mrs. Friedlaender and the children were spending the Summer at Belmar, N. J., but as soon as she received word that her husband was reported to have been killed Mrs. Friedlaender left for their home in this city. This is at 29 Hamilton Terrace.

Professor Friedlaender started on Jan. 10 last on his fatal mission fully aware of the peril he would be likely to encounter. In March the State Department granted permission to the Joint Distribution Committee for all Jewish Relief Funds, of which Dr. Friedlaender was a member, to send its Ukrainian Commission into Soviet Russia at its own risk. Dr. Friedlaender and the other members of the commission, Judge Harry Fisher of Chicago, Max Pine and Maurice Kass, were then in Poland.

The application was made to the State Department by Louis Marshall of this city. Mr. Marshall explained that thousands of the Jewish population of Russia had been killed and that famine and typhus were prevailing to such a degree that conditions could be ameliorated only "by finding a way whereby medical aid and food supplies can be distributed forthwith."

In a letter to Mr. Marshall, Frank L. Polk, then Under Secretary of State, laid down these conditions:

"First—The purpose of their going is solely to extend relief to the suffering, and that they will not take with them supplies which if seized might be diverted to military use.

"Second—That as this Government maintains no representative in the territory in question, and has no relation with those who are there in control, it will not be in a position to extend any protection to your representatives. If they go, it must be at their own risk and under such arrangements as they can make with the local authorities without involving the Government of the United States in any way.

"In a general way you may be assured that it will be the desire of the department to facilitate the distribution of relief to innocent sufferers in Russia. It is necessary, however, to take every possible precaution against the misuse of supplies which may be furnished."

In an editorial of May 3, after describing the non-sectarian character of the drive to raise the money for the sending of the mission, THE TIMES lauded the members of the commission who were willing to make this hazardous trip.

"In their work of distributing food and medical aid through the ghettoes of Central Europe," said the editorial, "they are obliged to proceed without the protection of the Government of the United States, which has no diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia. Ample precautions will be taken, however, to make sure that the supplies will be used for the purposes in hand. It is a work of mercy that makes a peculiar appeal to both the hearts and interests of a common humanity."

Up to this "drive" the Jews had financed their own charities, but to send these supplies to sufferers in Central Europe they appealed for the aid of all persons. With the appeal was sent out a letter signed by Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, Bishop Charles S. Burch, Miss Evangeline Booth, Commander of the Salvation Army, and many other representatives of Christian churches. A statement of the nature of the crisis on the other side was prepared by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn, Congregationalist, and sent to every Protestant minister in this city.

Professor Friedländer was recognized as one of the foremost Jewish scholars of this generation. He was likewise a leading American Zionist. He was the author and translator of many Hebrew books and documents.

Born in Russia forty-three years ago, the son of Pinkus and Gitel Friedlaender, he was educated in Berlin University, the Rabbiner Seminar and the University of Strassburg. He was admitted as privattdozent for Semetic languages in 1902. Since 1905 he has been at the seminary in New York.

Dr. Friedländer was Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Bureau of Education of the Jewish Community of New York City, and a member of its Executive Commission. He was also Trustee of the Educational Alliance, this city. He was a member of the Publishing Committee of the Jewish Publication Society of America, an associate of the Executive Commission of the Federation of American Zionists, a member of the Deutsche Morgenländische Gesellschaft, the American Oriental Society, a corresponding member of the Indian Research Society, Calcutta, and a member of the Oriental Club.

Professor Friedländer was editor of S. M. Dubnow, die judische Geschichte (translated from the Russian), 1898; Der Sprachgerbrauch des Maimonides, 1902; Achad Ha-am's Essays (translated from Hebrew), 1906; Second Edition, 1913; S. M. Dubrow, die Grundlagen des National-Judentums (translated from the Russian), 1905; The Heterodoxies of the Shiites, according to Ibn Hazm, 1909; Selections from the Arabic Writings of Maimonides, 1909; Die Chadhirlegende und der Alexanderroman, 1913.

Dr. Friedländer contributed in addition many articles and essays to American and foreign reviews and magazines.

Dr. Cantor Rabbi at Flushing, L. I.

The Rev. Dr. Bernard Cantor, until he went to Poland, was rabbi of the branch of the Free Synagogue at Flushing, L. I., having been placed there two years ago by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, founder and head of the Free Synagogue, this city.

Dr. Cantor joined the Polish unit of the Joint Distribution Committee and sailed with its other members on Jan. 10 last. He had received permission to return to America very soon, but volunteered to remain abroad several months longer. He had been in charge of the distribution of relief in Warsaw, and was recently placed at the head of the Galician Division of the committee's work in Europe. Dr. Cantor was born in Buffalo, N. Y., twenty-nine years ago. He was educated in the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rabbi Cantor leaves a father and mother in Buffalo, N. Y. He also leaves a brother, Maurice Cantor, a lawyer of this city, whose home is at 480 Central Park West.

POLISH REDS HAIL SOVIET.

Denounce Own Government for Warring Upon Bolsheviki.

That the Polish Government has to contend with Bolshevist agitation at home while struggling to hold back the red flood in the East is shown by a violent pro-Soviet Russian pronouncement recently put out by the committee of the Communist Labor Party of Poland charged with furnishing the foreign press with statements. Copies of this manifesto reached Germany and were printed in some newspapers there. The Polish Communists' statement reads in part as follows:

"The Polish proletariat, famished, made wretched through unemployment and suppressed by the bayonets of the soldiery and police maintained by the international bourgeoisie, rises again and again, under the banner of the Communist Labor Party of Poland to fight against the reaction; but it has to pay for every uprising with blood and heavy jail sentences in Polish prisons.

"The triumph of the proletariat is also handicapped and made difficult by treachery of the Polish Socialist Party, which is lined up with the Polish Imperialists. Its Pilsudski is Commander in Chief of the counter-revolutionary army, its Daszynski is acting Chairman of the Committee for Foreign Affairs, its members voice their confidence in the Polish Government at the meetings of this committee.

"We must help Soviet Russia and the revolutionary proletariat of Poland!

"Poland's war with Soviet Russia is a war of international reaction and of international capital against the revolution. The Russian proletariat is fighting for the achievements of its own revolution and at the same time it is fighting for you, for the socialization of your mines and of your railroads. The triumph of Soviet Russia will also be your triumph.

"We hail the resolution and deeds of the dock workers in London, of the miners in England, and of the railroad men in Brescia (Italy), as eloquent expressions of the revolutionary solidarity of the workers.

"Workingmen, do something!

"Factory workers, turn out no munitions or war materials for the contractors of the counter-revolution! Dock workers, load no munitions, no cannon, no airplanes for Poland! Sailors and railroad men, don't man a single ship or train carrying munitions to reactionary Poland!

"Demand the recall of your soldiers who are in the service of those fighting against Soviet Russia!

"Workers of the world! Not a man, not a cent, not a shot, not an hour's work against Soviet Russia!

"Come to the aid of the red soldiers of Soviet Russia and help the revolutionary proletariat of Poland!

"Long live the international solidarity of the proletariat!

"Long live the world revolution!

"Long live Soviet Russia and Soviet Ukrainia!

"Long live the revolution in Poland!"

Two Rows of Standees at Star Vaudeville Festival.

The "Testimonial Benefit in aid of Nellie Revell" at the Cohen & Harris Theatre last night was all it was heralded to be—"a mammoth star vaudeville festival." It was also big in dollars, and profound in sympathy for Nellie Revell, who is in St. Vincent's Hospital, and whose needs the theatre and newspaper folk are looking after. Every seat was sold and persons were standing two deep.

Here is a list of the stars who kept their promise and made the evening a success:

Frank Tinney and Louise Allen, in a comedy skit from "Tickle Me"; "Alice Blue Gown," from "Irene," Miss Patti Harrold of the Irene company, Harry Tierney, the composer, at the piano; Eddie Cantor, Bert Kalmer and Harry Ruby, in "Beau Brummels of the Stage"; our own Nora Bayes, assisted by The Shadow; Florence Parkham; Blanche Ring and Charles Winninger, Mlle. Dazie, America's representative danseuse; Ann Pennington, Lou Holtz and thirty girls from George White's "Scandals of 1920"; George McKay and Rene Riano, from "Honey Girl"; John Steel, Pat Rooney and band, Stella Mayhew and Billie Taylor, Charles (Chic) Sale, impersonator of rural characters; Savoy and Brennan, "You Don't Know the Half of It"; Nan Halperin, in her song cycle, by William B. Friedlander; Van and Schenck, Juliet, "The One-Girl Revue"; Pee-Wee Myers and Ford Hanford, "The Boys From Arkansaw"; Jane and Katherine Lee, "The Baby Grande." Julius Tannen was master of ceremonies.

According to reports at the theatre last night, Nellie Revell is resting comfortably, and in a telegram thanked the audience for their support.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Charm School," a comedy dramatized by Robert Milton and Mrs. Alice Duer Miller from the story of that name which Mrs. Miller wrote for the Saturday Evening Post, will reopen the Bijou Theatre, Monday, August 2. The cast includes Sam Hardy, Marie Caroll, Minnie Dupree, Rapley Holmes, James Gleason, Margaret Dale, Blyth Daly, Ivan Simpson, Neil Martin, Florence McGuire, Carolyn Arnold, Naomi Johnson, Frances McLaughlin, Camilla Lyons, Mary Mead and Theadora Larocque.

Jack Norworth has been released by the Shuberts to H. H. Frazee and will be featured in "My Lady Friends." The company will open at the Park Square Theatre in Boston Aug. 9.

"The Century Review" and "The Midnight Rounders" will open tonight at the Century Theatre. There was a private performance of both shows last night.

Winifred Anglin and Jess Sidney have been added to the cast that will support Arthur Byron and Martha Hedman in de Flers and Caillavet's comedy, "Transplanting Jean." The new stars will begin their tour at Long Branch, July 26, and open in Chicago, Aug. 2.

Selden I. Rainforth has purchased Wagenhals & Kemper's interests in Margaret Mayo and Aubrey Kennedy's farce, "Seeing Things," which will continue at The Playhouse indefinitely.

Since his plans for this season were announced, Sam H. Harris has added another play to his list, a comedy, "The Rag O' Tag Man," by Sidney Toler.

MUSIC NOTES.

Artur Bodanzky is expected today from his Summer home on the New England coast, coming here to spend several days in testing instruments and reading music scores imported for the National Symphony Orchestra.

Herma Menth is to play Liszt's piano concerto in E-flat with the orchestra at the Stadium tonight. Walter Rothwell will conduct three overtures, Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave," Wagner's "Tristan" and Rossini's "William Tell."

Goldman's Band, following its regular concert at Columbia University tonight, will give one of the additional events arranged by its subscribers tomorrow evening at the Montefiore Home.

THE SCREEN

Mystery stories, especially those involving murder, almost invariably follow the same formula. There is nearly always an obvious effort to mislead spectators, readers or audiences into suspecting the hero or heroine, although no one ever suspects either for a moment, and at the end the foregone conclusion that the crime was committed by some one who has been carefully denied popular sympathy is revealed by clever detective work or an accommodating trick of fate—and the mystery is solved.

"One Hour Before Dawn," a screen adaptation of Mansfield Scott's novel, "Behind Red Curtains," at the Capitol this week, is a mystery story, and as mechanical as most of its kind. There is never any mystery about it, except, perhaps, in the question of which of two equally unattractive men the author will arbitrarily select as the murderer when the time comes to acquit the hero.

But for all this, the photoplay is more interesting than many mystery movies. In the first place, its photography in general is excellent. Also a number of scenes meant to be "creepy" are made so by the cinematographic skill of Henry King, presumably, who directed the production. And the acting is good, especially that of H. B. Warner and Frank Leigh. Furthermore, the introduction of the motive of hypnotism into the "mystery" gives an opportunity for a nearer approach to something really mysterious than is usual in the "Who Killed Cock Robin?" works. The story accepts hypnotism as a fact, but offers the question, Can the hypnotist make a good man do an evil thing? The hypnotist in the case (Frank Leigh) believes that he can; the hero (H. B. Warner) denies it. The hero submits to hypnotism, and the hypnotist commands him to "kill Harrison Kirke one hour before dawn." One hour before dawn the hero dreams of killing Kirke and the next morning Kirke is found dead. The hero doesn't know whether he is the murderer and spends an anxious hour before his growing sense of guilt is dispelled by a detective able to detect something.

In showing the hypnotist at work, the hero's hypnotically suggested dream of murder and the actions of the hero and the hypnotist after the crime the motion pictures are able to stir up considerable interest, especially as the acting of the principals in these scenes concerned is convincing. So, if the spectator will not be too exacting in his demand for logic and honesty in the plot and will forget the formula for a while, he can be pleasantly interested in much of "One Hour Before Dawn."

The Capitol program also includes an amusing Harold Lloyd comedy, entitled "High and Dizzy," and Prizma color pictures of the Victory parade in Paris.

There are many chances for original comedy, with satirical emphasis, in the story of "The City of Masks," from the novel by George Barr McCutcheon, at the Rialto this week, and the picture seizes some of them, though by no means all. It misses numerous opportunities because it takes its "romance" too seriously. The central situation is full of possibilities. A number of foreign Nobles, several Lords and Ladies, a Duke or two, a Princess and their former servants have been "Americanized" into a chauffeur, a governness, a female pawnbroker, a political boss, two shopkeepers and an indigent musician, and, while filling their publicly accepted positions seven days and six nights of the week, meet every Wednesday evening to "hold court" in Continental style. Thrown into contact with them in real life are such types of Western democracy as idle millionaires, ambitious parvenus and blundering policemen. The result is satirical comedy—and it is good, though not as good and abundant as it could have been, largely because Lord Eric, who is a chauffeur, and Lady Jane, who is a governness, are in love with each other and their conventional "romance," with its difficulties and dangers to each, is treated too fully and too much in the spirit of the usual movie stuff.

Good character parts are contributed by Theodore Kosloff (perhaps a comer on the screen), Edward Jobson, J. M. Dumont, Anne Schaefer, George Berrell and Snitz Edwards. Robert Warwick is the somewhat too ponderous hero, and Lois Wilson is an attractive heroine.

The cinematography, on the whole, is noteworthy, especially that of the snow and night scenes. The production was directed by Thomas Heffron.

On the Rialto program is a scenic, "Creation's Morning," which seeks to carry an idea in its pictures and succeeds in part, though the theme is not as clearly and gracefully worked out in some of the scenes as one would wish. The effort, however, is in the right direction and inspires the hope that it will realize more of its possibilities next time.

SEA GIRT CAMP OPENS.

CAMP EDWARDS, SEA GIRT, N. J., July 11.—The summer encampment season was opened here today with the arrival of 900 men and officers of the Sixth New Jersey Infantry, in command of Col. Howard S. Borden. Gov. Edward I. Edwards welcomed the men from in front of the "Little White House."

The day was spent in making camp, and tonight the men received instructions on military discipline, camp sanitation and personal hygiene. Tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock will begin two weeks of training.

New Appeal for Haverford Fund.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Thirty per cent. of the alumni of Haverford College have contributed $305,936.50 to the endowment fund campaign of $500,000, according to an announcement here today. An appeal to the team captains in all sections of the country "to take off their coats and finish the job" was mailed last night in an effort to have the fund subscribed by the opening of the college in the Fall.

Here to Survey Our Theatres.

Mme. B. Rasimi, manager of the Theatre Femina in Paris and the Municipal Theatre in Lyons, France, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Imperator to look into theatrical productions in America. Her theatres are operated entirely by women, and Mme. Rasimi designs the costumes for her own productions. It is understood that she will confer with Charles Dillingham regarding the establishment of a woman's theatre in this city. Harry Houdini, the Handcuff King, is also a passenger on the Imperator. Owing to the quarantine regulations, the liner will not go to her pier until 8 o'clock this morning.

PARIS RESENTS SPA CONCESSIONS

BRIAND AWAITS HIS CHANCE

He Is Believed to be Preparing to Unseat Millerand as Having Failed His Country.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 11.—Premier Millerand may have to face a storm unless he returns from Spa with something more tangible than the French have got so far. In the Paris press dissatisfaction is confined to hints and suggestions, but in the lobbies of the Chamber criticism of the Spa negotiations is widespread, and even members of the Government majority make no secret of their impression that France is getting the worst of the bargain.

Aristide Briand and his supporters have been active for some time past and it is known that the ex-Premier is awaiting an opportunity to combine the malcontents with the anti-Government Left—the Socialists, &c.—and overthrow the Cabinet. M. Briand's friends follow the same line as in their criticisms of Clemenceau.

"The one man in France," they say, "who is really of calibre to hold his own with Lloyd George is forced to stand aside. French representatives are hoodwinked and bamboozled into concession after concession by which no one on the allied side gains anything save England. What is the matter with Millerand? Is he, too, hypnotized by Lloyd George?"

As the Spa conference develops it is more and more evident, the French say, that the Germans are playing England against France so successfully as to obtain nothing less than a revision of the Treaty of Versailles. All the optimism engendered by Lloyd George's firm tone toward the Germans at the outset has vanished.

"We have given way about disarmament; we have given way about coal, and now we are on the road to give way about reparations," said an influential member of the Chamber's Foreign Affairs Committee today. "At the beginning, when the Germans proposed to discuss disarmament, coal and reparations all together, the answer was an indignant refusal. Today it is stated that the German plan will have a hearing. I do not wish to criticise the French Premier, but, after all, he represents not England, but France, and it is France's interests that are being sacrificed.

Any one that knows the Germans knows they can be plausible, but when M. Hue talks impertinently about diplomatists' decisions being unable to make German miners produce coal does he think we have forgotten how Germany drove French and Belgian men, women and children to forced labor in the invaded regions?

"In all this meandering talk about coal there is not a word that I can find about punitive action to be taken in case the Germans fall below whatever amount—which is certain to be far less than that prescribed by the treaty—they are called upon to deliver.

"Again, take this case: Here is a man [Stinnes] who presided over the barefaced plundering of French and Belgian factories. But the Allies permit him to insult them to their faces and the only reply is a mild request from Premier Delacroix that he be not provocative. When will the world realize that the only thing the Germans understand is force, and that every concession we make is regarded by them simply as proof of weakness?"

These sentiments are general in Paris, though most people go far further. There is an uneasy impression that somehow or other the British and Germans are playing a double game and that the French delegation is either weak or has allowed itself to be lulled into security.

Foch's departure last night, which was announced yesterday evening, has given rise to wild conjectures, of which it is only fair to say I am unable to obtain the slightest confirmation. It is being freely stated that the Marshal has left the conference because he is disgusted with the way the Germans are outmanoeuvring the French.

Even if this is false there is no doubt that capital is being made of it, and unless something more satisfactory to French interests develops soon it is doubtful whether the outburst of French indignation can be suppressed much longer.

LAUNCH ILLINOIS BOOMS.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Candidates for the Republican nomination for Federal, State and county officers launched their campaigns today at a mass meeting of Thompson Republicans at Riverview Park.

Among the speakers were Len Small of Kankakee, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor; Representative Frank L. Smith, who seeks to be United States Senator; William H. Reid, candidate for the nomination for Secretary of State, and Mayor Thompson.

The meeting adopted resolutions indorsing the Mayor's platform, the "pro-American wing of the Republican Party" recently incorporated at Springfield, and the Republican national ticket, Harding and Coolidge.

Mr. Smith attacked President Wilson and the League of Nations.

"In the campaign which will end in November Republicans—rank and file, party managers and party candidates—should concentrate on one single objective," he said. "That is to turn the Democrats out. This is an unwritten but fundamental plank in our national platform. That is the way, and the only way, we Republicans believe, to achieve the salvation of our country."

GERMANS PRODUCE REPARATIONS PLAN

handed over the mass of documents to the Secretary General. He stated that he wished to repeat that fulfillment of the plan depended upon Germany giving less coal than the Allies asked. "Coal is life or death to Germany," he said. He had hoped that at Spa there would be substituted for the unilateral figure of the coal commission a figure reached by discussion and debate. He now believed that was not the Allied intention. With the conference scheduled to end tomorrow night or Tuesday, it is unlikely that serious progress on reparations can be made at Spa.

Details of German Reparations Plan.

SPA, July 11 (Associated Press).—The German reparations plan is in three parts. It was submitted to the conference with the understanding that it must be accepted as a whole. The plan follows:

Part 1—Section 1—The German Government considers that the purpose of the present negotiations is to make a final settlement of their entire obligations for reparations.

Section 2—The German Government, knowing that it is obliged under the treaty to pay on May 1, 1921, 20,000,000,000 gold marks, considers that it has already paid not only that sum but a much higher one, according to its accounts.

Section 3 sets forth that in providing for the future the German Government would be unable to fulfill its obligations unless the German budget could be balanced.

Section 4 provides that the measure of Germany's ability to pay, owing to her weakened economic structure, requires that she should have necessary food, fodder, fertilizers and other raw materials.

Section 5 names the principles upon which the German Government considers its payments should be regulated—(a) by annuities, (b) annuities to be limited to 30 years.

Various other sub-sections affirm that a certain sum should be agreed upon, after the payment of which Germany should be completely free; that the payment of this sum should be arranged in various amounts; that a schedule should be worked out, and that it should not be absolutely regular in character, because it is impossible at the present time accurately to estimate the economic position of Germany for the next thirty years.

Proposed Rebuilding Program.

Part 2—The German Government's suggestions for rebuilding the war-destroyed district are in the common interests of all peoples, because the danger of a feeling of hatred and a cry for revenge will not disappear so long as this has not been done. The German Government has therefore, although not required by the Peace Treaty to do so, undertaken participation in the rebuilding of those districts. It declares itself ready to take part in the rebuilding and to supply German workmen under German authority.

"Upon this basis a German commission in September, 1919, made a hurried inspection of Northern France. The German Government is willing to undertake the rebuilding of the greater part of the destroyed regions in France. The German Government has also considered the help required.

"It recommends in the common interest that an international syndicate be formed, in which all States shall participate in the restoration of the industrial and agricultural regions, as well as means of transportation and in the rebuilding of houses, former residences, or for new settlers. This syndicate shall deal with contractors and engage laborers from all allied and neutral countries, as well as from Germany. The profits from all work of this kind shall be reasonable, and contractors and laborers shall be treated on an equal basis, whether Germans or other nationalities."

Part 3 deals with Germany's obligations under Article 236, Paragraphs 1 and 4 and Appendix 4, Part 3 of the Peace Treaty, to deliver materials for the immediate restoration of territories affected by the war, the value of which is reckoned as part of what is owing to reparations.

The note says that the Reparations Commission has not yet established what is to be delivered in the way of cattle, tools and raw materials, or what entire factories are to be restored, but that Germany is ready to make these deliveries to the extent which her resources will permit.

The German Government proposes a rather intricate plan of organization of its own industries in the various States of Germany for the purpose of making these deliveries.

Official Version of Proceedings.

"A plenary conference this evening considered the coal protocol. The coal question will be settled at 11 o'clock tomorrow. Dr. Simons, German Foreign Secretary, pointed out that the coal question was the central point of the whole economic life of Germany and that the solution reached by the experts would react on the German reparation plans, which could not therefore be submitted tonight as planned.

"M. Millerand expressed surprise, as no explanations had been given that the German plans would be subordinated to the coal decisions.

"Dr. Simons replied that the German delegation had completely prepared plans which had to be studied as a whole to be understood, but he had just learned that the coal deliveries demanded were more than double Germany's economic possibilities and amounted to one-third of her output. That would reduce the coefficient of the satisfaction of her needs from 60 to 40 per cent. Under these conditions the Chancellor, the Minister of Economy and himself had decided that the plans prepared on another basis could not be presented.

"The German delegation then withdrew to reconsider the questions. On the resumption of the sitting, Dr. Simons announced that they were in agreement to present the plans, so the final decision with respect to coal would not be taken until tomorrow. The delegation, however, thought that the object of the Spa Conference was to fix the coal future by a discussion of the German and allied delegates, instead of independently by the Reparations Commission. The coal question was one of life and death for Germany.

"Premier Millerand replied there could be no question of modifying Article 233 of the Treaty of Versailles, which must be carried out, though with liberal interpretations taking into account anything legitimate there must be in the German observations. Dr. Simons then handed the plans to the secretariat."

Friendlier Relations Up to Germany.

"It all depends upon Germany," said Premier Millerand to The Associated Press today when asked whether his remarks in the conference yesterday meant a change of feeling between France and Germany.

"Speaking in the name of the Allies," he said, "I told the German delegation what the feeling of the Allies is and what their attitude will be if Germany shows a real determination to fulfill her treaty obligations."

The Premier referred to his remarks yesterday when he said: "The Allies consider Germany an essential and useful member of the European family and are determined to help her toward recovery, provided Germany is equally determined to execute her treaty obligations."

This pronouncement made a marked impression among both allied and German delegations and caused some commotion among the French correspondents, whose first impression was that the Premier had gone farther than was expected.

DR. SIMONS MORE HOPEFUL.

Sees Opening of New and Better Phase of Negotiations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SPA, July 11 (By Telephone to Paris and Thence by Cable).—The meeting of the conference yesterday at which Premier Millerand in a conciliatory speech accepted the German proposal to submit the coal matter to the discussion of experts marks in German opinion the commencement of a new and better phase of the negotiations between Germany and the Allies.

Late last night Foreign Minister Simons said in an interview with the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"The ice has been broken today and I have a much more hopeful impression than hitherto."

As an instance of the changed attitude of the Allies Dr. Simons mentioned the coal question, but what pleased him and the other German delegates most was that a chance had been given to them to bring before the Allies their scheme for a settlement of the reparations debt. Dr. Simons admitted that there were differences among the members of the German delegation about the amount and means of payment. The greatest difficulty was the uncertainty regarding Upper Silesia. He said:

"If we are deprived of this great industrial district we cannot, of course, undertake to pay as much as if we are allowed to retain it. In the former case all we will be able to offer will be so far short of the Allied demands that it will be impossible for an agreement to be reached for some time. For our own sake and that of others we are most anxious to have the reparations question settled before May 1, 1921, but in submitting our plan we must make it clear that the total amount to be paid depends entirely on whether or not Upper Silesia remains German.

"For some years we cannot see how we can make any considerable payments. Our first need is to increase production. The amounts paid would increase in accordance with returning prosperity, but they must begin low. It is absurd for us to promise what we are unable to perform. The Allies must realize that it is ultimately the wisest course to allow Germany to recover instead of insisting on heavy payments."

Dr. Simons declared that the decisions of the conference to date imposed a hard task on Germany. The disarmament terms were very stiff.

"They will," he said, "lead to a very complicated situation. The Socialists and Party of the Left will applaud the decision and the Right will as strongly disapprove. But what will happen will be this—while the parties of the Right will give up their arms the Socialists and the Left will retain them in the hope of using them in a revolution."

Questioned as to the chances of a recurrence of a Spartacide outbreak, Dr. Simons said these extremists were still active and their success or failure depended on whether the terms given to Germany by the Allies permitted her to return to her old tranquil prosperity.

To an inquiry as to whether a revolution might not come from the other side—for instance for a monarchial restoration—Dr. Simons replied:

"Emphatically not. The failure of the Kapp-Luttwitz affair was an object lesson. Among the masses there is firm confidence in the future of the republic, and any attempt to restore the monarchy would be met with universal reprobation."

GERMANS SEE A CHANGE.

Were Getting Very Angry Over the Entente's Attitude.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 11.—The German correspondents at Spa record a great change for the better in the conference atmosphere since yesterday. Stinnes's own paper, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, says:

"Certainly great difficulties remain to be overcome but the road of an understanding in the economic sphere seems at last free."

The tone adopted by most of the other important German papers today is very different from that of yesterday, when nearly the whole press of Berlin was in hysterics. Even the Vorwärts described the coal ultimatum as impossible, amounting to "complete surrender of Germany's economic existence" and suggesting the probability that the whole negotiations would break down. Stinnes was the hero of the day in both industrial and conservative circles. His paper, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, discussing the coal demands, said:

"They mean not a method of carrying out the peace treaty but a breach of one of its fundamental provisions, laying down that nothing shall be taken from us which is necessary to our existence. Truly the treaty has been revised in Spa, but not in a sense of understanding. Not only Germany but the whole world will have to suffer for what a few short-sighted despots have done merely for the sake of laurel wreaths that may await them when they return to their own capitals."

The organ of the Centre, Fehrenbach's party, said:

"Germany's independence is destroyed. It is reduced to the position of Turkey as a semi-sovereign State, really controlled by international commissions."

The correspondent of the Deutsche Tages-Zeitung in Spa telegraphed:

"The whole conference is a farce. Every sensible man realizes that it would have been better to have broken up the conference after the first encounter with Lloyd George and endured occupation."

The Lokalanzeiger could not understand how any German Government with any shred of national honor could take a hand in "this murderous game," while the Preussische Kreuz-Zeitung is going "to devote its future to developing the national idea, which is the only thing that can one day bring to naught the work of the extortioners of Spa."

There has been no such storm in the German press since the armistice. Even such a moderate journal as the Berliner Tageblatt was advocating the departure of the German delegates, who, it said, were being treated by the Entente as if they were "agents of a negro tribe who are chastised because the slaveholders have not received desired tribute promptly and completely."

FINAL REPLY TO TURKS

Will Order Them to Sign Treaty Only Slightly Modified.

SPA, July 11 (Associated Press).—The final draft of the reply to the Turkish objections was adopted at the morning session of the allied delegates, at which Lord Curzon represented Premier Lloyd George, who was slightly indisposed and remained in his room.

The reply will be handed to the Turkish delegation at Versailles on Saturday, July 17, and will be published simultaneously in Paris and London. It calls upon the Turks to sign the treaty as drafted, with only slight modifications.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Pressure has fallen generally throughout the country, except in the Southeast, and is lowest in Northwest Minnesota and Northern Utah.

There were no temperature changes of consequence except in a few scattered localities.

There will be showers Monday in the Upper Ohio Valley, the Lower Lake Region, the Atlantic States and the south portions of the East Gulf States, followed by fair weather Tuesday, except in New England and along the South Atlantic and East Gulf Coasts, where showers will probably continue.

Temperatures will rise over interior districts.

Winds Off the Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras will be moderate and mostly south.

FORECAST TODAY AND TUESDAY.

New England—Local showers Monday and probably Tuesday.

3 A. M.	70	62	4 P. M.	77	71
6 A. M.	69	61	6 P. M.	73	69
9 A. M.	70	63	9 P. M.	71	66
12 M.	75	66	11 P. M.	71	66

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 74; for the corresponding date last year it was 66; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 73. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 69; at 8 P. M. it was 70. Maximum temperature, 80 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 68 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 95 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 84 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.21 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.13 inches.

BOY DIVES TO HIS DEATH

Three persons were drowned—two at the Rockaways and one at Long Beach—and many were saved from a similar fate only by the desperate battling of lifeguards in waters about New York yesterday afternoon.

In addition one boy died after he had dived into the Steeplechase Park tank at Coney Island and struck the bottom, and another was taken to Coney Island Hospital with a broken back from the same tank, after he had plunged too heavily against its floor. The park physician said that death in the first instance was caused by heart disease.

A youth was drowned in shallow water in the tank at Starlight Park, 177th Street and the Bronx, in the afternoon. He became unconscious from a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Carl A. Johnson of 565 Henry Street, Brooklyn, Captain of the barge Harry F., slipped while going ashore at Pier 2 of the Tidewater Oil Company, Bayonne, N. J., yesterday afternoon, and was drowned.

Although it early was apparent that the undertow along the Long Island sands was unusually vicious yesterday, no one realized its deceptive power until suddenly three persons were drowned and a large number of others swept beyond their depth.

Jonathan Ford, 20, of 17 Lafayette Street, Glendale, was drowned off Rockaway Point. Frank Thompson, 26, negro, of 187 Osborn Street, Brooklyn, was drowned off Beach 106th Street, Seaside. Irving Crukin, 21, of 953 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, lost his life at Long Beach. His body was washed ashore.

Lifeguards had a desperate time at the Rockaways. Eight persons, five of them women, were brought ashore by Walter Bailee, lifeguard at Summerfield Beach. First he took aboard a man and woman in his lifeboat, which was nearly swamped several times. Right afterward he was trying to pull two men into the boat when it capsized in the rollers. With the aid of other strong swimmers he brought them ashore exhausted.

Lifeguard "Al" Diamond reported that he had rescued a man and woman off Beach Seventy-ninth Street, Rockaway. They left without giving their names. Joseph Citron of 1,180 Franklin Avenue, the Bronx, rescued a girl who had been pulled about 200 feet off shore by the racing current.

Captain William Fischman and Surfman Perry of the Holland Life Saving Station rescued two women and a man. Many other persons whose names were not reported were saved from the treacherous surf by amateur and professional life savers.

Tobert Kolbert, 17, of 315 Eckford Street, Brooklyn, was the youth who died following a dive into the Steeplechase tank. He was taken from the water immediately by other bathers who saw his body go limp. He died while efforts at resuscitation were being made. Dr. Charles Hall, attached to the park, said that heart disease caused death.

Clyde Sellman, 17, of 821 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken, N. J., was the youth who suffered a broken back from his dive into the same tank.

John Hummell, 22, of the French Y. M. C. A., at 107 West Fifty-fourth Street, was said by the management of Starlight Park to have drowned in about four and one-half feet of water, following a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Other swimmers, including Maurice Rubely, a friend of Hummell, dived for the body. After about five minutes Joseph Russell, lifeguard, found it in ten feet of water, which is the maximum depth of water in the pool.

The tragedy caused a deal of excitement among the 3,500 persons in the park. They pressed about while Dr. Rothman, the park physician, and Ambulance Surgeon Martin of Fordham Hospital worked more than an hour in a vain attempt at resuscitation.

Dr. Rothman said that the hemorrhage of the lungs caused Hummell to stop breathing, and left no air in his lungs when he was submerged.

KILLED DIRECTING AUTOIST.

WESTFIELD, N. J., July 11.—William Wright, 35 years old, of Fanwood, N. J., was killed this afternoon by an automobile, owned and driven by Fred A. Read of Roselle, N. J.

Wright, in stepping to the roadway to direct an autoist to Dunellen, stepped into the path of the car driven by Read, who was attempting to pass the other machine.

BRIDE IN IGNORANCE SEES HUSBAND DROWN

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Harry L. Raff, 26, of Baltimore, was drowned at noon today in the Chesapeake at Betterton, Md., while his bride, not knowing his identity then, was one of thousands of spectators. Mrs. Raff, who was coming in on a steamer to meet her husband, said to friends with her as swimmers were diving for the body: "I hope that isn't Harry."

While Mrs. Raff was still ignorant that the victim was her husband, Charles J. Boylan, a former army aviator, and at present a flying instructor, landed in his seaplane and joined in the search for the body. He found it and brought it to the beach. Then, when he saw that efforts at resuscitation were not showing results, he jumped into his machine and flew twenty miles to the Government hospital and returned in forty minutes with a pulmotor and a trained nurse.

Meanwhile Mrs. Raff had come ashore from the steamer. Disappointed at not being met at the pier by her husband, she went with the other passengers to the spot on the beach where they were trying to revive Raff. When she saw his body she fainted. She was taken to a nearby hotel, and her condition is said to be critical.

All efforts to resuscitate Raff failed. His death followed "one last dive" made just before he was going to dress to meet Mrs. Raff. He wasn't far off the end of the long pier when he called for help and threw up his arms, sinking before any one could reach him.

WANTS CITY TO BUILD AND RENT HOMES

VIEW OF REAL ESTATE MEN

Statement by Board Advocates Total Exemption of Mortgage Interest from Income Tax.

Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, in a letter to Governor Smith, made public yesterday, urges the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature this Summer to consider measures for the relief of the housing situation in this city. Mr. Curran practically wants the Legislature to take steps to amend the State Constitution in such a way as to give the city power to utilize its own land in the construction of municipal apartment houses to be rented to families.

The letter to Governor Smith follows:

Hon Alfred E. Smith, Governor of the State of New York, Albany, N. Y.

Dear Governor: The housing situation throughout the State, and particularly in New York City, is in such a deplorable condition that on March 20 I addressed a communication to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment requesting that the necessary steps be taken to appropriate $10,000,000 for the purpose of enabling the city to build housing accommodations on city-owned vacant real estate. At the same time I requested the Controller to furnish the board with a list of all city-owned vacant real property.

The question as to whether the city had the right to engage in such an enterprise was referred to the Corporation Counsel, and on April 6, 1920, the Acting Corporation Counsel declared in part as follows:

"It is my opinion, therefore, that under the Constitution and the laws of this State the city has no power to construct municipal apartment houses and rent them to private parties.

"Municipal housing is one of the many grave industrial and social problems the great war has precipitated and which will require bold initiative and constructive legislation of a high order to meet and properly solve.

"Unhealthy living conditions, resulting from overcrowding, as is generally admitted, not only breed disease but constitute the chief cause for industrial unrest.

"To remedy these conditions the Constitution (Article VIII., Section 10) should be amended in such manner as to permit the cities to incur indebtedness for the particular purpose."

The board thereupon directed that a bill be prepared by the Corporation Counsel for introduction in the Legislature, and on April 13, 1920, such bill containing an amendment to the State Constitution, as recommended by Acting Corporation Counsel Nicholson, was introduced in the Senate by Senator Dunnigan, but owing to the late date it was introduced it failed of passage.

In view of the fact that this failure will make it impossible to have such amendment acted upon within the current year, it will cause a delay of two years, unless a special session of the Legislature be called to enact this and other legislation on the subject

As the congestion in places of habitation is rapidly increasing, I respectfully ask that you call an extra session of the Legislature at such date as you may determine for the purpose of enabling the Legislature to consider the amendment to the State Constitution above referred to, and any other legislation which may aid in accomplishing prompt relief.

Yours very truly,
President, Borough of Manhattan.

Would Exempt Mortgage Interest.

Commenting on an appeal for a special session of the Legislature to consider the housing problem made last week by State Senator Lockwood of Brooklyn, joint author of the Anti-Rent Profiteering bill, Richard O. Chittick, Executive Secretary of the Real Estate Board of New York, yesterday gave out a statement of the board's views which in part reads as follows:

"The Real Estate Board warned Senator Lockwood and the entire State Legislature that these rent bills would have exactly the effect they are having; that by including all property owners and landlords as 'rent profiteers' and placing sweeping restrictions upon control of residential property, the Legislature would be instrumental in aggravating the housing shortage.

"In this same connection it urged upon Senator Lockwood and the Legislature the absolute necessity of enacting legislation exempting the interest on mortgages from the provisions of the income tax law.

"But if the Legislature, either at a special session or at the next session, fails to grant total exemption instead of an exemption up to $40,000, it will merely be scratching the surface and making it easy for those who deal in large mortgages of a kind that can be split up into smaller ownership to control the replacement of mortgage money upon open mortgages and mortgages coming due.

"What is needed is not a partial exemption, but a total exemption, and the danger of an exemption by the State up to $40,000 only will be its effect upon Congress, which may be inclined to follow the State instead of granting total exemption.

"If the Legislature does not understand the necessity for total exemption of the interest on mortgages, real estate people and lending institutions certainly do, and they realize that that is one of the important factors in the building situation.

"Between Jan. 1 and July 1 in the Bronx and Manhattan alone approximately thirty million dollars in real estate mortgages were assigned from holders subject to the income tax to holders not subject to the tax."

80,000 Complaints Made.

The new State rent laws are ineffective and have not deterred profiteering landlords from continuing rent-gouging assaults on thousands of tenants in New York City, according to Leo Kenneth Mayer, chief counsel for the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering. The landlords are adopting divers methods to circumvent the new laws, Mr. Mayer declared, and have been successful to a certain extent.

The Rent Committee, which has been in operation for 15 months, has handled more than 80,000 cases, of which 62,000 have been settled in and out of court. Of the remaining cases, 8,000 are listed as hopeless and no settlement is possible. There is a constant flood of complaints into the committee's office, which is visited by about 5,000 tenants every week.

KAISER HAS RETAIND 1,000 SILVER PLATES

"NEEDED FOR DAILY USE"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 11.—It would seem that even in his modest Dutch retreat the ex-Kaiser keeps up a considerable establishment. At any rate he requires for "ordinary daily use" exactly 1,000 silver plates. This fact was brought to light yesterday at a sitting of the Legal Committee of the Prussian Parliament for the discussion of the proposed law to regulate Hohenzollern property as between the State and the former ruling house.

"All that has so far been handed over," declared a representative of the Government, "consists of household articles in ordinary daily use." Whereupon an inquisitive Socialist asked if in this category was included "1,000 silver plates already sent to Holland." Fearing that, perhaps, if this was taken as a standard of Wilhelm's requirements, there soon would not be much left for the community, the Independent Socialists moved a resolution declaring the whole Hohenzollern property forfeited to the State. This was defeated by votes of the Conservative and Bourgeois parties and the whole business was once more postponed for further inquiries, in face of the protest of all the Socialists, one of whom pointed out that "the tremendous fortune at the disposal of the Hohenzollerns constitute a standing danger to the republic."

GREEKS AND ITALIANS IN CLASH NEAR AIDIN

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 10.—Greek and Italian troops have clashed at Nazilli, twenty-five miles northeast of Aidin, in the Italian zone. The Greeks claimed the right to enter the Italian zone in pursuit of Turkish Nationalists organizing attacks there against the Greeks. The Italians claimed that they were policing the district and declared that they were not willing to permit the Greeks to intervene.

The feeling is described as extremely bitter between the Italian and Greek officials. The Greeks, it is said, charge that the Italians are using all possible means to further the interests of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader.

BRUSSA, Asia Minor, July 8 (Associated Press).—Colonel Pankalos, Greek Chief of Staff, arrived at Mudania from Panderma this afternoon with a detachment of Greek troops. A British marine was killed during the landing at Mudania.

The Turks are reported to be massing forces in the hills about Eskishehr (about 100 miles southeast of Brussa), where heavy fighting is looked for. Nationalist bands are adopting guerrilla warfare, harrassing the Greek movements, but are using nothing heavier than machine guns.

LIBERALS NAME GOMEZ.

HAVANA, July 11.—The National Liberal Convention tonight unanimously nominated former President José Miguel Gomez as its candidate for the Presidency.

Later, General Gomez, in a speech to the convention, outlined the party's platform, which included planks calling for legislation to lower the cost of living, for the protection of working women, for repeal of the war stamp tax, favoring tariff reform and defense of Cuba's industrial production.

In an interview General Gomez said that if elected he would endeavor to make more cordial than ever the relations between Cuba and the United States.

Loan to Clean Up Mexico City.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 11.—Two more cases of plague have been found at Vera Cruz. The local Board of Aldermen, under Rafael Zubaran, Mayor of the Federal District, has opened a campaign to clean up Mexico City. The Federal Government proposes a loan to the city Government to place the city in perfect sanitary condition.

FLETCHER ADVISES DELAY ON MEXICO

Ex-Ambassador Writes Colby That Only De Facto Recognition Should Be Extended.

WOULD ASK GUARANTEES

No Retroactive Laws and Return of Property Should Be Made Conditions, He Says.

GREENCASTLE, Pa., July 11 (Associated Press).—Warning against premature recognition of the new Mexican Government was given the Administration today by Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Mexico.

In a letter to Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, he urged that in no case should the recognition of the De la Huerta régime be other than that of a de facto character, with the understanding that even this would be withdrawn should subsequent events prove that it was prematurely extended.

Mr. Fletcher's letter resulted from negotiations now in progress between the State Department and Dr. Iglesias Calderon, Mexican High Commissioner to the United States, regarding recognition of the new Government at Mexico City.

Dr. Iglesias Calderon has assured the American Government of the desire of the new régime to live up to the obligations of a government, but Mr. Fletcher in his letter suggested that before any recognition was extended an informal agreement be made with the Mexican authorities that American citizens would not be deprived of their property rights without compensation and that such property as they were deprived of during the Carranza régime without compensation would be returned to them.

Mr. Fletcher was the American Ambassador to Mexico during the Carranza Administration, but resigned several months ago because of a disagreement with the American Government's policy toward Mexico. His letter to Secretary Colby follows:

"In my capacity as a private citizen interested in good relations between the United States and Mexico, may I suggest for such consideration as they may deserve the following regarding the recognition of the new Government of Mexico:

"Without animadverting to past difficulties and with a view to avoiding a repetition of them I would respectfully suggest:

"First, that the United States should not recognize the new government of Mexico until it is reasonably clear that said government is not only willing but able to discharge the fundamental duties of a government, i. e., to maintain law and order and to afford adequate protection to the lives and interests of foreigners in Mexico.

"Second, that the new régime should be recognized, if at all, merely as the de facto government and it should be informed that such recognition was provisional and would be withdrawn if it should subsequently prove to have been prematurely extended.

"Third that before extending such de facto recognition we should take steps to secure an informal agreement (to later be made formal if desired) covering the following pending matters:

"(a) That the constitution of 1917 and the law passed in pursuance thereof shall not be given retroactive effect as to property lawfully acquired previous to its promulgation and that American citizens shall not be deprived of their lawfully acquired rights without compensation.

"(b) Return to American citizens and corporations of such property (excluding taxes) as they were deprived of during the Carranza régime without compensation by either national or State Governments of Mexico.

"(c) Immediate constitution of a mixed Mexican-American claims commission to adjust all claims of American citizens against the Government of Mexico and of Mexican citizens against the Government of the United States.

"(d) Appointment of commissioners to settle definitively the Omaizal and all other boundary questions, including the deflection, canalization and protection of the waters of the Colorado River for the irrigation of the Imperial Valley in Mexico and in the United States. I make no mention of financial or economic matters, believing they should form the subject matter of negotiations subsequent to recognition.

"We should make it clear that these conditions are attached to our recognition merely because our unfortunate experiences with the Carranza Government make them appear necessary, to avoid a future trouble and above all that we are not asking for our nationals a privileged position, but simple justice."

TO AID PETROLEUM INTERESTS.

Mexican Secretary Promises Changes in Administration of Law.

MEXICO CITY, July 10.—Administration of the petroleum department of the Secretariat of Commerce and Industry will be altered in a way that will aid the petroleum interests, according to General Jacinto Treviño, Minister of Commerce and Industry, as quoted in the newspaper El Universal. General Treviño added that the changes would be kept within the letter of the article of the Constitution providing for the nationalization of the subsoil.

Provisional President De la Huerta and General Treviño will hold a conference with representatives of the petroleum interests next week, at which the proposed changes will be discussed.

General Treviño announced that all metal mines in Mexico now are operating with the exception of a few in Chihuahua.

ALVARADO NOT ASKING LOAN.

"Study of Mexican Economic Problem" Object of His Visit.

MEXICO CITY, July 11.—The purpose of the visit of General Alvarado, the Minister of Finance, to the United States, which he will make shortly, will be to aid in his study of the Mexican economic problem, it was officially announced today.

He will not seek a loan, the announcement declared.

REBELS CUT LINE TO BORDER

Head of Uprising in San Luis Potosi Will Surrender.

MEXICO CITY, July 11.—The railway line between Mexico City and Nuevo Laredo has been cut by rebels at Santa Elena, in the State of Coahuila, near the northeastern boundary of that State, according to newspaper dispatches today.

General Manuel Larraga, who recently headed an uprising in the State of San Luis Potosi, has sent an emissary to call on Provisional President de la Huerta to arrange terms for surrender, according to the newspaper Excelsior.

The strike of railroad employes in the State of Tampico has been terminated, according to dispatches received by the Excelsior.

A project for the establishment of radio stations in the capitals of all Mexican States has been approved by Provisional President de la Huerta, the Excelsior says. The first station will be erected at Hermosillo.

Duel Over Carranza's Death.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 11.—It is reported that a duel has been arranged between General Marciano Gonzales and General Trevino. Gonzales, a Congressman, charged in open sessions that Trevino bore the main responsibility for the death of Carranza.

700 Russian Prisoners March on Antwerp, When They Hear Their Exchange is Delayed

ANTWERP, July 11.—A force of 700 Russian prisoners of war who had been interned near Turnhout, twenty-five miles northeast of this city, escaped from the internment camp last night and marched upon Antwerp. A regiment of cavalry sent in pursuit of the Russians surrounded them and interned them anew in one of the Antwerp forts.

The prisoners were a part of a contingent of 1,100 Russians who were to have been released on Saturday for return home. They were informed late in the day, however, that owing to a failure by Great Britain and the Soviet Government to reach a definite agreement so far with regard to exchange of nationals they would have to endure further detention.

Incensed at this, 700 of the prisoners rushed the barbed wire barriers, overpowered the sentries and proceeded in marching order toward Antwerp. The men offered slight resistance, however, when the cavalrymen appeared and rounded them up. No report had been made up to this morning as to the casualties during the incident.

MAYER'S BIG YACHT GROUNDS; 41 IN PERIL

TUGS PULL HER OFF BAR

Special to The New York Times.

GREENPORT, L. I., July 11.—The largest sailing yacht in the United States, the 198-foot schooner Undaunted, formerly the Karina, owned by Francis R. Mayer, Vice Commodore of the Atlantic Yacht Club, New York, narrowly escaped destruction on the rocks off Orient Point, L. I., this morning with her owner, six guests and a crew of thirty-four on board. Luckily the big schooner, which was on a pleasure cruise around Long Island, grounded on a sand bar as her helmsman was guiding her through a dense fog at 8 o'clock this morning.

She was pulled off the bar by two tugs early this evening, her hull apparently not seriously damaged, and proceeded to Sea Gate, L. I. Wireless messages from the Undaunted were first picked up in New London, and the Scott Wrecking Company dispatched the tugs. Surfman Fred L. Wells, on watch at Coast Guard Station 95, at East Marion, spied the yacht abreast of Orient, about five miles east of Marion. A power surfboat was immediately sent out, carrying Capt. E. W. Suydam, in charge of the station, and several surfmen.

Captain John Hanson, the yacht's skipper, hailing the surfboat, told the life-saving crew he did not think the Undaunted was in any immediate danger and that he was awaiting the tugs for which he had wirelessed to New London. Officers of the Coast Guard station said tonight that they considered the escape of the Undaunted miraculous, since the waters about Orient abound in rocks, and many could be seen jutting out near the vessel.

Francis R. Mayer, owner of the Undaunted, is President and Director of the France and Canada Steamship Corporation, with offices in the Equitable Building. He is also a Director of the France and Canada Steamship Company, Ltd., a Director of Mayer & Lage, Inc., and President and a Director of the Swiftsure Export Corporation. The names of his guests on the Undaunted could not be obtained.

The Undaunted was built in 1911 as the Karina, for Robert E. Tod, who now owns the Katoura. She is 198 feet over all, 150 at the water line, 33 feet 9 inches beam and has a 17-foot draught. Mr. Tod, when he became the owner of the Katoura, sold the Karina to Theodore P. Burgess, who, in turn, sold her to Mr. Mayer.

NANSEN IN MOSCOW TO RESCUE PRISONERS

MOSCOW, July 9.—Fridtjof Nansen has arrived here to negotiate with the Soviet Government for the repatriation of foreigners and Russian prisoners abroad. Although he represents the League of Nations he is being treated as a private citizen. Dr. Nansen will have his first conference with M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister, tonight.

At the request of the American Government Dr. Nansen will take up the question of the repatriation of Americans in Russia.

BATH HOUSES JUMP TO $2.

Bath house charges were doubled at Coney Island yesterday, when about half of the 300,000 visitors took refuge from the heat in the ocean. Prices leaped to $2 a room and upward after noon. Sometimes the charges were trebled.

James Cohen of 314 South First Street, Brooklyn, was arrested for disorderly conduct when he protested because a policeman interfered with his business of using a big moving van for a bath house. The policeman objected on the double ground that Cohen did not have a bath-house license and that he was allowing his van to be used as a dressing room for mixed parties.

Martin Conway, 21 years old, of 63 Pineapple Street, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct because he threw water on girls who wore bathing suits, but stayed at a respectful distance from the ocean.

LARGEST SUMMER SCHOOL.

University of Wisconsin Breaks Record for the State.

The largest Summer student body ever enrolled in the University of Wisconsin registered for classes at the opening of the season. More than 3,500 students enrolled during the first three days, and, according to all indications, late registrations were expected to carry the total beyond 3600.

This Summer's enrollment will probably show an increase of from 12 to 15 per cent. over the enrollment of 3,213 last Summer.

Six Bombs Exploded in Barcelona.

MADRID, July 10.—A Barcelona message reports the explosion there of six bombs in different parts of the city. No appreciable damage was caused and no arrests have thus far been made. The outrages are regarded as an effort to coerce the employers.

FRENCHMEN WANT A VICE PRESIDENT

SEVERAL NAMES SUGGESTED

Millerand, Bourgeois and Jonnart Are Among Those Mentioned as Possibilities.

PARIS, July 11.—The state of President Deschanel's health has revived talk in the Parliamentary lobbies of the necessity of taking measures to meet the possibility of a prolonged inability of the President, through illness, to discharge the duties of his office. Immediately after the accident which befell the President recently it was proposed to create the office of Vice-President, which does not exist under the French Constitution, but the idea was abandoned, as President Deschanel's period of convalescence then seemed likely to be short.

This hope has not been realized, however, and the Parliamentarians are again discussing the situation which would arise if the President were forced to remain long absent from Paris, especially at a time when so many important questions of foreign policy are under discussion. If an ad interim Presidency were intrusted to a Vice-President it would make necessary the meeting of the National Assembly in joint session in the Senate Chamber at Versailles, just as if President Deschanel had resigned.

Among the names mentioned in the lobby as possibilities for the Vice-Presidency are those of Premier Millerand, Léon Bourgeois, Charles Jonnart, Raoul Peret, Georges Leygues and General de Castelnau.

FIRED SALT, KILLED SOLDIER

Spanish Lieutenant on Trial for Causing Death of Private.

CARTAGENA, Spain, July 10.—Lieutenant Enrique Morena has been placed on trial before a court-martial here on a charge of causing the death in July of last year of Private Nesa, by firing a cartridge filled with table salt into his body pointblank, apparently for the purpose of amusing himself. The charge passed through the soldier's body, causing death almost immediately.

The State's attorney asked that a sentence of seventeen years' imprisonment be imposed upon the lieutenant, while for Corporal Hilario Fuertes, who loaded the rifle under Lieutenant Morena's orders, he urged a sentence of one year.

HUNDREDS IN BLAKE SEARCH

Although hundreds of men and boys, encouraged by the reward of $1,000, joined yesterday in the search for the body of James R. Blake, the banker who disappeared on July 2 after he had set out in a small boat from Clason Point, the Bronx, no signs of the body were found.

The waters near Clason Point and Flushing Bay, on the other side of the sound, were patrolled by the police and by the volunteer searchers in motor boats, row boats, canoes and sailing bats. The shallow prts of Flushing Bay, North Beach, Hell Gate and Bowery Bay were dragged by the police launches.

SEVEN HURT IN COLLISION.

Seven persons, all residents of New Jersey, were injured yesterday afternoon in a collision between two automobiles at Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. The injured were all treated by a surgeon from the Methodist Episcopal Hospital and left for their homes. The cars were driven by Manny Rothman, 494 Henderson Street, Passaic, and Frederick Stroming, 12 Pearl Street, Passaic. The collision occurred while the automobiles were making a turn at the corner.

Four Hurt When Auto Overturns.

Four persons were injured, one seriously, late yesterday afternoon when an automobile, owned by Mrs. Eda Kamlet, 1,789 Madison Avenue, and driven by Oliver Wright, a negro, 117 West 136th Street, overturned at Carpenter Avenue and 243d Street, the Bronx. Mrs. Kamlet suffered lacerations of the scalp and possibly a fracture of the spine. She was taken to the Fordham Hospital. Others in the auto suffered lacerations.

West Point Cadets Get Airplanes.

CAMP DIX, N. J., July 11.—Part of the fleet of airplanes assigned for the use of the West Point cadets in training at Camp Dix arrived today. A landing field has been laid out near the artillery range. One of a pair of large observation balloons has also arrived. The cadets will use the balloons and planes to observe the effect of artillery fire.

Won't Act on Australian Tariff.

The Department of State has advised the American Manufacturers' Export Association that full consideration has been given to the preferential features of the Australian tariff, but that it is not deemed advisable to approach the Australian Government on the matter. The communication from the State Department is in reply to a letter recently sent by A. W. Willmann, Assistant Secretary of the association, calling attention to protests from members. The exporters contended that the preferential features of the Australian tariff would work to the decided disadvantage of many manufacturers who had built up trade with the Commonwealth.

DUBLIN, July 11.—There has been no relaxation during the week-end of the extraordinary military precautions by which Dublin is surrounded, with barricades on all the roads entering the city.

There is increased vigilance around the coast, patrol boats being very busy, and this fact tends to confirm the theory that the object of the authorities is to prevent the sending of arms to Ulster for use of disputants in case there is disturbance arising out of the Orange celebrations in Belfast.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELFAST, July 11.—Belfast today is stiff with troops and encircled by naval and military forces, all arrayed to keep tomorrow's Orange celebrations within bounds.

So far as can be gathered, there is little likelihood of serious trouble, but the fierce enthusiasms and bitter sincerities of Ulster can never entirely be ignored.

Motoring around the outskirts of Belfast, your correspondent found every main road held by troops, whose positions are wired and sandbagged, with machine guns peeping through loopholes. A battery of field artillery overlooks the ground at Finaghy, where Sir Edward Carson will deliver his bitter impromptus of the Orange gospel to processions that will march there tomorrow with scarves and tom-toms.

Guns of the light cruiser Verdun, which has just steamed into the lough, command the whole city.

Today is very largely given up to church parades and the air has been trembling with the beat of drums and gay with orange and blue scarves. Such districts as Shankhill Road are proclaiming their faith with arches, elaborately decked with mottoes and symbols, and from many a lamppost De Valera hangs in effigy. Only a few hundred yards away, the Falls Road district is grimly destitute of bunting, except for a few Sinn Fein flags.

20,000 Orangemen to Parade.

BELFAST, July 11 (Associated Press).—On the eve of Ulster's greatest holiday, the twelfth of July, anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, its municipal buildings for the first time in recent history are occupied by troops, while contingents of soldiers on the various roads into the city prevent any one from entering or leaving without a search for arms.

This display of force, however, seems to weigh lightly with the thousands in Belfast's streets tonight, bent on starting the holiday early, and keen observers say that the precautions taken to forestall a Nationalist outbreak far surpass the danger.

Some of the Ulster leaders, fearing that the Sinn Feiners might seize the occasion of the Orange holiday to open hostilities, sent a delegation to the Cabinet requesting augmentation to the 350 troops stationed here. Apparently the call was answered well, as more than 3,000 men were sent. A few military pickets have been stationed in the city, and the others are along the roads outside. Coming from South Ireland today it would be impossible to mistake the crossng of the boundary into Ulster.

As always, every household displayed its Union Jack, some from seemingly inaccessible tops of the highest trees in the yards, and from the steeple of nearly every church floated the same emblem.

Tomorrow 20,000 Ulstermen will parade four miles to Fenaghy to hear speeches from five platforms and generally make merry. Seventeen speakers are on the program, with the interest centring on Sir Edward Carson. He has not yet intimated the exact line of his address, but it is expected to harmonize with the known intentions of others to denounce the Sinn Fein. Sir Edward will speak to the following resolution:

"We desire again to record our faithful remembrance of the deliverance granted our country in the past and our firm determination to defend the civil and religious liberties for which our ancestors fought at the Boyne. Confident in the goodness of our cause, we ask God's help to enable us to meet successfully the difficulties and dangers of the present time."

Another resolution appeals to the Government to deal resolutely with "the cruel and treacherous warfare which is being carried on in Ireland, involving the sacrifice of lives and senseless destruction of property."

Troops Occupy Cork Court House.

DUBLIN, July 10.—The Cork Court House was occupied today by troops, who erected barbed wire entanglements, sand bags and other defences.

The troops removed a "Republican tri-color" which had floated over the building several weeks.

Numerous outrages occurred in and around Cork today. Sergeant Serry is dying in the Cork Military Hospital from several bullet wounds received in an attack upon him while he was carrying the police mail to the Gereah Post Office near Cork. His assailant seized the mail and decamped.

The Sergeant in charge of the Rathmore, Cork, Barracks was killed by a bomb and two constables were wounded while defending the barracks from an attack. Three abandoned police barracks in Cork City were burned today.

Another police party returning from the post office to the barracks at Dungloe, on the Donegal seaboard, with police mail was attacked. Sergeant Mooney's head and body were riddled with small shot, but with the aid of his comrades he succeeded in reaching the barracks.

Seven Justices of the Peace in Cavan County have jointly tendered their resignations to the Lord Chancellor. In their letter they say: "We no longer wish to be associated with an executive whose actions are subversive of justice and equity, and repugnant to the feelings of a vast majority of our fellow-countrymen."

The military gave permission to the Derry Orangemen to carry out a foundation stone laying ceremony near the city. Previously the stone-laying had been prohibited for fear of a demonstration.

Attacked Three New York Children.

LONDONDERRY, July 11.—The attack on the party of police, in which Sergeant Mooney was wounded while returning from the Post Office to the barracks at Dungloe, is attributed to an unpleasant experience of three American children, Michael, Eugene and Niel O'Donnell of New York, brothers, who are now visiting Donegal.

The O'Donnells attended a fair at Dungloe a few days ago, and while returning to the residence of friends the same evening met a party of police on the road some miles from Dungloe. In passing, a policeman coughed, and Michael O'Donnell, in a jocular mood, also coughed. The police resented this and one of them, alleged to have been Sergeant Mooney, struck Michael O'Donnell with a rifle, knocking him down and fracturing his jaw. Michael was carried unconscious by his brothers to a neighboring house, where it is declared he now lies in a critical condition.

The news of the assault created indignation at Dungloe, according to the report, and the following day Mooney was shot by a person stationed in an unoccupied house in Dungloe. Whether Mooney will recover from his wounds is considered doubtful.

3,000 Soft Coal Miners Strike Over Rate in Johnstown Field

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 11.—About 3,000 bituminous coal miners in the Broad Top Field of District No. 2, are idle on a strike order issued by the district officers and approved by International President Lewis.

The miners allege that the operators refuse to pay the full mining rate due under the Government agreement which ended the general strike of last Winter, and the district wage scale later signed.

The operators hold that the new scale wiped out a sub-district rate in the Broad Top of ten cents a ton in excess of the district base rate, which had been in effect since early in 1917.

The miners insists that the Government increase granted was meant to apply on whatever price was paid October 31, last year, when the big strike began.

TROOPS NEAR PEKING BUT NO FIGHTING YET

Threat of Anfu Generals to Advance Upon the City Lacks Definite Development.

MILITARY GOVERNORS REBEL

PEKING, July 11.—Various troop movements in the neighborhood of Peking were reported this morning, but no fighting had taken place up to noon. The morning was lacking in definite developments regarding the threat of an advance toward the city by the forces of Wu Pei-fu and Tsao-kun, the Anfu Generals who rebelled at the recent removal of General Hsu Shu-cheng as Resident Commissioner of Inner Mongolia. Meanwhile it has developed that General Hsu Shu-cheng refuses to recognize the mandate dismissing him, asserting that it is irregular, and is retaining his command of the defense army on the frontier.

The complexity of the situation has been increased, likewise, by the disaffection of the Military Governor of Chekiang over the question of the jurisdiction of the Shanghai peace conference, and consequent hostile troop movements, together with the report that another of the Southern Military Governors is joining him.

Taking advantage of this situation, Chang Hsun, the leader of the restoration movement, has started for the South. His departure has given rise to much speculation.

CAPTURED AFTER 15 YEARS.

Forger Caught Through Arrest Made Under Mistaken Identity.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, July 11.—Julius Maier, alias Leiter, a former Sing Sing prisoner who has been a fugitive for fifteen years, has just been recaptured and was again imprisoned today. An odd coincidence landed him behind bars again.

Charles F. Rattigan, Superintendent of Prisons, sent S. J. Bergin, Parole Agent, to Washington, D. C., and Bergin returned Maier to Sing Sing today. Maier's downfall is laid to a similarity of names and a case of mistaken identity.

The dragnet had been spread by Federal authorities for another man whose name is Julius Leiter, a tailor. The police brought in the former Sing Sing prisoner, who is also a tailor.

In looking through the rogues' gallery, Washington authorities found the picture of their prisoner. It appeared on a circular asking his arrest as a parole violator who vanished in 1905. So Supt. Rattigan was notified that the long-sought ex-convict was in the toils. Since violating his parole Maier has traveled all over North America. He still owes the State two years on his old conviction in New York of forgery.

SEIZE POLICEMAN AS THIEF.

Patrolmen Arrest Comrade Carrying Auto Tires and He Is Suspended.

James Reardon, a chauffeur, early yesterday morning saw a man walking down Broadway, Bayside, with several automobile tires on his shoulders. He notified Patrolmen Timothy J. Carney and Warren N. Williamson, who followed, and found the man with the tires was Patrolman Edward C. Fleischer of the 113th Precinct at Flushing.

Williamson and Carney investigated and learned that Otto Ruppert a garage owner, had missed three tires from his place. He identified the tires found in Fleischer's possession.

Fleischer was arraigned on a charge of petty larceny made by Ruppert, and was held in $500 bail for his appearance in the Flushing Court today. Fleischer said that he was following two suspicious looking men in a fast car, and that they threw the tires out of the car. Two hours after he was taken to the station house he was suspended from duty by Deputy Police Commissioner John Daly. Fleischer is 29 years old.

HUNT PICKPOCKET VICTIM.

Police Recover $95 and Seek Chinese Owner of Wallet.

Jacob Clukow of 116 West 116th Street, was held in $1,000 bail in the Tombs Police Court yesterday by Magistrate George W. Simpson on suspicion of being a pickpocket. Detective Henry C. Mugge who arrested him at the Hanover Square elevated station, asked an adjournment of two days while the police search for a Chinese who, he said, had been robbed of $95.

When Clukow was placed under arrest, an alleged accomplice escaped, and the Chinese walked away during the excitement. At Clukow's feet on the platform, Mugge said, was a wallet containing $95 and a picture of the owner of the purse. Chinatown is being searched for a Chinese who answers to the photograph.

Asks Go-Carts for Bedford Babies.

BEDFORD, July 11.—Miss Florence Jones, superintendent of the State Reformatory for Women, appealed today for gifts of serviceable go-carts for the babies kept in the Bedford nursery. "We could use twenty go-carts," said Miss Jones, "while we now have only one." She explained that she would gladly receive enough go-carts so that every child of the mothers in the reformatory could have a ride.

CITY UTILITIES NEAR COAL DANGER LINE

TRANSIT LINES HARD HIT

DEALERS FIGHT PROFITEERS

Wholesalers Urge Their Boycott and Name Board to Aid Attorney General.

Public utilities of this city were last week required to dig further into their reserve coal supply, and at its close the stock on hand showed a decrease of more than 50,000 tons from the previous week. According to the weekly report to the Public Service Commission of the First District the total amount of coal held among all the utilities here was only 137,820 tons.

Some of the utilities are operating near the danger line. The Public Service Commission took further steps during the week to increase coal shipments. Deputy Commissioner Morgan T. Donnelley returned yesterday from Washington, where on Saturday he appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission in support of the order issued a month ago requiring the railroads to use all open-top cars for coal service.

Mr. Donnelly said last night that on Saturday the Interborough had only a little more than 11,000 tons of coal, slightly more than enough to operate for five days. The company usually has nearly ten times that much at this time of year, he said. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has enough to run for two or three days, he stated. This company uses about 400 tons of hard coal and 1,200 tons of soft coal daily.

The Consolidated Gas Company has about 16,000 tons of coal, and the Brooklyn Union Gas Company has about 10,000 tons, which is sufficient to operate for ten days. The New York and Richmond Gas Company was reduced to a single day's supply last week, Mr. Donnelly said, but was able to obtain a car to tide them over.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Donnelly said, will probably render a decision within a few days on the request for a modification of Service Order No. 9, which gave priority to open-top cars to coal interests. The hearing last week was arranged primarily to give the sand and gravel interests, who had protested that some of the open cars ought to be allotted to their purposes, an opportunity to be heard. Representatives from the Northwest said that their section had to have 28,000,000 to 30,000,000 tons of coal to meet the requirements and that it would have to be moved before the Winter months.

The Board of Directors of the Whole-Street, announced yesterday that at a recent meeting a resolution was adopted recommending that its members and others refuse to deal with the profiteers in coal. The Directors consider that only a small percentage of dealers are violating the law and that the trade is being criticised for the actions of a few unscrupulous persons in taking advantage of the present situation. A letter was sent out urging members of the association to scrutinize with care all transactions and to refuse any part in them if the circumstances prove at all suspicious.

The members are also requested to give their full co-operation to the Department of Justice in its efforts to see that the law is upheld. A committee consisting of C. Andrade, Jr., W. A. Marshall, Gibbs L. Baker and Charles S. Allen was appointed to assist in a full development of the facts in all investigations which the Attorney General's office may undertake in connection with prosecutions under the Lever act.

RAINBOW REUNION PLANS.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 11. — The first annual convention and reunion of the Rainbow Division veterans will open here Monday afternoon, when Colonel Benson W. Hough will call the convention to order. Nathan L. Miller, Lieutenant Governor of Alabama, will make the address of welcome and J. R. Hornady, City Commissioner, will speak. Colonel Hough will respond.

After the meeting a bronze tablet to the memory of the Rainbow dead of Jefferson County will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies.

Monday and Tuesday nights outdoor dances will be given, one of the streets of the city being roped off for the purpose. Colored lights will play on the street and the veterans will wear varicolored balloons fastened to their coat lapels.

The chief address of the convention will be delivered Tuesday morning, when Senator Oscar Underwood will speak. Lieutenant Weirzbecki, official representative of France, will also speak.

Tuesday afternoon a sport tournament will be held. Among the events will be boxing matches between former champions of the division.

On Wednesday will occur the election of officers and the selection of the next convention city. There will be a parade, followed by a watermelon cutting and picnic feast.

While the parade is in progress a signal cannon will be fired, the bands will play "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the crowds will stand with bared heads in memory of the Rainbow dead.

About 5,000 delegates are in the city, and homes are thrown open for their accommodation.

Suspect Arrested in Insane Asylum.

CROTON, July 11.—State Constabulary troopers announced today that they had arrested on a forgery charge, James Braughton, who had been sought by authorities three months for an alleged offense in Bay Shore, L. I.

For lack of space The New York Times today is obliged to omit 12 columns of advertisements.

Long Time Bonds

The amount and variety of long time bonds available at present low prices is limited, owing to the fact that most of the new issues are of short or medium duration. Corporations are unwilling to pay present burdensome rates of interest on new issues, except for a relatively short period.

Those desiring long term investments must depend largely upon old seasoned issues, and many experienced investors are now buying this class of security.

We can supply a limited amount of long time bonds at prices yielding around 7%, and we recommend the purchase of such bonds at the present time. We shall be glad to send details and circulars to those interested.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Advance of Stocks Is Made Cautious by Credit Uncertainties—Industry Irregular.

The turn into the second half of the year has been accompanied by some cheering events for business and finance, although many difficulties, long present, have not been lessened. The general credit situation remains in a state of strain, and it is certain that throughout the Summer bankers will act with a single eye to the prevention of a really acute position in the Autumn. The very fact that the loan market of all varieties of accommodation will be guided conservatively speaks for the avoidance of some tension in the crop-moving period, and the hope is expressed in banking quarters that the taking of time by the forelock may avoid so extreme a burden upon credit as was feared a month ago. Just how banking caution will be reflected in the security markets of July and August cannot be determined in advance. It is taken for granted that the stock market will have to depend upon call money for the bulk of its financing as far as margin demands are concerned. Time money continues extremely scarce and of high cost. Despite a quick advance of the call loan rate last Friday from 7 to 10 per cent., following three days of easing quotations, the impression prevailed as the week ended that money would not be really tight during the next few weeks. Many of the speculative calculations which found vent in the week's rise of stocks were based on this thought; yet it was evident in the quality of transactions that traders, or the main body of them at least, were not inclined to commit themselves heavily to a buying program. Knowledge that the underlying situation of credit had not been altered at all by the satisfactory completion of the mid-year settlement seemed to warn the speculative following of stocks that surface conditions should not be trusted too far. Sentiment favoring a relatively easy money situation was not sufficiently strong to lull the lurking idea that there might be numerous occasions during the Summer when a quick "runup" of the call rate would be embarrassing to persons carrying long lines of stocks. In short, the market following was mildly committed to the constructive side of quotations, but disinclined to take risks which are comfortably taken when the setting for a broadly rising market is as plain as it was a year ago.

With the exception of credit, it could be said that the financial community was more confident of the outlook than during June. The Government crop report was a factor in this change. The indicated yield of 809,000,000 bushels of wheat as of July 1 falls far short of the 941,000,000 bushels harvested last year, but because of reduced acreage, uncertain labor supplies and a rather poor plant condition on June 1, the forecast of 28,000,000 bushels more than were thought probable on the latter date was cheering. Furthermore, the very small deterioration of Spring wheat in June, leaving the indicated condition nearly 8 per cent. better than a year before, aroused expectation of additional improvement before harvesting is completed. Attention was paid, also, to dispatches from the Southwestern grain States, which said that labor was in sufficient supply.

Financial interests traditionally shape their thoughts and plans more or less in conformity with crop prospects at this season of the year. And when, at this time, an improved grain outlook—the cotton crop condition on June 25 was reported substantially better than a month earlier—comes in conjunction with the rather general feeling that railroad freight rates will be raised materially, it is not surprising that stock market possibilities look up. The Interstate Commerce Commission has at hand the data upon which the rate decision will be made. An advance of rates has, of course, been accepted as assured ever since the transportation law was enacted, but Wall Street has of late become convinced that the rise will be sufficient to re-establish railroad income on a basis comparable to the good days prior to 1912. It might be well to know more of the influences surrounding the commission's study of the rate applications before moulding optimistic instead of hopeful thought upon railroad profits.

The business and industrial outlook is decidedly mixed, considering the major lines of production and distribution. Commodity prices as a whole declined in June, as compared with the May level, but the movement was highly irregular. Textiles, breadstuffs, live stock, hides and leather declined, while coal, coke, building materials and chemicals advanced, together with important provisions which play a vital part in the cost of living. To a degree recessions of activity in some directions are offset by a heavy demand in others, which tends to confuse the outlook. Thus, the evidence supplied by closing textile mills tells of a depression in this field far more important than seasonal slackening would bring about, while at the same time the consumption of articles used in construction work, steel, cement, lumber, &c., is overtaxing the producers. Because of the irregular industrial front it is no easier now than when the Spring price-cutting campaigns started to decide whether business is in process of a protracted reaction. A survey of current conditions, let alone their possible influences upon the Autumn and Winter, would still require allowances by reason of persistent railroad congestion. Pig iron production in June was at a rate 5,000 tons per day in excess of the May output, which indicates active operations of steel plants; but lack of adequate transportation facilities is causing a great amount of finished material, and iron as well, to be piled in mill yards until it can be moved. The resultant handicap upon users of materials thus stored is obvious, and makes room for belief that industry of particular sorts would be much more active than it is if supplies of needed goods could be obtained freely.

Whether or not July reinvestment funds, derived from interest and dividend payments, is the main factor in the market just now, the demand for investments has been substantially more active this month than last. The Swiss Government loan of $25,000,000 and the offering of $60,000,000 Armour & Co. bonds last week were quickly taken up and the success of the undertakings foreshadows more in the near future. It is expected that the requirements under which railroads may obtain permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to float loans will shortly be clarified, for several of the leading companies have new borrowings under consideration.

The financial community was so well content with the suppression of radical tendencies in the Presidential nominations that little criticism of candidates has been heard. The belief that either candidate will, if elected, lean toward a "business" administration has seemed to hold in check the expression of pronounced partisan feelings over the platforms. Nothing has so far arisen to show how financial programs will be affected by progress of the campaign.

A Former Waste Product

The casing-head gasoline plant has become another big factor in the enrichment of producing oil companies. The extraction of gasoline from casing-head gas, said to have been first accomplished in 1903, has grown with great rapidity in recent years, into an industry of gigantic proportions.

To-day more than a thousand plants contribute an output in excess of 500,000,000 gallons of commercial gasoline to meet the ever increasing demand for this product, and it is estimated that the supply of gasoline from this source will reach one billion gallons per annum within a short period.

COAL SUPPLY AIDED BY CAR RESTRICTION

Railroad Executives Report Improvement and Ask 30-Day Extension of Order.

URGE RELIEF FOR OTHERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Restriction of the use of open-top cars to the transportation of coal is proving effective as a means to end the coal shortage now facing the United States, according to railroad executives. The order has now been in effect three weeks, with ten days more to run, and the consensus of opinion among the coal operators is that the order should be continued in force for at least thirty days from July 21.

Some railway officials here say that something should be done to relieve other industries which are suffering acutely from the restriction. The steel industry is perhaps the greatest sufferer and many of the principal mills may have to close down unless they are supplied with sufficient cars to move at least a part of the raw materials needed.

In order to obtain accurate information as to the effect of the restriction order the National Coal Association, representing more than 60 per cent. of the bituminous coal operators of the country, sent telegrams a few days ago to executives of coal carrying lines asking them to state what effect the enforcement of Order No. 7 was having on the bituminous coal situation.

Railroad officials reported that the order was having a beneficial effect and that in their opinion the relief would become more pronounced soon. Conditions as to car supply, however, were still far from satisfactory, they said.

W. L. Booth, Chespeake & Ohio Railroad, Richmond, Va.:

"Effect has been to somewhat increase car supply of our line and cause some increase in receipt of empties from some connections, though receipts are still very inadequate. Do not see how order, if enforced, can fail to increase coal production generally.

"Enforcement of order causing much complaint from steel plants, brick plants and shippers of road materials, who are hard hit thereby."

Labor Conditions Interfere.

W. G. Curren, General Superintendent of Transportation, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Baltimore, Md.:

"Labor conditions on the Baltimore & Ohio and on its connections since order was issued have interfered with effectiveness. It was inevitable that improvement which was reasonable to expect from this order could not be accomplished with the road men out and inability to move traffic, which resulted in stoppage of business generally and man embargoes.

"However, with improvement in labor conditions as now indicated there should be decided improvement in coal car supply, and benefit of this order should within a short time become apparent."

W. S. Andrews, General Superintendent of Transportation, Southern Railroad, Cincinnati, Ohio:

"Order No. 7 has materially improved conditions at the mines, and has generally permitted full supply at mines, although in Indiana and Illinois they are working on about 70 per cent. basis, due to slow return of coal cars from connecting lines.

"Mines in Alabama, Kentucky and Tennessee received full car supply and conditions improving in Indiana and Illinois."

"General Order No. 7 has increased supply of cars at local mines from approximately 45 to 70 per cent., and also increased delivery in interchange to Chesapeake & Ohio Northern same rates. Our opinion is that Order No. 7 should stand with certain modifications providing for the use of cars to handle raw material to furnaces and steel plants. This railway company has furnished 100 per cent. train service to insure maximum production of coal. No difficulties encountered in enforcement of order. Car supply has increased more during this week (ended July 3) that any previous week. Outlook encouraging."

Cars Increase 8 Per Cent.

"Comparison coal car supply nine days, 10th to 19th, inclusive, with supply from 21st to 30th, inclusive, shows increase in last period of slightly over 8 per cent. Believe several days necessary to secure full effect of order, but it should materially increase supply."

S. R. Carter, Vice President and General Manager, Wabash Railroad, St. Louis, Mo.:

"Application of General Order No. 7 has already increased the supply of available cars for coal loading on our line, and will further increase the available supply if strictly enforced by all railroads, as Wabash is doing. We are confining the use of open-top cars exclusively to coal loading. We are having no especial difficulty in enforcing the order, although shippers of other freight are naturally complaining about their inability to secure cars.

"Available car supply increased from average of 65 per cent. cars furnished week ending June 19 to 78 per cent. cars furnished week ending June 26, and 86 per cent. cars furnished week ending July 3."

"The effect of Service Order No. 7 on our lines requires the movement of a large number of cars empty which would otherwise be loaded. We can now load such cars to or in direction of mines, but not beyond, which tends to increase car shortages for some commodities.

"The order as it now stands should result in increased coal production. To insure maximum coal production we have endeavored literally to comply with the several provisions of Service Order No. 7. Difficulties encountered in enforcing order are slowness of some consignees to unload coal billed for reconsignment and some delay of some connections to accept. We are and have been handling a heavy business and practically all coal on our lines is moved to destination and tendered as fast as consignees and connections can accept."

Order Hits Steel Trade.

"General Order No. 7 has the effect of withdrawing from the iron and steel trade all coal carrying cars, and many of the industries on our line are feeling the effects, owing to the fact that they must turn coal cars out empty, instead of loading same with manufactured articles, or iron, steel, &c.

"While we have been able to indicate a slightly improved coal car placement by reason of this order, the placement is not what it should be, owing to limited amount of inbound ore we are receiving, due, I understand, to limited car supply at lake ports. In the event ore shipments into the territory are fully protected with liberal car supply at lake ports we will, under Service Order No. 7, be able to furnish 100 per cent. coal car supply at coal mines."

Coal operators from various parts of the country are arriving in Washington to participate in the conference which will be held here tomorrow and Tuesday. The purpose of this conference is to endeavor to find some way to bring about closer co-operation with the railroads in the present crisis. The report of the coal men will be handed to Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Tuesday night. Wednesday Mr. Willard will submit it to a meeting of the railway executives to be held in New York City.

Both the coal operators and the railway executives appear confident that the conferences will go a long way toward solving the coal shortage problem and that a way will be found to keep industry going and at the same time provide sufficient fuel for public utilities and for the homes of the country. They also expect to find a way to meet the export demands made upon the United States.

ARMOUR AND COMPANY

7% Ten-Year Convertible Gold Notes
Due July 15, 1930

Price 94.84 and Interest, Yielding 7¾%

Total assets of Armour and Company are reported to be in excess of $490,000,000.

Net current assets alone are reported as approximately $230,000,000.

Total gross sales in 1919 were over $1,000,000,000.

Net earnings available for payment of interest in the last four fiscal years (not including average annual earnings of $6,003,500 from South American properties retained for their development) have averaged, after Federal Taxes, over $26,000,000—almost 3½ times the average amount necessary to pay interest charges in that period.

These Notes may be converted if desired by the holder into a like face amount of Class "A" Common Stock. It is expected that application will be made to list this Stock on both the New York and the Chicago Stock Exchange.

If a purchaser of these Notes at present prices later converts, his Class "A" Common Stock will have cost him 94.84%. On a basis of 8% dividends his income yield would be nearly 8½%.

We recommend and offer these Notes subject to sale and change in price, when, as and if issued. Orders should be transmitted by wire or telephone at our expense.

A circular completely descriptive of the Notes will be sent upon request for NA. 24

WAR RISK POLICIES TOTAL 40 BILLION

A HUGE ALLOTMENT OUTGO

$555,815,511 Has Been Paid to Dependents of Those in Service Since the War Began.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Policies covering insurance to the amount of more than $40,000,000,000 are carried by the insurance division of the War Risk Insurance Bureau, and more than half a billion has been spent by its allotment and allowance division. The vast magnitude and scope of operations of the bureau are shown in a summary of its activities, as of June 30, 1920, made public tonight by R. G. Cholmeley-Jones, the Director of the Bureau.

The Marine and Seamen's Insurance Division, which during the early part of the war wrote war risk hazards on hulls, cargoes and seamen, has done a total business of $2,487,913,351.74, with premiums collected amounting to $47,585,380.21 on 33,395 policies, resulting in paid claims of $29,118,387.32, and a surplus over expenses and refunds of $17,569,821.56.

The Allotment and Allowance Division, which developed into a banking business run for the benefit of soldiers, sailors and marines and their families and dependent relatives, has since the beginning of the war approved 2,090,893 claims for allotment and allowance involving payments for allotments amounting to $289,333,906.09, for allowance amounting to $266,481,605.43, and payments for the month of June, 1920, alone to the amount of $1,107,526.68 for allotments and $1,374,999.80 for allowances.

The Compensation and Insurance Claims Division, which made the Government in its relation to the soldiers and sailors the head of an employers' liability company organized in their interest, in the course of its existence has approved 44,546 claims for compensation on account of deaths in the service, and 184,405 claims for compensation on account of disabilities through service. This division is at present making payment on 42,945 cases of death claims, with an expenditure of $1,132,447.35, and payment of 134,408 cases of disability claims, amounting to $5,032,646.11, including 30,861 burial awards, amounting to $2,175,270.06.

The Insurance Division, which immediately on its creation became one of the largest insurance companies in the world, in less than two years since its organization has written 4,631,993 policies, covering insurance to the amount of $40,284,892,500, the gross premium remittances from all sources approximating $338,612,000. One hundred twenty-eight thousand three hundred claims for insurance on account of death are represented by insurance to the amount of $1,141,818,133.48, while 3,256 claims for insurance on account of permanent and total disability involve insurance to the amount of $28,536,540. In the month of June, 1920, alone the total disbursements on insurance claims amounted to $7,626,432.87.

The Medical Division, through the administration of which the Government became medical adviser to the army of men exposed to all the hazards of war, has developed a medical practice of the following proportions: Patients given treatment and examination, 452,609; patients admitted to hospitals under Government supervision, 54,799; patients at present receiving hospital treatment, 17,500; potential patients, 641,000.

The number of the personnel in the bureau has been reduced to 7,860, which is less than one-half the former number, and further reductions are proceeding continuously.

Paper from Straw in Saskatchewan.

REGINA, Sask., July 11.—Plans for the establishment of a large paper mill in Southern Saskatchewan to utilize vast quantities of waste straw in the province were reported to be under way here today. Lignite fields in this section, it is said, will provide the necessary fuel.

DR. ANDERSON IN NEW POST.

Becomes Economist for the Chase National Bank.

Dr. B. M. Anderson, Jr., has been appointed economist of the Chase National Bank. He leaves a similar post at the National Bank of Commerce. Dr. Anderson is known as an authoritative writer on economic and financial subjects, both in the United States and Europe. He is the author of three books, "Social Value," published in 1911; "The Value of Money," published in 1917, and "The Effects of the War on Money, Credit and Banking in France and the United States," published in 1919. He has also written numerous articles for scientific and financial journals.

Dr. Anderson was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1906 and took his Master's degree at the University of Illinois in 1910. He has the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Economics from Columbia University. He has held several professorships in history and economics, among them posts at Columbia and Harvard. He left the latter university in 1918 to go to the National Bank of Commerce.

Want Apponyi for Foreign Office.

BUDAPEST, July 10.—An attempt is being made to form a nonpartisan Cabinet for Hungary with Count Apponyi as Minister of Foreign Affairs, so that a concerted movement for Hungarian reconstruction may be begun as soon as the harvest is gathered.

Far Reaching Credit

The basis of Commerce and Industry is raw material. The production, gathering and transporting of raw material through jungles, down tropic rivers, across many seas—all these operations are made possible by the far reaching power of credit.

The National Bank of Commerce in New York employs its great credit resources in furthering the processes of production, manufacture and distribution from raw material to final consumption.

High Cost of Living and Low Cost of Investing

THE cost of commodities and services has increased over 100% in the past four years.

On the other hand the price at which high grade securities may now be purchased is such that the income yield should more than offset the increase in the cost of living.

A high income is thus one of the few things which may be purchased today at Bargain Counter Prices without sacrifice of security of principal.

Pamphlet I.B. explains these facts in detail, and contains a list of selected Long Term Bonds.

FINANCIER PREDICTS ENGLISH PROSPERITY

JUST BACK FROM EUROPE

Analyzes Financial Conditions and Declares Country Is Recovering from Shock of War.

F. R. Shortis, a Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, has recently arrived from England. For many years he was in charge of the foreign business of Kleinwort, Sons & Co., merchant bankers of London, and subsequently became manager of the firm. Mr. Shortis resigned that position last year to become financial adviser to the Inter-allied Rhineland High Commission, from which post he has just obtained his release.

In discussing the financial condition of Great Britain yesterday Mr. Shortis said:

"It is true that she has spent in connection with the war, from the 1st of August, 1914, to the 1st of May, 1920, the vast sum of £11,000,000,000, or, at par of exchange, $53,460,000,000, but it should be remembered as a point of extreme importance that of this stupendous amount more than £4,000,000,000 ($19,440,000,000), that is to say, more than one-third of the total, has been raised during the war by revenue, leaving a balance outstanding of approximately £7,000,000,000 ($34,020,000,000). The latter figure includes advances to the Allies, as well as to the British Dominions, of approximately £1,850,000,000 ($8,991,000,000). It is difficult to state what amount of the latter sum will eventually be recovered, but by assessing it for the purpose at £1,000,000,000 ($4,860,000,000) there would remain an amount outstanding in connection with the war of £6,000,000,000 ($29,160,000,000), or only one and a half the amount that has already been raised in revenue during the last four years.

"It is possible that the revenue raised during the last four years may exceed the amount which is possible by means of equivalent taxation in the future, but at the same time there should be a very drastic reduction in Government expenditure to compensate for any loss of revenue raised thereby.

"Considering the extent of her expenditure on the war, the financial position of Great Britain is decidedly favorable. It is gratifying to know that she is not only balancing her budget in a satisfactory manner, but has, moreover, a considerable surplus in hand which should provide a sinking fund sufficient to redeem the entire outstanding debt within a reasonable time.

"Taking the situation in general, the position of Great Britain cannot be regarded as unfavorable, although the fact that sterling expressed in United States currency shows a depreciation of more than 20 per cent. may be taken as an indication that the credit of Great Britain is severely impaired. But people who are well acquainted with the actual economic position, and the reasons for the present level of exchange, are, of course, aware of the cause. It is not that Great Britain is not prepared to pay its debt to the United States, for it possesses plenty of assets, but it does not, unfortunately, possess any tangible assets which can be removed from Great Britain to the United States. It is, therefore, necessary to wait until such time as she can export or render services in sufficient quantities to produce a trade balance in her favor.

"The war has made the United States so great a creditor country to Europe that she must now give her debtors an opportunity to pay her by the only means possible to them. This can be achieved only by exporting goods and rendering services. For this purpose, it is not necessary for Europe to export to the United States alone, but she must export to all other countries, and in particular, countries that the United States purchases from. For instance, by means of European countries exporting to the East in excess of her imports from the East, and at the same time by an excess of American imports from the East over her exports in the same direction, the balance of indebtedness by Europe to the United States could eventually be liquidated.

"For the purpose of adjusting the trade balance, it does not matter whether Great Britain, Germany, France and Italy export in larger quantities one than the other, as the balance of trade of the latter countries all favor Great Britain, and these exports will relatively at the same time, not only adjust the trade balance between Great Britain and the United States, but they will bring about an adjustment between those countries and Great Britain."

GENERAL STRIKE IN TAMPICO

I. W. W. Heads Walkout of Many Workmen There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 11.—Under direction of the I. W. W., a general strike has been called of all trades in Tampico. Street cars and hacks were left in the middle of the streets. Bakers, carpenters, oil workers and longshoremen joined the strike.

The strike started through demands of the workingmen of the Transcontinental Oil Company, who had demanded higher wages. No trouble is reported. The Government has ordered Federal forces to take charge of the situation. General Manuel Pelaez has arrived in Tampico, where he will meet the strikers.

The labors in Mexico City of a group of Bolsheviki are bearing fruit. For the last three years they have tried to bring on a strike in the oil regions. These men were arrested several times, but presented papers showing they were engaged in commercial business and were released. They have headquarters in Calle Uruguay, near the centre of the city. Their propaganda is distributed in the streets unmolested. Although the Government had been warned a number of times of the dangerous character of the propagandists, no action was taken to suppress their meetings or propaganda. Among these Reds are a number of slackers from the United States, together with a large number of Russians, who arrived here from Europe, the United States and Central America.

CHILEAN GOVERNMENT ACTS IN COAL CRISIS

Decides to Double Railways' Permanent Stock and to Increase Use of Oil.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 10.—The Government took active steps today to relieve the situation resulting from the coal shortage and the transportation congestion. After an all-day conference, the Ministers of the Interior, Finance and War and the Director General of the State Railways and his assistants reached the following decisions:

First—To use naval transports to move accummulated produce, including perishable goods, from the southern provinces to the populous centres for consumption in the central region.

Second—To augment the permanent stock of coal destined for the railways and the public services from 150,000 tons to a total of 300,000 tons at the minimum, 100,000 tons of this amount, it was announced, already having been obtained in the United States for delivery by mid-September. Virtually the entire surplus stock has been used up owing to the recent strikes in the mines, and hence it was decided to double the permanent stock, with a view to preventing a recurrence of any shortage in the amount available for public utilities.

Third—To use oil-burning locomotives in the first railway zone, which is between Santiago and Valparaiso, and to open proposals for the acquisition of petroleum.

It was also decided to confer with the bankers on Monday with a view to drawing up a plan for a loan to the railways, half the amount to be raised in this country and the remainder abroad. The total decided upon was not stated.

Opium in Tobacco Arouses Spain.

MADRID, July 10.—Horror is expressed by all newspapers at the sale of so-called "canned tobacco," large quantities of which are being distributed throughout Spain. The product is declared to contain a considerable quantity of opium and to have caused numerous cases of illness. Some of the papers express suspicion that the mixture is being prepared somewhere in Spain.

New Brunswick Dry by 2 to 1.

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 11.—The prohibition majority shown in yesterday's plebiscite in the Province of New Brunswick was increased by further returns received today, the figures, now nearly complete, giving a 2 to 1 victory for the drys.

RSC INVESTMENT SERVICE

A Giant in Being

If one had prophesied the growth of the Canadian pulp and paper industry, it might have been called an enthusiasm bred of folly—the "idle fancy of an idle brain."

Yet those who sensed its possibilities have reaped a wonderful harvest from their investments in it—as the progress of Abitibi, Laurentide, Brompton, Riordon and Spanish River has demonstrated.

Yet the industry is, if not in its infancy, scarcely beyond adolescence. Giant strides are still to be made; and those who travel the new paths should profit almost as much as those who blazed the early trails.

If you would share in this growth and in the profits still to be, write and we will advise you when, and in what, to invest. Address:

Advertising is an Investment

THE GREAT MISSION OF ADVERTISING

Advertising when constructively directed is in reality a Public Service.

Advertising is Literature, Art and Science, applied for the benefit of mankind.

The success of Federal Service is due to a recognition of the many-sided mission of advertising and the ability to so apply its power that the greatest possible results accrue, in the least time, at the smallest cost.

FAVOR BUSES WHERE NEEDED, SAYS NIXON

OPPOSES USE GENERALLY

Mayor to Let the People Decide if They Want the Vehicles, Whalen Asserts.

"If it is shown that there is a real need for a system of privately owned bus linees, as suggested by Mayor Hylan to the Board of Estimate, I will go the limit to help the Mayor," said Public Service Commissioner Nixon last night.

"I doubt, however," he continued, "that a system of buses operating under universal transfers would be practicable, particularly on a 5-cent fare basis. Any place where the urgent need for buses is shown I will do everything in my power to help."

"The Mayor appears to believe that the need for buses is pretty general, as well as extremely urgent, doesn't he?" was asked.

"Yes, the Mayor is taking that position," the Commissioner replied, "but my present position is that buses are not universally applicable."

In response to other questions Mr. Nixon said that no franchises could be granted unless a certificate of convenience and necessity in each instance should issue from the Public Service Commission.

Asked for his opinion of the decision of the Court of Appeals of July 6 in which the power of the Public Service Commission to hear applications for increased fares under certain franchises was defined, Mr. Nixon said:

"I have not yet read the decision and until I am familiar with all the details I would not care to say any more than that it is apparent that the court has upheld practically every order I have issued."

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, said last night that the question of whether or not the necessity for privately owned bus lines to operate under franchises that ultimately will revert to the city is immediately urgent is being left to the people.

"The Mayor is letting the people decide this matter, just as he has let them decide all of the important problems of his administration," Mr. Whalen said. "The people will have their opportunity to voice their opinion at the public hearing before the Board of Estimate in City Hall next Wednesday.

"If it is the people's will that the franchises be applied for, the Mayor will go ahead with the plan. It is obvious that something must be done at once to relieve the traffic situation. I believe that if the people demand privately owned bus lines they also will demand the removal of any one in official position who stands in the way of their wishes.

"The suggestion for the privately owned and operated buses by companies formed according to railroad law was made by the Mayor because it seemed to him to be the most feasible plan. It should be clear from his communication that by this suggestion he has not abandoned his plan for city owned and operated bus lines, as has been stated in newspaper articles. He merely has suggested a method by which buses may be operated temporarily in a way to avoid the injunctions now being sued out by the traction companies. It is his idea to have them all taken over by the city at such time as the city may deem it proper."

Mr. Whalen said that the Mayor had no knowledge where buses for his plan would come from. He said that if the people show on Wednesday that they want buses the work of arranging for the franchises will be begun immediately and will be carried out with full publicity.

In connection with statements that a large fortune awaits the individual or company that might get the franchises, Mr. Whalen said that no man or company was in view, and that it was purely a business proposition with the comfort and happiness of residents of the city at stake.

It was recalled yesterday that in 1913 George W. Loft tried to get a franchise for a company to operate 10,000 automobile buses in Manhattan and the Bronx, and subsequently asked for another franchise for 1,000 similar buses.

Mr. Whalen said that Mr. Loft was not in any way connected with this present plan of the Mayor's, which he said was looked upon generally as more practicable now than it would have been seven years ago. Statements have been made quoting financiers as saying that any one known in Wall Street could raise all the capital needed "in less than two hours," provided the city could give the coporation a franchise to operate bus lines throughout the city. Expert opinion was that at least 10,000 buses would be neded for a universal bus service such as the administration appears to believe is necessary and such as Commissioner Nixon said last night he did not believe was either necessary or practicable.

EXPECT NO STEEL STRIKE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 11.—John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said tonight that he knew nothing of any projected Steel and Ironworkers' strike sea for either Oct. 15 or Nov. 1.

"If any such strike were contemplated, inasmuch as I was the leader of the last steel strike, I would certainly know something about it," he said. "I certainly a mnot the Chairman of the Committee for the reported new strike, and I have no knowledge of Mr. Gompers being associated with any such movement, either as Honorary President or otherwise."

The interviewer then read to Mr. Fitzpatrick a dispatch from THE NEW YORK TIMES, stating that a decision to call the new strike was reported to have been made at a meeting held in the ladies' ordinary at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, at the time of the convention of the American Federation of Labor. He readily admitted that such a meeting had been held, but denied that it was for the purpose of planning a strike.

"It was just a conference of the steel workers attending the convention, for the purpose of discussing plans for strengthening the steel workers' organization," he said. "The suggestion of another strike was not made."

Other labor leaders in Chicago scouted the idea of any new strike among the steel workers in this district. They pointed out how signally defeated were the strikers in the steel mills last year. They also pointed to the fact that 10,000 steel workers had already been laid off in the Gary District alone in the last few weeks on account of lack of material, coal and railroad transportation. This number of men will be increased from week to week, it is expected, and before the date set for the rumored new strike it is thought probable that the mills will have almost ceased production.

The steel workers are predicting a long, hard, workless Winter, and in these circumstances they say a strike would be ridiculous.

BOYS TRANSFORMED IN PARENTAL SCHOOL

Wonder-Working Method of Handling Those Who Won't Attend Elsewhere.

TURN OUT FINE, HEALTHY LOT

While Learning Various Arts, and They Enjoy Many Fascinating Bucolic Pursuits.

Out on Long Island, between Flushing and Jamaica, is the New York Parental School, where the Board of Education is educating boys between the ages of twelve and fifteen who steadily refuse to attend school. The Parental School has no bolts or bars, no gates or fences or walls, and the boys seem content and happy to stay there. There is no compulsory head-shave or close-clip and the uniform, far from being suffered as a degradation, is an attractive one that the boys may wear only in the classroom or at drill. Boys who seem so constructed that they cannot stay steadily in ordinary schools long enough to get the amount of education prescribed by their wise old Uncle Samuel learn in this school, where sessions of schoolroom work are followed by stretches of farming or industrial training, and they are graduated, not from a parental or truant school, but from Public School No. —, and start in life without a handicap.

According to John S. Fitzpatrick, the school Principal, bad home conditions lie at the bottom of practically every case which he gets at the school, something being radically wrong with the boy's father or mother. Possibly the father was a gambler, a drunkard, or ne'er-do-well, or deserted his family; or possibly, although less frequently, there is something equally wrong with the mother's record.

The boys are not treated as delinquents, nor as objects of charity. They do all their own work, raise a large part of what they eat, including all the vegetables and green stuff, and they are given a good start at a trade. The band offers a splendid opportunity to the boy with a musical inclination. This band is self-supporting. Instruments are bought and repaired out of the amounts received by the band for its playing at public or private functions, where their bandmaster takes them. One boy has mastered no less than four band instruments, and several are proficient in two.

School closes at four, and a visitor arriving before that hour finds classes in full swing. Here they are studying hygiene, here arithmetic, while, in another room, they are engaged in singing, the song being one very popular with the boys. They are dwelling long and lovingly on a line, which says: "Daddy, dear daddy, you've been more than a daddy to me." They are getting ready for graduation exercises, it is explained. They rise and say "Good afternoon" formally to the visitor, and one or two, conspicuous because of a close haircut, look flustered. The Principal addresses one of these boys by name and asks him how he got the clip. The boy blushes heavily and murmurs something about cigarette smoking in dormitory and that he "wouldn't tell who did it."

The halls are wide and spacious, all the classrooms open to the streaming light and sun. A panorama of pleasant rolling country, trees and fields is visible through each window. A nurse lives on the place, and one room of the main building is devoted to medical examination. A visiting doctor comes twice a week, and the school's health rating is excellent, according to Principal Fitzpatrick. He is proud of the fact that there was no influenza in the school during the big epidemic. "No visitors were permitted, and the school took no boys in and paroled none—and there was no "flu."

Every effort is made to improve the physical condition of the boys and to see that they form good habits. They come here, many of them, with very poor habits. Some are anaemic, underfed, or starved for fresh air, some with adenoids or bad tonsils. The consent of parents is obtained and adenoids and troublesome tonsils removed. The puny, anaemic boy is sometimes just turned out to grass for a while—perhaps he can pull weeds on the farm.

What They Do in the Shops.

On the floor below the classrooms are the shops. In the tailor shop a group of boys are busy pressing their clothes. They have had three hours of regular school work in the morning and are putting in three hours in the tailor shop in the afternoon. The instructor points to a case containing finished examples of the shop's work and shows the bolts of cloth from which the suits are cut, stout khaki-colored wool for Winter and a pleasant sort of cadet blue for Summer. The band costume calls for a smart red coat with considerable braiding and a darker blue stripe on the blue trousers. The boys are very proud of their uniforms. Here and in the other shops and out on the farm they wear their ordinary clothes. They mend, press and clean them, under instructions. It is said they especially like to press the ties, which raises a general laugh; apparently this is a stock joke on the boys. If the boy has a good suit, he is encouraged to save it, so that he may wear it when he is paroled.

Another shop, the spot where many a so-called bad boy has found himself, shows work under way on some old screen doors, the wire screen ripped and bulging, the wood molding sprung a bit. Here the average boy falls to and has a thoroughly good time. Nobody to wail if he tears his shirt or his knickers—he will simply be shown how to mend them, later, with no reprimand or nagging. Nobody to warn him to keep chips or scraps off the floor. He can make everything, including himself, as dirty as he likes. There will be a general scrubbing and mopping up when the time comes for it, anyway, and his evening bath is as certain as the descending sun. The boys do all the repair work about the place—general carpenters' repairs, fixing shades, making and repairing window screens and screen doors—for all the building. They make all the hotbed sashes for the farm and a lot of gymnasium apparatus. The plumbing shop boys take care of all the plumbing.

Referring to the gymnasium, the Principal says that the boys are mighty fond of that and show great improvement physically after a little time. "One thing," he says, "these fellows are not afraid. You can get them to do things where boys who are afraid would hold back."

Print School Cards and Circulars.

In the printing shop is done all of the Board of Education printing of cards and circulars for the evening schools, on orders issued from the Board of Supplies. The boys get out from $3,500 to $5,000 worth of printing a year, but their classroom work is not neglected. They work three hours here and three hours in class. In the printing shop are to be found the higher grade boys, seventh and eighth year boys mostly. If any of the little fellows get in it is because they have asked especially for it. When the boy comes to the school he is first given a chance to look around and see what he thinks he would like to work at. Sometimes he goes out on the farm, sometimes to the plumbing shop, or he goes to work at printing, woodworking or tailoring. Later, if he is not satisfied or thinks he would do better at something else, he may change. No pressure is brought to bear upon him.

A big boy is feeding a flat-bed press. He gives his age, when asked, as 15 next birthday. In his brown eyes plainly dance dreams of working papers and a glorious future, working in a regular printing plant, after that fifteenth birthday.

"Every one of them knows the case," says the instructor, "and they can all set type with the exception of one new arrival. And in a couple of days he will be able to set up his own name, at least. This boy was working on the farm and just had himself transferred to the shop."

Every effort is made to insure the boy getting his three hours' straight classroom work and to let any of his other activities come out of his three hours' industrial time. His playtime is his own, and he devotes it largely to baseball, as the occasional broken window attests. Echoes may still be heard of the recent occasion when the school played Flushing. The Flushing team came over. At the seventh inning the score was 2 to 2. The Principal was eager to have his boys beat t'other fellows, and the consensus of general opinion was that he literally roared them through to victory. "They needed to win," was his only comment. An all round athlete himself, he commands the respect and confidence of the boys.

Their Own Movie Shows.

In the big cool assembly room there is assembly once a week and a special lecture every Saturday night, and here the boys have movies, Indians, cowboys and the more stirring of exploration and travel views, besides films of the popular favorites.

"Some of the big moving picture companies are particularly good to the school," said the Head. "They don't send us old films either, but strictly up-to-date ones. The graduating class will hold exercises here in a few days, and on all the records the names will be carried as graduating from Public School No. —, and not from a parental or truant school. All the boys are taught to consider this a school, and nobody, among the boys teachers or attendants, is permitted to refer to it as an institution."

Four o'clock is the time for military drill, led by the band and flag salute out on the green behind the administration building. A young man who served as Lieutenant in the late war has charge of this part of the work. All the negroes want to be in the band. The band is one of the bright spots, figures largely in the eyes of all visitors, and natty red coats are part of the uniform. These uniforms are not as extravagant an item as they might look, it was pointed out, as, despite the fact that long-legged trousers are on long-legged boys and short on short, and that coats seem to fit, the uniforms are old, several years old, in fact. The boys parade with the band at their head, led by the bandmaster. Flag salute, which follows drill, occurs four times a week. It is therefore looked forward to and not considered merely part of the daily routine.

The present bandmaster, who is of Italian extraction, enjoys working with the boys. An old square piano having been put in his cottage, on the advent of a new baby grand donated for the assembly hall, he promptly started in to give several of his boys piano lessons in his free time. He thinks some of them have great talent. There is one little imp who, in eighteen months, has acquired a very good working knowledge of both clarinet and cornet, and, if posture, general air and effect would prove anything, he is a regular virtuoso.

Would Master All Instruments.

A taller boy, who, it is said, improvises beautifully on the cornet and is familiar with other band instruments, is an Italian whose father went over to fight on the first outbreak of the war. He came back a mental wreck, and is in a sanitarium with no chance of coming out. The mother is supporting the family. The bandmaster pointed this boy out as one of those who would have no difficulty in getting into a band outside. All the boys are keen on their work and when they have mastered one instrument wish to go on to another.

The property covers 107 acres and at one time was an old Dutch farm. The original plan called for seven instead of the present five buildings. These were to have been in the form of a hollow square, the administration or main building on one side and the present row of cottages, which form another side of the square, were to have been faced by a similar row, these inclosing the green where the boys drill. The school authorities want to see those other cottages—they had the land and only need the funds to build the cottages, which are sadly needed for dormitories. The school building and other facilities would accommodate twice the present number of boys if they had a place to live. But the Controller, who has the final say in these matters, so far has not obtained any appropriation for the purpose.

The main building and all the cottages are in Spanish Mission style, groundstone stucco and red-tiled roofs. There are no walls or fences. Here and there a big rose bush, laden with late roses, emerges from the tall grass. By letting the grass turn to hay a little is saved. The green with the flagpole is scrupulously cut, however, as well as the garden strip between the cottages and the concrete sidewalk. Here are some more rose bushes and a few plants and flowers, and an abundance of honeysuckle draping the verandas of the cottages.

Eager to Work in the Garden.

Care is taken to place some large boys in each cottage. As the boys do all the work of the cottages, and there is a certain amount of comparatively hard work in each, it would be too hard, otherwise on the smaller and younger boys. In each cottage the school has a man and wife, called the master and matron. These masters are the trade instructors. In one cottage is the man who has charge of the supplies and boys working with him learn about the reception and distribution of supplies, keeping records, etc. In the second cottage lives the tailor; in the third, the farmer; in the fourth, the shoemaker; in the fifth, the bandmaster, and in the sixth, the nurse. Each has his group of assistants.

Each double cottage accommodates seventy-two boys. In the basement are a large indoor playroom and a good sized room with many showers. Wooden racks with notches and holes support a whole plantation of tooth brushes, each boy having his own toothbrush, comb, soap, dish, and towel. It was stated that each boy used his own towel, marked with his number on his arrival. He gets a clean towel daily. Two shower baths a day are the rule, night and morning.

ONE ALLENTOWN DAY SEES 5 SHOT, 3 DEAD

TWO SISTERS FOUND SLAIN

Former Soldier Is Held on Suspicion in Connection with This Crime.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 11.—Two crimes in which five persons were shot, three dying almost instantly and two seriously wounded, stirred the city tonight.

Following a dinner at his home at which his daughter's engagement was announced, Angelo Masone killed his prospective son-in-law, Pompilio Marra, aged 24, and seriously wounded his wife and daughter.

Masone escaped but was caught two hours later by the police. He would not tell the motive for his crime, just remarking, "I might as well be dead." Mrs. Masone is not expected to live. The daughter has a chance for life.

Just about the time Masone was captured the bodies of two beautiful young Armenian sisters, Armenia Grogian, aged 17, and Mrs. Charles Davis, aged 22, were found slain in the yard in the rear of their home. William McGeever, a Twenty-eighth Division world war veteran and a former boxer, is being held on suspicion of having shot the girls. He is alleged to have been attentive to the younger of the sisters.

Mrs. Davis had a blighted war romance, having married a Camp Crane soldier here five days after meeting him. After the war he is said to have deserted her in Oklahoma after her savings had disappeared.

Loving Cup for Miss Ruth Taylor.

BRIAR CLIFF, N. Y., July 11.—V. Everit Macy, Charities and Correction Commissioner of Westchester County, will present Miss Ruth Taylor, head of the Child Welfare Branch of the Department of Charities, with a silver loving cup tomorrow. The cup was won by Miss Taylor's charges in the recent field day at East View.

BIG BUILDING JOBS MAY ECLIPSE OTHERS

SAND AND STONE HIGHER

While the period of readjustment is fulfilling itself architects have been turning out vast building projects, which, coupled with the giant pre and post war projects, will easily absorb the bulk of the available supply of building materials this year and during the Spring and Summer of 1921. Material requirements for long-deferred building monarchs are under contract at prices far below the present levels and in some cases even below the present mill operating costs.

Material requirements for more recently projected building jobs have been figured on margins of price fluctuations that were not imagined two or more years ago.

New purchasers have been told repeatedly that existing contracts have to be filled first, which has marked the starting point for the spot buyers' bid. It has already reached the point where some material manufacturers have laid down their 1918 and 1919 contracts and have flatly refused to execute orders on prices specified.

It is easy to follow the result such a course would have through the dealer to sub-contractor, to general contractor, to architects and to financier or owner, yet such situations are being reported now.

New buyers began to pay $2.75 a cubic yard for sand last week and $4 for crushed stone. Under union rules, the contractor has to provide sterilized nails for lathers to safeguard them against infection when they put the nails in their mouths while laying up wood lath, but even $15 a keg will not buy this material now.

Cut nails, once quoted at 75 cents a keg base, Pittsburgh, were billed last week and paid for at $9 a keg net, base, and they are hard to buy even at that price. Lime cannot be purchased in New York today because the manufacturers cannot get coal. The mills have closed. They have plenty of wood available but they cannot get any labor to cut it up fast enough to keep the kilns going.

Cement is coming to the city in small lots more frequently. The fight for open-shop conditions in the steel erectors' section is still in the stage of deadlock on some jobs. Lumber is in very low supply, with more mills closing every week.

While all this curtailment of production is proceeding great new monumental buildings are being projected on terms and conditions almost unheard of in former years. "Yet the building up quickly, as cheaply as you can; but get it up," is the keynote of almost any major building operations under the present conditions of building material and equipment supply.

The cement mills meet this demand by sending in cement in open freight cars with tarpaulins over them. Sparks from the engine set the tarpaulins afire. Trainmen throw water over it to save the train and the dealer stands a loss of $100—for the tarpaulin and several hundred dollars on the $800 carload of cement from some far off town to the cement from some farr off town to the railroad terminus, where the railroad originally contracted to deliver it, besides delivering it to the job. All these charges are passed on to the consumer plus 15 per cent.

All basic materials used for building construction are being moved today under some such difficulty, but "A contract is a contract" in the language of some contract holders. They are the ones whose jobs are waiting. Spot buyers call a contract a mere scrap of paper when it will not earn money for the maker as well as the holder. Those who hold to a such a view typify those having the right of way in the present material market.

Now comes the newest menace to even this prospective activity. Spot coal at brick kilns cost from $15 to $16 a ton, although manufacturers have contracts calling for coal at the mines at from $3 to $5 a ton. Cement mills in the Lehigh Valley pay from $10 to $13, and when, last week, the cost to them was raised to $15, certain companies decided to close down, as they could not sell cement in this market at the present quoted prices under such a burden. They also have contracts for coal at $3 to $5 at the mine.

But an electric power company in this city offsets that extra cost for fuel by putting a pro-rated coal charge for extra coal used in producing electricity on the consumers' July bill. Dealers in building material reason that if a public service company can pass along their extra cost for coal upon the consumer, the building material manufacturers ought to have the same privilege, and if so, visions of $35 brick, $6 cement, $30 lime, $5.50 crushed stone, $3.50 sand and $500 oak flooring loomed high in the distributer's mind.

So marks the trend of the extra little costs added here and there to building construction which make contractors "picky." When contractors are "picky" it reflects the might of financial power against the need of the small operator. Housing problems are quicker solved when the small operator does not have to face such competition for material supplies, says the Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

SAYS LOST GIRL IS FOUND.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., July 11.—R. G. Laurence, whose sixteen-year-old daughter, Marjorie, disappeared Thursday afternoon, received a telegram today from Carolin S. Hartshorn of 1,400 Grand Concourse, New York City, an aunt of the missing girl, saying that Marjorie arrived there yesterday afternoon and was safe. Mr. Laurence is awaiting further information.

The girl is reported to have been seen in the Union Station at Hartford yesterday with a woman about fifty years old. Mr. Laurence received a letter yesterday morning from his daughter postmarked Weathersfield, July 9, stating that she was earning her board at a very kind woman's house and never expected to return to Winsted.

Carolin S. Hartshorn could not be found last night at 1,400 Grand Concourse and no member of the forty families who live there had ever heard of her or of Marjorie Laurence.

Barnard Sends Books to Poland.

Five hundred juvenile story books in the Polish language donated by Barnard College have arrived at the Junior Red Cross Orphanage in Bialystok, Poland, and are now making more than 1,000 Polish orphans happy, according to word received yesterday at local Red Cross headquarters. The shipment was made up of such standard children's books as "Robinson Cruso," "The Swiss Family Ritinson," and the "Jungle Books." The Bialystok Orphanage is the first of such institutions to be started by the Junior Red Cross in Poland.

MAN KILLED IN BRAWL.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 11.—Alleged violation of the national prohibition statute here today resulted in the murder of one man, the arrest on a charge of murder of another and imprisonment of a man on the charge of illegal sale of liquor.

The dead man was Edward McElroy, middle aged, formerly of Brooklyn, who had been making his home in and about Trenton for some time. A blow from the fist of John Bates, 43 years old, 414 Southard Street, is said to have resulted in McElroy's death. Bates, charged with murder, is held without bail. L. Girard, saloonkeeper at Perry and Ewing Streets, who is alleged to have sold intoxicants to the men, was locked up to await the action of the Federal authorities.

McElroy, Bates and Harry Horn, 35 years old, of 30 Jefferson Street, are said to have been drinking in the Girard saloon. As they were leaving the place McElroy is said to have started a conversation with Bates. The latter turned and struck McElroy a blow behind the left ear with his fist. The man fell forward, his face striking the pavement. When picked up he was dead.

WHISKY SUSPECTS HELD.

Suspected of illegally possessing five case of whisky, valued at $300, found in an automobile in which they were seated in front of 71 Dey Street, Thomas Allison of 25 Harrison Street, Andrew O'Keefe of 29 Dominick Street and Joseph Kofura and John Giblin, both of 45 Washington Street, were arrested on Saturday night by Policeman James Franklin of the Old Slip Station. Arraigned yesterday before Magistrate George W. Simpson in the Tombs Police Court they were held in bail of $1,000 each for examination tomorrow.

William Flanagan, 39, of 248 East Fifty-fifth Street, was held in $5,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Joseph Schwab in the Yorkville Court for examination tomorrow on an affidavit charging susicion of felonious assault. Detective John McDonald of the East Thirty-fifth Street Police Station, said that Flanagan walked into the saloon of John Dawson at 542 Second Avenue, with a revolver, declared he was a revenue officer and chased Jerry Sullivan and Jefferson Fay, the two bartenders, out of the place. When they called a policeman, Flanagan fled, the detective said.

TYPHUS ORDER HALTS LINER

The Cunard liner Imperator arrived at Quarantine yesterday afternoon from Southampton and Cherbourg with 372 first cabin, 485 second cabin and 939 steerage passengers, and was detained because the Public Health officials allege the quarantine regulations at Cherbourg had not been complied with. In the steerage were immigrants from the typhus infected districts in Eastern Europe, and the remainder had become "contacts" on the voyage. They were taken off last night to Hoffman's Island for observation. The Imperator is expected to dock at West Fourteenth Street about 8 o'clock this morning.

One of the passengers in the first cabin was Rear Admiral Harry S. Knapp, commander of the United States naval forces in European waters, in succession to Rear Admiral William S. Sims. During April and May Admiral Knapp cruised in the Mediterranean and the Black Sea on a tour of inspection. He saw the Sultan of Turkey at Constantinople on April 30, and called at the principal Spanish and Portuguese ports on his return. A number of Australian soldiers were on board, on their way home. They had been detained in England through lack of passenger ships.

Dies After Anthrax Treatment.

Tony Gerdo of 330 East 109th Street, died yesterday in the Harlem Hospital, where he had been treated for anthrax. An effort will be made to establish positively the cause of death. Gerdo went to the hospital on July 6.

BANDITS GET $4,000 AT CONEY CLUB GAME

2 ARRESTS FOLLOW CHASE

Partly Clad Policeman and Unarmed Victims of Raid Overtake Stalled Car.

While fifteen members of the Seminole Club, a political organization, were playing cards and shaking dice in their bungalow at 2,915 West Thirty-first Street, Coney Island, early yesterday, three masked and armed men walked in through the front door.

Their entrance was unheard in the shouts of the dice players. The bandits had to cry "hands up" several times to get the attention of all their victims, but quickly the club members lined up with their hands raised above their heads. While the fifteen were obeying orders two other masked men with revolvers came in by the back door of the bungalow. They had been stationed in the rear to cut off retreat in that direction.

"A little higher with the hands there, you in the middle," came another order. "Everybody stretch. The man that moves will get it between the shoulders."

After the fashion of constables in rural communities the bandits first confiscated the stakes. Two of the five then went through the pockets of the quiescent fifteen, then slipped off rings and drew out necktie pins. With the warning that any man who looked outside the bungalow within five minutes would be shot the bandits escaped. The fifteen cautiously lowered their hands and looked about. Two men, who had gone broke before the bandits had entered, were the only ones who smiled. It was found that $3,000 in cash and $1,000 in jewelry had been taken.

The racket of a motor in the street indicated that the robbers were not picketing the house, as they had threatened, but were fleeing with all possible haste. The Seminole men ran out shouting for help, and several of them aroused Corporal Jacob Levy of the Sheepshead Bay police, who lives next door. Slipping on his trousers, Levy ran out, forgetting his revolver and shield in his haste. He and several of the club members, unarmed, commandeered an automobile and gave chase to the bandits. The fugitives speeded along Neptune Avenue for some distance and then turned into West Twenty-seventh Street, where their car hit a sandpile and became stalled.

In spite of their weaponless condition, Levy and several of the Seminole Club men ran for the car shouting, "Hands up!"

They found two men rigid with fear in the front seat, with arms perpendicular. The two men, who described themselves as Herman Nadler, 159 East Houston Street, and Leon Senkin, 328 Madison Street, Manhattan, asserted that they owned the machine [illegible] were merely the tools of the bandits. They said they had driven the party from a point in Second Avenue, Manhattan, to the Seminole bungalow, and did not know that a robbery was afoot. Neither was armed. Levy, however, found a mask in the pocket of Nadler, he declared, and placed charges of robbery against the two men. Several detectives were sent at once in pursuit of the others.

How to read a Bank Statement

A FRIEND said to us the other day: "I have been following your advertising for some time. Your banking department is the largest part of your business. Why don't you tell more about it? People may think of you as a Trust Company which does nothing but settle estates and act as trustee and so forth."

Thinking perhaps you may share our friend's views, we print below a statement of our Banking Department as of June 30, 1920.

In line with our policy of "explaining things" we have made, for the sake of clearness, explanatory notes under the different items as follows:

ASSETS

Cash on hand (Gold, other coin and currency)	$ 1,181,767.76
Cash in Banks and Exchanges (Our balance with the Federal Reserve Bank and other banks, and checks deposited by our customers in process of collection)	22,540,492.30
Foreign Exchange (Assured dollar value of our balances abroad, and of our holdings of prime foreign bills of exchange after payment at maturity)	7,074,080.73
U. S. Government Bonds and Notes (Their market value)	3,070,361.75
State and Municipal Bonds (Their market value)	1,466,629.94
Short Term Securities (Our investments in obligations of railroad and industrial corporations, payable at a near date and readily marketable)	3,663,212.60
Other Bonds and Stocks (Our investments in readily saleable, high grade securities; their market value)	9,793,425.14
Loans and Bills Purchased (Loans amply secured, and notes of concerns of highest standing and financial rating)	60,962,671.65
N. Y. City Mortgages (We do not loan on real estate located outside of New York City)	4,915,436.24
Real Estate (Banking buildings—lower floors, used for our business—upper floors, rented to the public)	3,936,937.27
Customers' Liability on Acceptances and Commercial Letters of Credit (Obligations of our customers to reimburse us for (1) commercial drafts accepted by us, payable at a future date, (2) engagements to pay or come under acceptance on presentation of specified commercial documents either here or abroad)	15,753,025.89
